Dear Aydelotte:

I enclose some correspondence recently had with the Educational Department of the Christian Science Monitor. Do not accede to their request unless you feel like it. It occurred to me, however, that it might be a chance for you to mull over what has been printed about the institute and make a statement that would do us all good.

Ever sincerely,

Dear Mr. Flexner:

We do not wish to press you too hard with regard to our request for an article. We should greatly appreciate it if you would send us a word to the effect that you received our letter of October 13, and that you are trying to find the time to meet our desires.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Blake:

I have been under the impression that I had replied to your letter of October 13, but my mail has been so large that it may well be that your letter was either lost or is still buried beneath the pile upon my desk.

It is simply impossible for me to undertake to prepare an article for The Monitor, though I greatly appreciate the value of The Monitor as a medium of communication among the intelligent public. I am, however, so involved in work and in previous obligations that I cannot undertake anything more.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Flexner:

Thank you for your reply to our letter requesting an article on your concept of Mr. Einstein's contribution to The Institute for Advanced Study.

May we bother you again just to ask your opinion as to who would be the best person to write the article we desire? We want someone who is close enough to you and your work to write a strong article. At the same time, we should like to have this writer be someone who would not have to trouble you too much in the way of an interview. Of course, we could ask a member of our staff at the Monitor's New York office to come and talk with you, but if you have someone in mind, we should like to consider him first.

We shall greatly appreciate your help.

Sincerely yours,

Educational Department

Dear Mr. Blake:

Thank you for your extremely considerate note of November 11. The Bulletin which the Institute has printed, the release of October 11, and the very elaborate article in the New York Times of October 11 of Dr. Finley's editorial, furnish about all the available material regarding the Institute. I myself could add nothing to this.

On the other hand, if you wish someone to prepare a special paper, the person best equipped to do it is Dr. Frank Aydelotte, President of Swarthmore College, who is one of the Trustees of the Institute and knows all about it.

With all good wishes,

Sincerely yours,

My dear President Aydelotte:

I am sorry to say that I have never seen the letter of October 13 to which Mr. Blake of the Christian Science Monitor referred. Dr. Flexner was simply swamped with mail both at his residence and at the office, and I imagine that letter was lost in transit. I feel sure that Mr. Blake will write directly to you after he has received Dr. Flexner's letter.

November 15, 1932

Dear Dr. Flexner:

I will think over this proposal from the Christian Science Monitor and see whether I can do anything for them. They appear to have written you under date of October 13th and I suppose indicated the kind of thing they wanted. That letter, however, is not in the correspondence which you sent me. If Mrs. Bailey can find it, I should appreciate it if you would send it along.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mrs. Bailey:

I have a note from Dr. Flexner saying that he can see me on Tuesday, September 20th. Will you be so kind as to tell him that my other business in New York has been shifted to Thursday, September 22nd, and ask him whether I could see him that day? It would suit me best to come early in the morning. I shall probably go over to New York by a late train Wednesday afternoon and could be at Dr. Flexner's office at 9:00 o'clock or as soon thereafter as he would have time to see me.

Yours sincerely,

My dear Miss Abbett:

Thank you for your letter of the fourteenth giving Dr. Aydelotte’s addresses. Dr. Flexner is sailing for Europe today for a six or eight weeks’ trip, and he desired the information that he might arrange to see Dr. Aydelotte if they were in the same locality.

My dear Mrs. Bailey:

According to present plans President Aydelotte will be in Mexico City until May 1st and may be addressed:

Dr. Eyler N. Simpson

Mexico City, D. F., Mexico.

He then plans to go to Germany and hopes to be able to spend the month of June in England. His address will be:

The Rhodes Trust

London S. W. 1
and cable address Aydelotte, Augury, London.

I assume, of course, that you want this information for Dr. Flexner's use only, and I would not mention it were it not for the fact that Mr. Aydelotte told me just before he left that he was not giving out his address since he thought it better for all mail to go to him through me, which of course needs no explanation to you or to Dr. Flexner.

My dear President Aydelotte:

I promised to keep you informed regarding the date of the next meeting. Mr. Flexner will be returning the last of May or early in June, but he wishes time in which to "digest" the attitude of the scholars and scientists whom he has consulted. There is no legal reason for the meeting to be held in June, so that Mr. Bamberger is quite willing that it go over until the autumn. This is not an official announcement — just a note for your information.

I have good news from Mr. and Mrs. Flexner and Eleanor. Mr. Flexner will go to England next week after having visited Italy, France, and Germany.

Sincerely yours,

My dear President Aydelotte:

After your call the other day I asked Mr. Bamberger's secretary in Newark when Mr. Bamberger was to return. He said that the date was indefinite but probably the week of April 7.

I also inquired of Mr. Leidesdorf and Mr. Maess as to whether a business meeting would be held on April 13. Mr. Leidesdorf has just telephoned to say that no meeting will be held until Dr. Flexner's return, and, as you know, that date is indefinite.

Dr. Flexner wrote me a brief note from Oxford, stating that he was having a most interesting time, very busy, of course, and leaving Oxford on the 14th. He also wrote, "Professor Lowes has been a great success." - which I am sure will please you, even though it may not surprise you.

Feb. 18

Dear President Aydelotte:

The above was dictated from Boston yesterday. This morning I have received your letter of the 17th. Mr. Flexner was planning to see your son yesterday afternoon or last evening, and perhaps you succeeded in reaching him before the interview, for my assistant gave you Mr. Flexner's Cambridge address. I think there is hardly time for Mr. Flexner to get your letter, so that I am not forwarding it.

I think it is definitely decided that Mr. and Mrs. Flexner will sail on Feb. 26.

Sincerely yours,

President Frank Aydelotte

Dear Aydelotte:

Welcome back to the frigid North! I hope you and your wife had a thoroughly good time in Florida and that Dr. Martin and his wife are well.

I have been planning to go to Cambridge, but I want to have a talk with you about Bill before I see him and I also should like to tell you what has been happening about the Institute. We have decided to go abroad about the end of this month but before doing so I wish to see you and to visit Chicago and Harvard in order to make certain inquiries. If you are free Monday, February 9, I could take an early train, spend the day, and come back here Monday evening.

We have had some hectic times since you and your wife left. Anne and I had the grippe, and Jean an attack of appendicitis and a successful operation, so that both the children are now "without".

We have wonderful letters from Eleanor. Oxford is a bit too conservative for her taste, but she has had a royal time all the same.

With all good wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Dear President Aydelotte:

Thank you very much for your kind letter of January 3. It was very thoughtful of you to take account of the lecture I gave in Swarthmore. It was a great pleasure to visit the college and to meet some of the faculty, and to go over the Bartol laboratory with Dr. Swan.

I hope you and Mrs. Aydelotte had a refreshing visit to Palm Beach.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

Many thanks for all the thought you have given to Bill's problems. As a matter of fact, he is going to New York on January 2nd to spend the week-end with the Wilson M. Powell family at 130 East 70th Street, and if there is any chance of your finding time to see him on Friday, Saturday or Monday, I am sure that he could call on you at any place that was convenient for you.

I think Bill has a really good mind, and my only question has been whether in his present state of uncertainty he ought to go on with his studies or whether it would help him to clear thinking if he took some kind of work and earned his living for a year or two.

Yours very sincerely,

Dr. Abraham Flexner

Dear Aydelotte:

I really hesitate to give definite advice regarding the problem which Bill so very clearly states without an opportunity to talk with him. I have not seen him in the last two years, so that I am somewhat in the dark as to the progress he has made in respect to maturity during that period. I wonder if we could arrange to have a seance during his Christmas holidays. Meanwhile, I will continue to brood, and perhaps something definite may occur to me. I realize that the decision may be for him a momentous one, and it is for that reason that I want to "watch my step" in counseling him.

Dear Aydelotte:

Mr. Bamberger and Mrs. Fuld dined with us last night. They would like very much to know if you and your wife would not come over some Thursday afternoon for a Toscanini concert, staying with them at the Hotel Madison, where they have a large suite and can easily accommodate you. It will please them both, and I am sure that, if you can do it, you will enjoy it.

I have in the morning mail your letter about Bill. I shall think about it over the week-end and write you my impressions.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

We should love to come up for a Thursday night with Mr. Bamberger and Mrs. Fuld, but the first Thursday which we have free is February 5th. Would that date suit them? If so, perhaps we might fix on it at once. I shall be in New York on other days before then and may ask your advice about calling on Mr. Bamberger for just a little informal talk.

I look forward with keen interest to having your advice about Bill. I am very much puzzled. Sometimes I think it would do him good to earn his living for a year or two, sometimes I think his own plan may be the soundest. I don’t want him, however, just to accumulate languages without having a pretty definite purpose for which to use them.

I have dictated you an appallingly long letter in answer to all your questions and giving some additional comments of my own. You may expect it later when Miss Abbott has had time to type it.

Yours very sincerely,

Dr. Abraham Flexner

Dear Dr. Flexner:

I made some notes on our conversation and am only waiting before I type them out to receive a list of topics from you so that I can be sure I am not omitting anything which ought to be included. I was keenly interested in our conversations about the Institute and am more enthusiastic than ever about its possibilities.

I have been consulting with Bill about his plans for the future, how that the Rhodes Scholarship possibility must be eliminated. He could of course try again another year and may do so, but I believe that he ought to go ahead with his plans without counting on Oxford.

I shall be most grateful if you would give him and me the benefit of your advice. I enclose copy of a letter which Bill has just written me proposing to spend next year in Germany learning the language and reading the literature. What do you think of his ideas and what are your criticisms?

Bill, it seems to me, has a remarkable aptitude for picking up foreign languages and I think that he might readily be a scholar in English literature or French or German or Italian, according to the development of his interests. I have noticed also for a good many years that he is keenly interested in general questions of university policy and that he is rather clear-headed about them. I think it extremely likely that he might be able to go on from a professorship to a college presidency or to a position in an educational foundation. His other ambition, to write fiction, is one about which I feel more doubtful, but I see no harm in his having a try.

The immediate question is the one of the next step and on that I should be most grateful for your advice. I am tempted to think that it would do him good to earn his living for a year or two but there again I may be wrong and it may be better to let him continue his period of study.

Yours very sincerely,

Dr. Abraham Flexner

Dear Aydelotte:

Thank you for yours of the first. Mrs. Flexner will go to Philadelphia at noon Friday to attend the Toscanini concert. Could Albert meet her at the West Philadelphia Station at, say, 4:30 p.m.? I suggest the West Philadelphia Station, because it would be so much easier to find him there than in front of the Concert Hall.

I shall not be able to come over until the evening. Don't bother about meeting me. I will come out to Swarthmore on the train and walk up over the Campus probably about eight or nine o'clock.

My life is thus far safer than ever, for I have a horde of protectors in the shape of grinning and delighted professors. No squawks, however, from the Heads!

So much has been happening that I have not until this moment had time to dictate a letter telling you the news. I went up to see Mr. Eastman, laid the whole matter of the Eastman Professorship before him, and a few days after my return received his check for another $100,000 of endowment for it. We were accordingly persuaded to buy the McElroy House when Wylie and Lindsay notified me of another house, Black Hall, which is a much more beautiful and historic house in a much better location. At the present moment it is possible only to buy a lease for eight years at something less than 400 pounds a year per year. The arguments made by Wylie and Lindsay are that this house would give great charm and prestige to the Professorship and that it is worth while starting off there even if we find that we must move at the end of eight years. There is always the possibility of our renewing the lease, and I am inclined, on the whole, to think that it is an admirable solution of the immediate problem. I am discussing the matter with our Directors and with the people in Oxford, and it will be settled probably before you get this letter.

The last $175,000 of our endowment has been finally completed, and I cannot express the relief and satisfaction which I feel at having that off my hands and being able to turn my attention again to academic problems which interest me a great deal more and which I think are much more in my line. I have a great deal of satisfaction with the way the whole endowment has gone and warmest gratitude to you for your very large part in it. You will be interested to know that the total expense of the campaign, last year and this, for postage, printing, travelling, lunches, dinners, stenographic work and everything, is almost exactly $20,000, or about half of one per cent of the fund raised. A professional organisation would have charged us $100,000 or $150,000 and would have enormously lowered the tone of the campaign.

Commencement went off beautifully. My wife and I received your cable on Commencement Day and appreciate it more warmly than I can tell you. Angell made a good address, as did Meiklejohn and Dorothy Canfield Fisher. Mrs. Fisher's was really brilliant, and I hope sometime it will be printed. The weather was good to us, and I was very proud, both of the group of alumni that returned and the members of the graduating class. At the same time I am immensely relieved to have it over and don't ever expect to have so complicated a year again.

I had a very pleasant letter from Mr. Bamberger formally inviting me to be a trustee of the new Institute of Higher Studies. I sent him my acceptance, together with an expression of enthusiastic approval of the plan. I think its possibilities are infinite.

Mrs. Bailey came down to see Eleanor graduate and brought proofs of your book. I have read over half of it and think it a wonderful piece of work. I appreciate very warmly the kind things you say about us at Swarthmore, and one effect of the book has been to make me see more clearly than ever before the value and importance of what we are trying to do. I really think that this is likely to have as profound an effect in the end as did your study of Medical Education. I promised Mrs. Bailey to return the proofs to her if possible before I sail tomorrow and if not, to mail them back from the first port at which we stop. I have no real criticism or suggestions to make, except a few small matters of detail which I am reporting direct to Mrs. Bailey.

Warmest good wishes to Mrs. Flexner and yourself for a pleasant summer in Canada! I feel an enormous sense of relief at the prospect of a three-week voyage to Buenos Aires, which begins for me tomorrow. I shall be back in Swarthmore August 30th and hope to see you as soon as possible after you return from the North.

My dear Doctor Flexner:

I have your kind letter of the fourth instant, relative to the problems confronting Dr. Aydelotte in his desires in behalf of Swarthmore College.

Because of my high personal esteem for Dr. Aydelotte, my sincere sympathy with the aims he has in view and of your own appeal to me for the assistance he needs it is difficult for me to over-ride my inclinations.

However, as much as I regret it, I must decline, for reasons which I am sure you will appreciate.

Last summer, when the goal that the Doctor had then set was about to be reached I contributed $5,000.00 to the Endowment Fund of Swarthmore and was more than glad to do so.

In the meantime I have increased my donation to the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation one million dollars, making a total contribution to it so far of more than four million dollars and extending the scope of the Foundation's activities to the Pan American and South American countries.

You are doubtless aware that the purposes of the Foundation are also educational, and I hope that results will flow from them of high and enduring value.

In addition to this I have made generous donations and given commitments in other cases in worthy causes and important institutions to such an extent that I do not feel that I can go any further.

I wish Doctor Aydelotte every success in his undertakings and I feel sure, knowing him as I do and knowing what he stands for, that failure is not in his lexicon.

With highest regard, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Simon Guggenheim

We shall be expecting you on the 4th and will plan to go off and leave you on Saturday afternoon since we always go to this football game ourselves.

You need not worry about your visits being a nuisance or an imposition. We love to have you. I only hope they will not cease when Eleanor graduates from College.

Dear Aydelotte:

Mrs. Flexner and I thank you for your kind letter of September 23. It was very good of you to ask us to come on the third, but that is not going to be possible since Toscanini gives his first concert on the evening of the third and Mrs. Flexner would not miss that for a farm. We shall come therefore sometime on the fourth. I shall let you know the exact hour.

Don't bother to get any football tickets for us for the Pennsylvania game on the fifth, for I don't think Mrs. Flexner should sit out in the open, and I should myself rather spend the time chopping kindling to start the college furnace. Don't bother about us. We will wander in Crum Woods and amuse ourselves perfectly.

As to the Philadelphia Orchestra on the evening of the fifth, we should love to go and of course to take Eleanor but only provided tickets can be had at our expense and without special difficulty. You mustn't let our visits be a nuisance or an imposition – else we will quit coming.

Give our greetings to Mrs. Aydelotte, and believe me

Dear Dr. Flexner:

We should be delighted to have you come for the week-end of October 6th and suggest that since the 4th is Eleanor's birthday you come on the 3rd and stay with us as long as you can. Swarthmore plays Pennsylvania on Saturday, and I hope that you will be willing to go to the game with us; if you are, I will engage a suitable number of seats.

On Saturday, October 6th, is the first concert of the Philadelphia Orchestra season. We had already promised some time ago to attend with the Brauns and to go with them to the concert that night, which will make it necessary for us to leave you and Mrs. Flexner to dine alone, but it has the pleasant side of leaving our seats for you. Albert can bring you in to the concert, we will sit with the Brauns, and all drive home together. They can put an extra chair in the box for Eleanor to go to the concert with you if she cares to.

Looking forward with the keenest pleasure to having you here, I am

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Abraham Flexner,

Dear Aydelotte:

Since writing you a few days ago, Mrs. Flexner has called my attention to the fact that October 4 is Eleanor's birthday. Would it suit you and Mrs. Aydelotte if Mrs. Flexner and I came down for that weekend? We should like it to be a surprise for Eleanor, though we must in some way contrive that she shall make no engagements. I don't know just how to manage that, but her mother will probably be equal to the emergency. Please be quite candid, for we can come just as well some other time. I shall of course endeavor to fit that in with the Chicago trip.

Sincerely yours,

A. F.

P.S. September 21

Since dictating the above, I have received yours of the 30th. I think it better that I speak to Embree and Mr. Rosenwald alone. I imagine your application to the General Education Board will be in good time if it is received in the course of October. It might be worth while for you to have an informal talk with Mr. Arnett in the meanwhile, but I think that even this could be postponed until after I have sounded out the possibilities at Chicago. Many thanks for your mention of Eleanor.

With all good wishes to you and Mrs. Aydelotte,

Ever sincerely,

Dear Dr. Flexner:

I am delighted to hear that you are back, and I am glad to report that our Endowment Fund reached the total of two million necessary to get the conditional gift from the General Education Board and from Edward S. Harkness by Commencement Day, which was yesterday. The total of our pledges is about $2,050,000 for educational endowment. I am still as keen as ever to add a third million, which is what we really need, and if the Rosenwald Foundation or Mr. Rosenwald himself does something liberal, I think there is a chance we may be able to get it. Embree wrote me that they could not act on the principle of the thing before May and that they could not decide what definite amount they would give us, if any, until October. The request I made to him was for $500,000 toward a third million on condition that we got the first two.

I have also asked Keppel for a $200,000 appropriation for our library. He is considering this but cannot act until next year. There are a number of other "prospects" which make me hope that we may reach the goal of three millions particularly if we can have some more of the kind of good fortune that we have been having, and I feel pretty strongly that your return is a part of this good fortune.
When can I see you? Could you spend a few days with us in Swarthmore, or would it suit you better to have me come to New York? There is a great deal that I want to talk about with you at the earliest possible moment, including the Eastman Professorship and the Bodleian. We are sailing from Quebec on June 16th.

Yours hastily,

Dr. Abraham Flexner,

To the Trustees of the Institute for Advanced Study:

At the regular meeting of the Trustees of the Institute for Advanced Study held January 11, 1932, the Director was authorized (1) to visit the California Institute of Technology and (2) to make a recommendation in the School of Mathematics.

I spent practically two weeks at the California Institute of Technology and enjoyed the opportunity of frequent and prolonged discussions with Professor Millikan and his associates as well as Professor Einstein and Professor Beard, who are visiting professors during the current year. In so far as the graduate work of the California Institute of Technology is concerned, it coincides, I think, more closely with our own purposes than the graduate work of any other institution with which I am familiar. The American graduate school has so increased in numbers and has occupied itself so largely with the training of persons to be teachers that, despite the eminence of men here and there in almost every subject, the graduate school as a whole has lost rather than gained in prestige and importance during recent years. Professor Millikan and his associates have recognized this tendency and have met it in much the same way in which we are proposing to meet it in the Institute, that is, through the selection of a small number of eminent men who have surrounded themselves with a few really promising disciples with whom they are endeavoring to push forward the bounds of knowledge and who may in due course assist in the regeneration of the American graduate school. Not only was the faculty of the California Institute sympathetic with the purposes of our own institution, but Professor Millikan and the authorities of Mt. Wilson Observatory offered their fullest cooperation in the fields in which they are respectively busy.

I came away from Pasadena with the renewed conviction that the Institute is on the right track in endeavoring to create ideal conditions for professors of distinguished ability, concentrating their efforts on their own investigations and training a few advanced workers of outstanding ability, and that, if it can be carried out and sustained at that level, it will represent a distinct and a stimulating contribution to higher learning in this country.

I had hoped, acting on the authorization of the Board made at the last meeting, to be able to submit a nomination to a professorship of mathematics at the present meeting. I regret to say, however, that I am not yet prepared to take this step. Before coming to a decision, I desire a further opportunity to confer with certain scholars in Europe. I shall therefore later submit a resolution authorizing me to go abroad for this purpose. I shall at the same time utilize this opportunity to go more deeply into the subject of economics than I was able to do when I was abroad a year ago.

Dear Aydelotte:

Yours of the 24th reached me today. I should like to take Mr. J. Alfred Miller by the nape of the neck and drown him. It is too bad that "dumbbells" like him should make your path any harder, but I daresay that he is not to be taken seriously. He ought to be a graduate of the Business School of New York University.

I have had a wonderful time here since returning to Oxford. All Souls has been a refuge and a retreat, so quiet, so peaceful, so beautiful, and I have been welcomed as warmly as any one could wish or expect. Tomorrow I go to Rhodes House where I shall stay over the week-end, then Cambridge for a few days, then London for perhaps a week. I sail on the S.S. Hamburg, leaving Southampton on May 25.

I am terribly tired, but I have, I think, some interesting things to say. At any rate it is not the fault of my opportunities if my book proves to be a dull and useless one. I hope very much that I can get a rest on the ship. I have indeed selected a slow boat in order that I may.

Aside from rejoining my family, I have only two things at heart: one, to see the Rosenwalds; the other, to help you.
I have had a conference here on the Bodleian-Ashmolean-Taylorian proposition, but I shall not attempt to tell you about it in a letter. It is too complex - too many interests involved, though of course I shall talk to you with the utmost freedom.

Give my love to Mrs. Aydelotte and Bill, and believe me

Ever your friend,

Answering yours May eighth I look forward eagerly to awaiting your return. I have now million and one half need five hundred thousand more. I hope to get about two hundred thousand from alumni. I must find remainder outside. Pinning strongest hopes on Harkness and Rosenwald Eastman Professorship settled Bodleian well begun affectionate regards

AYDELOTTE
April 24, 1929.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

Many thanks for your letter of April 11th from Berlin, which I hasten to answer in the hope that this may reach you in England before you sail.

Our arrangements are progressing for the opening of our endowment fund campaign May 1st. The members of our Board have made up about $300,000 so that we shall start off with about half the money in sight, counting the contingent promise from the General Education Board.

Of this million which we have to raise I hope that we can get half a million from our alumni; the other half I think we must find from outside sources. We are trying a good many men in Philadelphia like Aba Johnson, Edward Bok and so on, who will I hope do something. Wilson Powell has undertaken to reach Ed Harkness in New York this week, and I suppose that if we get anything from him, it will be a comfortable amount. I am not at all clear what the chances are with the Rosenwald Foundation and am very eager indeed to have you take a hand in that business the moment you return. Young William Roscnwald, who lives in Philadelphia, has written to me saying that he would like to make an individual subscription on his own account, which is delightful and encouraging though I do not suppose the amount will be large.

The work we have done so far is having an immense moral and intellectual effect on our student body and alumni. There are some incorrigibles, like the author of the enclosed letter, who feel that honors work is a grave mistake on account of its supposed detrimental effect on the football team, but most of these people we have got converted, and I think the undergraduates are simply splendid in the way that they are taking hold. I enclose a copy of this week's Phoenix which will give you an illustration.

I can probably hear from Eleanor or Mrs. Flexner when you are arriving in New York, and I wish that you could come down here for a night for a council of war before going to Chicago. But if that is not convenient for you, I could easily come to New York and undertake there in a few minutes time to put you in touch with all the developments.

The Eastman Professorship statute is finished, and I hope it may be passed any day. You will know that sooner than I. I have been working hard on the Bodleian and Ashmolean-Taylorian problem, making more headway with the former than with the latter. I have written to the Vice-Chancellor suggesting a formal application to the Rockefeller Foundation for the Bodleian, and I hope that that will be made at once. It has occurred to me as I thought over the problem that if they make the Bodleian over with seminar rooms and Professors' studies like the Widener Library and with room for all the Talorian books, that might solve the Talorian problem in a better way than by the erection of a separate building. If you have time to consult people in Oxford on that phase of the matter, I wish you would do so.

Eleanor has written a play which is to be performed soon. Mrs. Flexner is coming down for it, but unfortunately we have to go off and give an inauguration address over one of our Professors who has just become President of Union College. This will be much duller than Eleanor's play.

With affectionate regards from us all,

Sincerely yours,

Abraham Flexner, Esq.,
Care Equitable Trust Co.,

March 15, 1929.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

I appreciate very warmly your cordial letter of February 13th. I think we are now drawing to a conclusion with the Eastman Professorship, but things take so long in Oxford that it may not be possible to appoint the first Professor for the next academic year.

We have now come firmly to grips with the endowment problem and are working hard at it. Dr. Vincent gave us a great boost by a wonderful speech which he made at the dinner of the Philadelphia-Swarthmore Club last Friday night. I am going out to Chicago on Monday to interview Rabbee. He has been very non-committal so far, but I very much hope that the Rosenwald Foundation will do something.

I do hope that you will be able to come back by the middle of May and that you will come down to us as soon as you can after your arrival. We are going to have a stiff job to get our two million, and the worst of it is that we really need three. The thing I am putting up to Rabbee, as I think I told you, is the question as to whether he would be willing to give us half of a third million on condition that we get the first two and could find somebody to give the other half of the third. Do you think Mr. Rockefeller personally would consider at all giving us the other half of the third million? If we could manage that we would really be soundly based so far as the financial side is concerned, and I think we might then be able to make one undergraduate college which is really an educational institution.

The whole experience is doing us a lot of good. The last two months have been a constant series of explanations to people who were, for one reason or another, dubious about honors work or dubious about something else which would make it impossible for them to give to the College with a good conscience. We think it rather remarkable the success we have had in convincing so many of these doubters. It remains to be seen how much they will give.

I shall send you news from time to time and look forward eagerly to your return.

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Abraham Flexner,

P. S. I enclose a copy of Mrs. Fisher's article, which is to appear in the May issue of World's Work.

Dear Aydelotte:

I have your extremely interesting letter of January 18. You seem to me to be proceeding soundly in the matter of the Eastman Professorship. In my judgment, Balliol is right not to make the professor a member of the Governing Body. He would be embarrassed and so would they. He will obtain in the Common Room such influence as he is on his merits entitled to have. That will vary greatly with different persons. I am sure from my experience that informal contacts without official responsibility is the ideal arrangement for outsiders who come for limited periods.

Mr. Eastman’s suggestion about buying a house is – well, it is Mr. Eastman – excellent. It will do a great deal to make the professorship attractive and it will also indirectly increase the stipend.

The constitution of the Electoral Board is, as far as I can judge, satisfactory and I imagine you have had counsel from Lindsay on this point and he ought to know.

I have been following Lindsay’s lectures in the Phoenix. He has really quite opened my mind as to the part played by the Quakers and other kickers during the seventeenth century in respect to the development of democracy. I hope he means to make a book out of his lectures.

I do want to help you raise your endowment, for I believe in you and in Swarthmore. Before coming away in the fall, I had a talk with Embree in which I urged him to consider a gift to Swarthmore on the ground that it was different from other colleges. I did not tell you about it, just because I did not want to influence you to admit his daughter, though I confess I hope that she will find a way to get in.

I have been working hard but got a first-rate rest with Mrs. Flexner at Menton and I really feel now as well and as vigorous as I felt at forty. We have about decided not to try to stay on this side until July. We go to Belgium next week for about ten days – I am giving a lecture at each of the four universities, two on A Modern University, two on Medical Education – then to Germany where I wish to orient myself.
regarding recent happenings. After that, about March 20 or 23, Anne will sail for America from Hamburg, for she wishes to see the children and I think she ought not to try another spring term in Oxford, for, though she is quite well, I am just afraid that it might prove too much for her. I shall, however, go to England for another month or six weeks. This ought to bring me back to America about the middle of May. I shall see you promptly and take the utmost pleasure not only in advising with you but in tapping for the benefit of the Swarthmore Fund any sources to which I may have access.

Do send me a copy of Mrs. Fisher's essay. I am extremely keen to read it. I hope that you have not had too hard a winter and that Mrs. Aydelotte and William, as well as you yourself, are enjoying good health.

With affectionate greetings to you all,

above telegram sent to Hotel Statler, Buffalo, N.Y.
In September 8, 1928

Dear Aydelotte:

I received yesterday the following from Mr. Eastman:

"Your letter of August 20th was duly received but since then I have been away on a short vacation which has prevented my replying.

"I am inclined to think that I will adopt your suggestion and endow the chair of American studies and if it is convenient for you to stop here on your way back from Canada, and to get Dr. Aydelotte to meet you here, I would like to talk it over. If you think well of this kindly wire me in advance."

I feel quite sure that Mr. Eastman would not ask us to meet him unless he really intended to adopt our suggestion. I therefore wired you to Swarthmore - your wife wrote Mrs. Flexner that you were going down on the seventh - to the following effect: "Can you meet me at Rochester, Thursday, September 13, for a conference with Mr. Eastman?"

On my previous trips to Rochester I have left New York at 11:05 p.m., arriving Rochester 8:08 a.m. next morning, and this I imagine is the train that you will take. If such is the case, I should arrive there at 9:36, and I suggest that you get your breakfast and wait for me at the station. We will then go to call on Mr. Eastman together. Whatever you may have wired me previously, won't you please wire in reply to this, so that I may know as to the hour and place of our meeting?

If this transaction is satisfactorily completed, as I hope it will be on Thursday, I have another idea which I shall trot forth for your inspection.

We are having the most glorious weather of the summer - day after day the lake placid, cool mornings and crisp evenings and gently warm, cloudless days.

Wonderful news Delighted meet you Rochester

Thursday Greetings Mrs. Flexner

F.A.
Dear Mr. Eastman:

The suggestion which I made to you respecting a Chair of American Studies at Oxford originated in my mind from the following considerations:

England and America must never by force of any kind, (wealth, numbers, etc.) endeavor to dominate the world, even in the interest of peace; but they can give the world such an example and establish such a precedent through mutual understanding as will stimulate other nations to establish friendly and cooperative relations upon the same basis. It is the general conviction of those who have been working towards international peace, goodwill, comprehension and cooperation, that more is to be expected from knowledge and intelligence than from any other source; and obviously England and America are best fitted, through community of language, literature, etc. to set the pace or make the demonstration.

Now the men who as journalists and statesmen and, to some extent, as business men are most prominent and influential in shaping British opinion and in directing British policy are largely trained at Oxford. Oxford does for this group what Cambridge does for the scientific group. And at Oxford, those who look forward to journalistic, governmental or other similar careers are segregated and brought together, as in no other institution in the world. It is this group which would come under the direct influence of successive Professors of American Studies who would expound and explain to them American ideals, American conditions, American problems, American experience, in cooperation with the Harmsworth Professor of American History, who deals with the historical development of the United States. In education, economics and other fields, we have much to give as well as much to learn: a proper Professor of American Studies would both give and learn. Great Britain would gain; so would we, as one Professor after another returned home.

Oxford teaches annually at least two hundred Rhodes Scholars, free of all charge; they come from the different states of the Union and from the Dominions. There are now over six hundred Rhodes Scholars, graduates of Oxford, in the United States. Year by year these numbers (to which those who go independently should be added) increase. We are thus in a way to understand Great Britain. It is a fair return, in the interest of civilization, that something should be done to enable Great Britain to understand us. I believe that successive Professors of American Studies (I purposely use a vague word) chosen at intervals by a committee composed of Americans and Oxford authorities would make a notable contribution to this end. A Professorship of Spanish Studies has already been endowed at Oxford. In time a few other outstanding nations will be similarly represented; and thus something substantial would be accomplished in the way of enlightening and educating the Englishmen upon whom the burden of forming and directing public opinion rests and is bound to rest. They are now largely amateurs; I want to see them trained.

I believe that an endowment of $200,000 would achieve the purpose; the principal could be held by the Association of American Rhodes Scholars, of which Dr. Aydelotte, President of Swarthmore College, formerly Professor of English in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is the leading spirit. I am sure that the details could be easily worked out, if the sum indicated is made available.

Obviously, the proposition I have outlined lies outside the scope of your usual activities; but it is not fundamentally very different from the aid which you have given to the Brookings Institution. In any case, the object in view — the promotion of knowledge and understanding between all who speak the English language, is so important that I venture to hope you will take favorably to the idea.

With all good wishes,

Sincerely yours,

(signed) ABRAHAM FLEXNER

P.S. Should you care to discuss the question with him, I am sure that Aydelotte would be glad to go to Rochester to see you. His address is Old Chatham, New York (not far from Albany). He is a man of excellent judgment and very great ability.
(Draft)

Dr. Frank Aydelotte

Old Chatham, New York

Dear Dr. Aydelotte:

Subject to the approval of the authorities of the University of Oxford, I hereby offer to the Association of American Rhodes Scholars the sum of $200,000, the principal to be preserved intact as endowment, the income to be used to pay the salary of a Professor of American Studies at Oxford and for expenses incidental thereto.

I am led to make this offer by several considerations:

Through the beneficence of Cecil Rhodes, Oxford annually offers its opportunities free of all expense to a carefully selected group of Americans, who, in addition to their studies, are enabled to come into contact with English and Colonial students and who, on their return home, do something, and, as their numbers increase, will do more, to further knowledge, comprehension and sympathy between the two countries. In the long run, cooperation and civilization will, I believe, be most effectively promoted, if nations and those who form public opinion in them know and understand one another. Believing that it is in our interest and in the interest of civilization that America should be understood, I am desirous of doing something that will assist Englishmen and Colonials, and particularly the group destined to play an important part in government, journalism and business, to understand America - to study the vast and important experiments we are making in almost every field and to use this knowledge to advance civilization.

In their governmental relations with each other, in their journalistic and other contacts upon each other, in their business dealings with each other, Great Britain and the United States are singularly well fitted to furnish a model and an example to all mankind. It is my hope that a Professor of American Studies may contribute to this end by actively participating in the training of the men who are destined to play important parts in British life. I take this step, further, in the hope that similar chairs may be established by other countries, so that in course of civilizing relations, increasingly more or less in the relations with one another, journalism, commerce and other activities may in all civilized countries be carried on in the light of correct and sympathetic knowledge of the problems, difficulties, aspirations and achievements of all civilized peoples.

While I believe that an endowment given in perpetuity should be left as flexible as possible, I suggest that, when the regulations governing the professorship are drawn, it be provided (1) that the incumbent should be an eminent representative of the Universities of Oxford and American selected by a board designated by the Directors of the Association of American Rhodes Scholars, (2) that the term of appointment should not be less than one year and preferably two to five years or even longer, in order that the incumbent may have a term long enough to make his influence felt, (3) that successive appointees should, where possible, represent different subjects or activities and come from different sections of the country, (4) that the incumbent should regard it as his special duty to come into contact, formal and informal, with the groups of students - British, Colonial and American - who are likely to be engaged in significant activities.

In concluding, let me say that I do not forget that an Oxford experience will be immensely stimulating to the American appointee, and that, as successive professors return to America, they will be enabled to make important contributions to our own life, as a result of their residence and activity in this great English University.

Yours sincerely,
This letter is to be taken as an expression of my wishes in establishing this professorship, but, should any of the regulations which I have proposed prove upon trial to be impracticable or inexpedient, I leave to the Directors of the Association of American Rhodes Scholars the power to change such regulations in any way in their discretion in order better to carry out the purposes which I have expressed.

--------

If at any future time the maintenance of such a professorship should, in the opinion of the Directors of the Association of American Rhodes Scholars and of the duly constituted authorities of the University of Oxford, seem no longer advisable, I leave to the Directors of the Association of American Rhodes Scholars the power to use these funds, both principal and interest, in whatever way may seem to them best calculated to fulfill the purpose which I have in mind of increasing the understanding of American problems and achievements among the leaders of British thought.

Aug. 28

Dear Aydelotte;

I am so happy to know that your mother was able to come East with you. I hope she will make a quick complete recovery.

Anne is not yet well. Saturday I am taking her to Toronto to the Wellesley Hospital. I have wired Dr. Morrow, one of the intestinal specialists in Baltimore, to meet me there. Obviously the cause of the trouble remaining to be found; for neither rest now or this diet has much helped. She will probably remain there until the trouble disappears; I shall return here as early in the week, I suppose. It is grimsome business - but then, we are lucky we deserve to seem to concern me. That is something.

I am glad you liked the Eastman letter. I have touched it up a bit, but made no changes of moment. If

Eastman should ask you to visit him, don't mention me in connection with his claim. And indeed, I ask you mind free to offer as to that. We must do the best we can, if the Newhury

Anne asks me to include her

Swarthmore, Pennsylvania

My dear President Aydelotte:

In Mr. Flexner's absence, I have your letter of the third. He and Mrs. Flexner are due on Wednesday, July 11, arriving on the S/S PARIS. He will probably get in touch with you over the Long Distance telephone Wednesday afternoon or evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Flexner will leave New York on the evening of the 15th, reaching Toronto Monday morning, July 16, and will put up for that day at the Hotel Queens, which is near the railroad station, and will leave that evening for Burks Falls. It is pretty difficult to get sleeping accommodations at the last moment - I have therefore ordered lower berths (Toronto to Burks Falls) for the party, so that you and Mrs. Aydelotte need not procure your Pullman tickets. If I receive the tickets in time, I shall mail them to you - if not, Mr. Flexner will deliver them to you when he sees you in Toronto on the 16th.

Very truly yours,

Secretary to Mr. Flexner

Dear Sir,

Sir Otto Beit wishes me to acknowledge and thank you for your letter of May 23rd and to apologize for not writing personally, but unfortunately he has been seriously indisposed ever since the night of the Dinner and confined to his bed.

Sir Otto wishes me to express to you his appreciation of all you have done on behalf of the Rhodes Trust, and his regret that for some time to come he fears he will not be able to take an active interest in its affairs.

Yours faithfully,

Arthur.

Simplification Is Aim

The purpose of the proposed reorganization, which, Dr. Flexner's letter would seem to indicate, will be far-reaching in its results, The World learned yesterday on the best authority, is to simplify and thereby strengthen the present rather loose structure by which the various Rockefeller boards are linked with the central or parent body, the Rockefeller Foundation, and to eliminate the present overlapping of functions of several of these boards with its attendant duplication of effort and expenditure.

The fact that such overlapping existed and the need for a remedy was recognized by trustees of the Foundation and the various boards more than a year ago. The World learned. Two of three committees, composed of trustees of the various Rockefeller agencies, were appointed at that time to consider the problem dispassionately and decide upon the most efficient method of elimination and simplification.

These committees, proceeding in the careful manner typical of the various Rockefeller boards in attacking and finding the solution for a problem of health or education, still are at work and have not yet arrived at any definite conclusion or plan, and the final results of their deliberations are not scheduled to be announced until next November.

Consolidation Unlikely

In the opinion of one of The World's informants, who is very close to the situation, the final reorganization plan hardly will result in the consolidation of all the present agencies into one centralized all-powerful supervising organization, but whether it will cause the number of boards to be reduced, increased or left just as they are, is a matter that cannot be answered with any certainty just now. It was his own opinion that the reorganization may consist merely in increasing the importance of some of the present boards at the expense of others by transferring exclusively to the former functions now performed by both, in this way eliminating the overlapping complained of.

This outline of the situation, as obtained by The World, was confirmed in a general way last evening by Raymond B. Fosdick, attorney and trustee of the Rockefeller Foundation, who said that any announcement at this time would be premature, because of the fact the matter still was under consideration by the various committees, but who agreed the most probable outcome would be the transfer and reassignment of functions among the existing boards so as to eliminate duplication and make more clear cut their lines of demarcation as administrative units.

Dear Aydelotte:

I'm called for the fagous tidings - "Greenmore head". It was a quiet week - bright & warm every day. We continue busy & happy. I hope the voyage home was pleasant.

Aydelotte continues to improve.

I have so many notes to write I shall have to defer detailed report until we forget.
in Canada. But the lecture continues to resemble a recital. I'm sure you will be interested to come back as a daylong lecturer next time. You have accepted, and you will need to stay over here anyway for a while to come on the course.

Anne is in affectionate greetings to the Town Yon.

Always sincerely,

A. X.

NEWARK MARKET PROSPECTS.

MANCHESTER.

(From our Newark Market Correspondent.)

Headquarters will be represented at all the six events at Manchester to-day, and we have a very good chance of winning a race or two.

For the Grove Handicap Plate, Magna Bonum will do duty for Egerton House, and for his age he keeps up his form wonderfully well. Although he has a big weight, it is just the kind of race to suit him, and he may win. He will be our only representative for this race.

In the Northern Stakes, Clare House colt will be tried very highly, as he is the only weight-away all round. He is a useful horse, and we have every reason to think he will be our return to the winners' circle. The band of the Northern Stakes form suggests.

A very promising Selling Waller Handicap could be won by Vesper, if he would only be his true self, which he is too often. He is a good horse, and is the kind of animal that is best left alone.

Our return will be our only representative for this race.

In the Mark, Eastcote, if he holds his form there is nothing very striking in the public form of this horse, but he has been improving for weeks past and I like the way he went a few days ago in a slow gallop with Tetrachord and Yearly and I do not think he has much to do in order to whip the Silver Oread. You will see other runners.

The Boadst Handicap should provide quite a good race, and we have two very promising runners, which will be a big one. Our four runners are very fairly represented.

Grand Glacier, who was the highest and very useful horse last season and, in his only race at Manchester last year, which was well up to five and six furrows nothing in Marsh's string, goes better. We know how good he is, and wonderfully well, and at this distance he is a good horse, and his chance of winning is well thought of. Plantasy has not looked back, and the race at Sandown Park and his chance is obvious. Of our other runners Tettwell cannot be relied on, has never won a race, but I give preferences to Grand Glacier.

The Edam o' th' Height Stakes Gourd will be our only representative. He is very cool and this is the kind of race he might win.

YARMOUTH.

Another special train will leave here with our runners for the final day's racing at Yarmouth, and we have quite a good number of runners to lend a hand. South Lawn Selleing Plate I like the chance of Pandaran a good deal more than that of Lord Delph, who has missed the Manchester Meeting to go for this race.

For the Mile Selling Handicap Hen,apyn, Gold Willow, Old Dromerce, Oxidice, Doulidfuil, Trettwell, and Winterbrook are all of the starters. They are all as well as they can be made, but I have to say that Old Dromerce may prove the host of them.

The Kurcon hand in the Inch Burman Cup, which will be having his first race of the season. He has done quite a lot of good work, and if in the second race he won the Hesp Park Handicap at our July meeting, he would be as well entered for this. He is on quite well at York, and it is wonderful how good horses retain the stamina that goes with distance, and carries the confidence of his trainer. Nevertheless we shall be hard to beat. Etrusco has been highly rated, and many think it is doubtful, and if a good horse can be won the weight of this light horse is a great advantage to our best.

The Bare Plate may go to Rectifier, who has disappointed so far this season.

In the Cesirescope, where Old Dorch or Doris will be run, and he is expected to win this four year old.

In the Sandringham Maiden Plate I like the chance of Gleencom.
OXFORD SUMMER EIGHTS.

BRASENOSE AT THE HEAD OF THE RIVER.

The Oxford Summer Eights ended yesterday, when Bransenoise retained the Headship of the river which they secured in the first day's racing last Thursday.

The order of finishing was as follows:

FIRST DIVISION.

1. Brasenose.
2. Shrewsbury.
3. Wandsworth.
5. Corpus.
8. St. John's.
10. St. John's.

SECOND DIVISION.

1. Vassall.
2. St. Catherine's.
3. Magdalen.
4. Christ Church.
5. University.
7. Corpus.

THIRD DIVISION.

2. Keble.
3. Jesus.
4. Lincoln.
5. Merton.
7. Mansfield.
8. Pembroke.

FOURTH DIVISION.

1. Keble II.
2. Harris.
3. St. John's II.
4. Magdalen II.

PROMISING CREWS.

Our Rowing Correspondent writes:

"Excellent crews were seen in the First Division and, as does not often happen, the five boats finishing first on the river were the same as those in order of merit. Certainly Bransenoise and New College were the best two, and they, together with Magdalen, Christ Church, Exeter, and Magdalen II, were all crews well up to what is expected in Summer Eights. Magdalen Head, and a Head which gained in length during the race, and while not up to Grand winning standard, showed real favourable progress and managed to keep a heat, or, if they prefer to enter for the Ladies' Place, they would require a great deal of beating."

New College, as was anticipated, were also an improving crew throughout the course, and may well be faster than Bransenoise when Henley comes. Magdalen just failed to stay second because they were on the short side and without a strong man. However, these were a few well worthy of their place for neatness and racing qualities.

Christ Church, who should have been the best crew of all, suffered from too many of the faults of the University crew, with plenty of material and plenty of enthusiasm. If only the right material from the crews seen this week is judiciously chosen and fostered, there is no reason why, in a year's time, it should not be at a really high pitch once more.

YESTERDAY'S RACES.

The order of starting in the Fourth Division was:

Keble II, Trinity II, St. John's II, Christ Church III, Bishop's, Brasenose III, Magdalen III.

Keble paddled through. Trinity II, after a struggle, got back by St. John's after passing the Free Ferry. Christ Church III, lost ground with the start, and were bumped by Hertford II, in the Gut.

The order of starting in the Third Division was:

Keble kept well away from Bransenoise, who lost considerably to Worcester II, inify Head. Worcester got within a few feet under the Willows, but Bransenoise did much better from this point and reached home three quarters of a length to the good. University II, who have won on no Edward Hall and

AN EDUCATIONAL KNIGHT ERRANT.

Nearly twenty years ago (1910), there appeared a report which is recognized as one of the paramount influences of that period of reform in medical education. It was made for the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching by Dr. ABRAHAM FLEXNER, and it dealt fearlessly, trenchantly, discerningly with the standards, methods and personnel of the existing American medical schools, "mercilessly castigating" all that was sordid and unwholesome, and holding up to view the ideals toward which they should aspire. This knight errant, whose name was at the command of those who suffered from his criticisms, but, as Dr. LEWELLYS B. BANKS said in his recently published book on "The Young Men and Medicine," "it is now generally recognized that the thorough ventilation of the subject by the report was most timely, and that Mr. FLEXNER'S investigations and recommendations were weighty contributions to the progress of educational reform." This report was, however, but the preface to a chapter of effort to put into effect the recommendations made on paper. Dr. FLEXNER had had the advantage of having at his hand the funds with which to realize some at least of his ideas or to test their validity. He has had the supervision of the expenditure of $50,000,000, given by Mr. ROCKEFELLER, for the advancement of medical education. Several millions of this amount were given to develop a great centre of medical training in the South. Other millions have been devoted here and there: in one place to making possible an experiment in whole-time clinical teaching; in certain others to promoting a specific work, as that in ophthalmology by Dr. WILMER; in still others to recognizing excellent work already done and to helping the institution as at Yale, to realize its great opportunities, and notably in another to assisting (by the amount of $7,500,000) in establishing a metropolitan medical centre by bringing the New York Hospital and the Cornell Medical School into a cooperative relationship.

These are but illustrations of the progress that has been made since he wrote the stirring report which looked toward improved medical education. But his knight-errantry has not been confined to the field of medical education. He has tilted not only against diploma mills but also against the opium traffic. He has dared to say what he thinks about the movies, motors and jazz. He has spoken out plainly about education in high places—attacking certain traditional methods and disciplines, but condemning also the introduction of new courses wholly devoid of educational values just for the sake of adding to numbers or gratifying a vulgar demand. He has had the temerity even to raise the question whether we Americans really value education in spite of the amount we spend for it. He has a bright record of achievement to his credit, and though he has approached the time of official retirement, it is to be hoped that there will be an epilogue, for he is a wholesome challenging force in the world.

KEEPING NEW YORK CLEAN.
April 26/28

Dear Aydelotte:

Yours of April 24 arrived for me while I arrived here on Wednesday last. Mrs. Eyles joined me the same day. She was very sorry to miss you all. Aydelotte, but she had apparently left for San Remo, which I must resist to visit often.

There has been more than usual of the Frogs most helpful. The lectures are at 4, May 5, May 12, & May...
I take the idea of a modern university

American universities

European universities.

I should not want you to take a step out of your way to hear any lectures, but if you are coming to Oxford any way, of course, we shall be glad to have an audience of just three persons (you and leave your wife no excuse!) but I will be the fun! What a lodge lodge, London, Chicago, Berkeley, State Universities, are! Indeed, knew myself surprised — and shocked — and studied them more closely.

Of course we quite understand your shopping with the English, — though we regret it. But we are confidently Counting on Canada this summer for the three of you.

I spent a weekend at Swarthmore before sailing. I observed no sign that the boss had laid down his sword in honor of his departure — the least thing that you are a fool — lead in all your lonely careens on the campus. Ellen is well a happy and her friends have been charming to her.

Always sincerely,

The remain in London another week.
Dear Aydelotte:

Thank you very much for your letter of February 23 from Luxor. I was delighted to have some word of you and your wife and to know that you have got the real Egyptian thrill, as indeed I knew you both would. Breasted has written me that he keenly regretted his inability to put you up at Chicago House, but I am sure that you were enabled to catch the atmosphere of the place and to carry off a lasting memory of historic and aesthetic interest. I have retained the feeling after a lapse of more than two years that my visit to Egypt has enlarged my horizon as nothing else has ever done.

The weeks since you left have passed swiftly. I have drafted two lectures for Oxford - the first entitled The Idea of a Modern University, the second I have called The Modern University in America. I ought to complete it with a third - The European University, or something to that effect, but I don't really know whether I dare do this. Thank you very much indeed for your helpful comments on the original draft of Number 1, which has been a good deal revamped since I gave you the copy without, however, modification of the underlying idea.

I am going it alone now. Mrs. Flexner sailed for Spain on February 25 and is having a delightful time in Seville, Madrid, etc. I am sailing on the Mauretania on April 11. We shall be going up to Oxford about April 27 or 28. Of course, if you and Mrs. Aydelotte come to Oxford, you will stay with us, though I hope you are not going to make the trip for the purpose of hearing a speech that in essence you have already read.
Kerr and Curtis seem to be doing everything to start things right for me. Sir Otto Beit has asked us to dine with him April 26, and Curtis has wired me that I have been elected "a distinguished fellow of All Souls", whatever that may mean. I know full well that the whole thing goes back to you.

With all good wishes and very warm greetings to you and your wife,

Ever sincerely,

A. F.

I. Don't worry about that our record will be asked to do. I think you will be pretty well satisfied.

2. In reply, Columbia asked me to advise him regarding possibilities for getting a fellowship for study as of American Academy at Rome for some government young Latinist teacher in a high school. I informed him as to your enthusiasm. You may learn yet -- or I don't know whether it falls within your suggestion scheme.
August 31, 1927

Dear Aydelotte:

Your telegram gave me great pleasure, and it was only with keen regret that I wired you as follows:

"Many thanks for invitation. Would love to accept it but am in continuous cable correspondence with Europe on important matter. Cannot leave town until matter is arranged. Writing"

As you may know, I had an important negotiation to put through in Europe – indeed that is why I went. I thought everything was clear, but it appears now that there is a technical hitch, and, as the parties to it are scattered from Maine to California, I have simply got to stay on the ground until I can get the kink ironed out. I really don't know how long this will chain me here, but do believe that there is nothing I should rather do than to come and to have a quiet time with you and your family, as you propose.

With all good wishes,

Sincerely yours,
