Dear Sir:

Upon the suggestion of Mr. Louis Bamberger
I take the liberty of addressing you concerning the Institute of Advanced Study.
I hold the degree of A.M. from Columbia University and a Ph.D. from Heidelberg.
My major subject was Germanic languages and literature and since then I have had classes in "Goethe Faust" and modern literature. I have also taught in colleges and would welcome the opportunity to make use of my knowledge in any capacity in your Institute.
I can give you references of German professors, with whom I have been associated.

Sincerely
Louise Wolf

Dear Dr. Wolf:

Returning to the city, I find your letter of the seventh. As the Institute for Advanced Study has only recently been organized, it has not yet been determined as to what fields of study will be pursued. I shall be glad to let you hear from me when the project develops.

Very sincerely yours,

ABRAHAM FLEXNER

Dr. Abraham Flexner,
President of the Institute for Advanced Study,

Princeton, New Jersey.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

I was sorry to learn from your letter of November 4 that there is no opening whatever in the field of medicine at your Institute for Advanced Study. I do not believe that Dr. Dublin has confused you with your brother, Dr. Simon Flexner whose name is very well-known to me, too, from my own epidemiological work.

My field of research is the border field between medicine and sociology and can only be treated scientifically by statistical methods. It is in no case casuistic medicine but of course it is hygiene and epidemiology in connection with sociological and geographical points of view. As I was told you are interested in new branches of science at your institute and dispose of the means for research work I dared to apply to you. Perhaps if there is later on any chance I shall be always glad to be at your disposal.

Very sincerely yours,

Georg Wolff
Georg Wolff, M.D.

Biography and Scientific Work

I was born April 7, 1886 at Sangerhausen in Thüringen (Germany), son of Julius Wolff, merchant, and Laura (Loewenstein), visited high school in Berlin and passed the examination for college in 1906. Then I studied medicine and science in Berlin. In 1911 I passed the medical state examination and received the doctor's degree the next year. After that I worked at the Institute for Infectious Diseases "Robert Koch", in the university clinics of Berlin and Greifswald, and at the Department of Infectious Diseases of the Rudolf-Virchow-Hospital until the beginning of the World War in 1914. During the War I was occupied as medical officer, first in several hospitals for infectious diseases, then for one and a half years at the front, and from 1917 on as head of a bacteriological laboratory in Rumania, working in the campaign against typhus, typhoid, and malaria.

After my return from the War I was engaged as bacteriologist and scientific member of the Health Department of the city of Berlin, publishing a series of bacteriological studies and continuing investigations on the serology of typhus fever. The results appeared as monographs: one, in 1922, in Weichardts Ergebnissen der Hygiene (Theorie, Methodik und Fehlerquellen der Weil-Felix'schen Reaction), and another, in 1923, in Ergebnissen der gesamten Medizin ("Die bakteriologische und serologische Diagnostik der Infektionskrankheiten").

Since 1923 I devoted myself predominantly to studies in social pathology and medical statistics, participating nearly ten years with Dr. Grotjahn's seminary at the University of Berlin until his death. I became his associate professor and substitute until 1933. Besides I did practical work as school medical officer in the health department in the city of Berlin until July 1, 1929 and was then elected head of the medical statistical department after having published a series of statistical and epidemiological investigations. In 1926 the monograph "Der Gang der Tuberkulosesterblichkeit und die Industrialisierung Europas" (course of tuberculosis mortality and industrialism of Europe) was published in the tuberculosis-library (Leipzig). In the same year the League of Nations' health department commissioned me with further studies in tuberculosis epidemiology together with Dr. Greenwood in London, then head of the statistical department of the National Institute for Medical Research. We published in collaboration in 1928 "Methodologisch-statistische Studien zur Epidemiologie der Tuberkulose" in the Zeitschrift für Tuberkulose.

Then I began to investigate statistically the spread of cancer in different countries, social strata, and races. First several investigations of a methodological kind were made to determine if there is a real increase of cancer as many authors, hygienists, clinicians, and statisticians, too, ascertained. It could be proved that, at least in Berlin, there has been no real increase of cancer mortality if standard methods are applied. The increasing absolute figures of cancer deaths are, accordingly, caused in the first place by the aging of the population in almost all countries of western civilization, and in the second, by better diagnosis. The results calculated for Berlin before and after the War were confirmed soon by similar investigations for a good many of the other large cities in Germany and elsewhere with exact statistics of causes of deaths. Further investigations on cancer and well-being, cancer and race were published in different archives, in Germany and abroad (Archiv für sociale Hygiene und Demographie, Deutsche medizinische Wochenschrift 1928 and 1932, Zeitschrift für Krebsforschung 1932 and 1934, Journal of Hygiene 1935, etc.)

On commission by the Prussian Minister for the Welfare of the People and Health I then had to make the voluminous annual report on preventive medicine in the whole of Prussia for the years 1929-1931 (Veröffentlichungen aus dem Gebiet der Medizinal-Verwaltung, Berlin, 1931, 1932, 1933). A further monograph was published on the Theoretical Fundamentals of Social Hygiene and Preventive Medicine (Leipzig, 1929). Several other investigations on the epidemiology of the acute infectious diseases at school and the campaign against them followed.

After that a series of anthropometrical measurements on the growth of school-children during the years 1924-1933 were published. 6000 beginners at school and 4000 school leavers were measured to discuss the question on increased bodily growth of school-children since the War (Lancet, 1935). Those children born in the hunger years of war, 1917-1919, showed a significant deficit in height and weight when entering school, but they were perfectly recovered when leaving school after eight years. A retardation of growth did not persist. The results were first published in a monograph on the after-effect of under-nourishment on the growth of school-children (Die Nachwirkung der Kriegshungerperiode auf das Schulkinderwachstum, Leipzig, 1932).

In the meantime, the former studies on the epidemiology of tuberculosis were continued. A critical analysis of the causes of the decrease of tuberculosis mortality was published in 1930 (Zeitschrift für Tuberkulose) discussing among other topics the effect of natural and artificial vaccination against tuberculosis spread. A certain success of natural saturation by tuberculosis infections or BCG-vaccination could not be found statistically. In the past years I was engaged in studies as to heredity and tuberculosis, eugenics and tuberculosis, especially with regard to the newer results and claims of pedigrees and twin pathology research work. (Not yet published).

I was married in 1919, immediately after the end of the War. Mrs. Ida Wolff who was my assistant in the laboratory work during the War helped me very much in all my later work. We have two children, Renate born in 1920, and Peter born in 1923. On the first of April, 1933 I lost my position in Germany under the Hitler government. Since then I have published several investigations on cancer, tuberculosis, and growth of children, in various scientific periodicals abroad as I no longer had the opportunity of publishing in German papers.

During that time I studied especially the population and vital statistics of the German Jews and published a monograph (in collaboration with Dr. Goldmann) on "Tod und Todesursachen unter den Berliner Juden" (Death and Causes of Death among the Jews in Berlin), on behalf of the Jewish Community in Berlin (Berlin, 1937). I had the opportunity of giving some lectures on my research work at the University of London, in 1935 and 1937, at the suggestion of Dr. Greenwood, Professor in Epidemiology and Vital Statistics, and I am now thankful to Professor Raymond Pearl (Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore) for the opportunity to continue the research work as a Fellow in Biology, 1937-38, under a grant from the Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Physicians. I am now publishing my last investigations on Tuberculosis and Civilization (the different etiological factors in the spread of tuberculosis) in his periodical "Human Biology."

Dear Dr. Wolff:

I have your very kind letter of October 27 and the papers on Tuberculosis and Civilization. I am afraid that Dr. Dublin has confused me with my brother, Simon. I am not myself a physician nor have I any scientific training whatsoever. My brother, Dr. Simon Flexner, was for over thirty years Director of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research but has now retired. I feel deeply for you and for those who, like yourself, have suffered from German stupidity and intolerance, but unfortunately there is nothing in the field of medicine in which I am competent to advise you.

With all good wishes,

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Doctor Flexner:

Inspired by a suggestion of Dr. Louis I. Dublin, Vice-president and Statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York, I have the honor to send you with the same mail a copy of my papers on "Tuberculosis and Civilization" recently published in HUMAN BIOLOGY. These investigations are meant to elucidate the various etiological factors in the epidemiology of tuberculosis and the causes of its decrease; the method applied is statistical-demographic. The investigations have been favorably accepted in America; they were commented by a detailed editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association of September 10, likewise in a leading article in the "Lancet" of September 10, 1938.

The preliminaries of this study took several years. After having published a monograph "Der Gang der Tuberkulosesterblichkeit und die Industrialisierung Europas" in 1926 (Leipzig, Joh. Ambrosius Barth) I was sent to England by the Health Department of the League of Nations for the sake of a thorough study of English conditions. I worked closely together with Dr. Major Greenwood, professor in Epidemiology and Vital statistics at the London University who translated my present papers when I followed an invitation of the University to give some lectures on this subject last year in the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. I should be pleased if you had time enough to go through the papers. I do believe there are some new ideas in the analysis, especially in connection with the population problem.

May I ask if you would be interested in this field of research work? The comparative social and geographical Pathology has scarcely been treated systematically in this country. I should like very much to deal with this problem furthermore in a scientific-numerical way and to begin now with an analogous study on "Cancer and Civilization". The cancer problem is at present discussed so much that I am convinced a representation careful of the quantitative relations between frequency and different social strata, different races, nationalities, occupational and other groups will arouse a still greater interest. To treat the problem in the said way the application of exact statistical-demographic data are necessary, the fundamentals of which are still to be provided to a great extent. Furthermore some refined statistical mathematical methods will have to be applied, so as to prove by theory of probability (χ^2 -methods and others) to what extent the differences are significant or not.

Just now I prepared such an investigation on "Cancer and Race" by widening the third of my lectures in London, which will next appear in the American Journal of Hygiene. May I mention that I published before a series of papers on the statistical and geographical side of the cancer problem. I should like to deal with the total problem of mass diseases from a statistical and sociological standpoint but I cannot realize my plans unless I were given the possibility to work undisturbed for some time. It is for this favor that I dare to address you. I believe that as an Hygienist and Medical Statistician I enjoy quite a good reputation in America as well as in

II Dr. Abraham Flexner, Princeton, N.J.

Germany where I was in charge of the Medical Statistics of Berlin and at the same time lecturer in Social Pathology and Preventive Medicine at the University until 1933. My last work in Berlin after this time was a monograph on "Tod und Todesursachen unter den Berliner Juden" (on behalf of the Berlin Jewish Community, in collaboration with Dr. Goldmann, Berlin 1937). Should you be inclined to read it I would be glad to send you a copy. This is a scientific work demonstrating in a similar way with standardized statistical methods the differences between both of the groups concerned according to the International List of Causes of Death.

I am now working in this department of Dr. Raymond Pearl. I have been given a grant by the Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Physicians for a year. As the grant will expire next I should thank you with all my heart if you would help me to find a place to continue research work and at the same time to support my family. I have two children, a girl of eighteen, and a boy of fifteen, both of whom were the best pupils at highschool in Berlin and are now glad to be in this country, after all the troubles in Germany.

For further information I enclose a short biography on my former scientific work in Germany. Moreover, I am sure Dr. Pearl as well as Dr. Dublin and Dr. Greenwood (London School of Hygiene) would give you any information you might desire. Hoping you will forgive me for troubling you I need not emphasize how grateful I should be if you would find an opening for my further work on social and geographical Pathology at your Institute for Advanced Study.

Very sincerely yours,

Georg Wolff

Dear Mr. Flexner:

When I recently mentioned to Dr. Fabian Franklin my interest in the new plan for an institute of research and advanced instruction, and consulted him about the right mode of approach to the subject, he gave without hesitancy his opinion that I ought to speak to you if you should be willing. Quite unsolicited he then kindly offered to write to you to see.

He now tells me that you are willing to give me some time during the coming week. Subject only to teaching engagements on Monday and Thursday afternoon and evening (till 8.30), Friday afternoon (till 4.30), and Saturday morning, I should be very happy to call on you at your convenience. Perhaps you will allow me to telephone on Monday morning to make an appointment.

With much appreciation, I am

Sincerely yours

Dear Dr. Flexner:

I am interested in Werner Hagemann. He seems an extraordinarily attractive man. He is lecturing over here in the New ~~York~~ School of Social Research and I wonder if by any chance you were thinking of doing anything in his speciality of, shall we say, town planning with your Foundation for Advanced Study? I should be delighted to have a chat with you on any subject and particularly because I had the pleasure of meeting your brother and sister at Mt. Kisco this summer and had little difficulty in recognizing the family characteristic charm.

Very truly yours,

L. Hollingsworth Wood

Dear Mr. Wood:

Many thanks for your kind note about Professor Hagemann, of whom I have already heard from several of his friends. We are not likely to take up the subject of town planning in the Institute for Advanced Study. I wonder if you know that Harvard has a department of this kind, with which it might well be worth his while to get in touch.

Though we have been very happy at Princeton, we do miss the opportunity to see from time to time such persons as you yourself are. I should like to talk with you about many things - most of all, perhaps, about Howard University, to which I have been giving more time than I ought during the last few years. How would you like to become one of its Trustees? It can only be made a success if a man of your type is brought into its management, and I feel more and more that the time is near at hand when I must withdraw.

From a number of sources I understand that the Institute is considering the matter of archaeological research. I happen to be in possession of a few facts which I would very much like to discuss with you. These facts may have come to your attention, but knowing Professor Morey, I doubt if they have been mentioned to you. I had hoped that an opportunity might present itself when I could mention these matters to you, but lacking the opportunity I am now seeking an appointment directly. Dear Miss Woodruff:

I have your note of February 7. Though the Trustees of the Institute for Advanced Study have considered the possibilities of work in the field of archaeology and art, they have also considered similar possibilities in other directions without arriving at any conclusion. In whatever field the Institute should cooperate with the University, I feel that it would be correct for me to pursue the policy which has been pursued in the field of mathematics, namely, to restrict my communications to the President of the University, the Dean of the Graduate School, and the head of the department in question. If therefore any person connected with any department of the University has information that might be useful to me, the President, Dean Eisenhart, and I agreed that it should invariably reach me through the departmental head.

Dear Mr. Woodward:

I am sending you under separate cover Official Bulletin, No. 4, and the library copy LD 906 9, which you were kind enough to let me see. I should think this exactly the wrong way to organize a university. At any rate, in this new Institute I am proceeding in a precisely opposite fashion, planning and organizing nothing, but trying to get hold of a few fertile and able persons in a few lines of work and hoping that each of them may be a nucleus from which in the slow processes of time something sound may develop. A hundred years hence it will be interesting for some historian of education to pass judgment on these two opposite methods of development.

Dear Wriston:

I have just been talking with Earle about the plans for the work of your Committee, and I am delighted at the progress you are making. I need not say that we are prepared here, and I personally am prepared, to do anything to further the work and to save everybody concern, time, and trouble in making it effective.

In this connection, I want to pass on to you in confidence one remark which Earle made to me. He said in discussing some step (I do not exactly know what) that he felt he had been tactless in urging his views on you and might conceivably have hurt your feelings. Certainly, Earle holds you in the greatest respect and affection, and I thought I would just emphasize that point to you in the interest of the harmonious working of the whole group.

The whole job is a big responsibility thrust upon Earle before he could quite get out from under the things he is carrying this year here, and I expect that you find yourself somewhat in the same position and will know how he is placed.

I hope the carrying out of your plans next year will make it necessary for you to come frequently to Princeton yourself, and I want to say that there will always be a bed for you in our house when you find it possible to occupy it.

The enclosed letter from Mr. Wynne arrived this morning just as I was getting ready to leave. The letter itself sounds interesting and in line with the sort of activity we might undertake. I called up Walton Hamilton, accordingly, to get his judgment of the individual. He said that Dr. Wynne worked primarily with Dr. Borchard at law school and was the sort of person that Borchard would rate very highly. That he was extremely good at gathering materials, putting them together and drawing conclusions from them. Mr. Hamilton himself did not think that he exhibited qualifications of great analysis or insight and would rate him average or medium rather than high.

Under the circumstances, probably a kind note of acknowledgment turning him down at the same time would be best.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

Your kind note of May 16 arrived while I was temporarily away from home and has just reached me. The attached memorandum furnishes details as to my education, experience and publications. I shall of course be glad to supplement this information in any way you may desire.

If it were made possible for me to spend the coming year at the School of Economics and Politics I should work mainly in the field of international economics and finance, for investigations in which Princeton possesses, I believe, unusually good facilities. During the four years I was attached to the Yale Law School as a research associate professor I studied the foreign debt history of practically all the countries of Europe and Latin America which at some time or other defaulted on their external public obligations. I have written up the debt histories of several of these countries and these histories will constitute a large part of a forthcoming work on "State Insolvencies" to be published under the joint authorship of Dr. E. M. Borchard, Professor of International Law at Yale, and myself. Much of the material embodied in these "case histories" had been ^{previously} unexplored and was gathered by me in Europe, principally in London, where I spent the first two years of my service as a research member of the Yale staff. The funds for the "State Insolvency" investigation were provided, I may add, by the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

Part of the work I should like to do at the Institute arises out of these recent investigations. I have in mind certain topics which lend themselves to treatment in articles more fully and along somewhat broader lines than will be possible in the book. Among these I may mention:

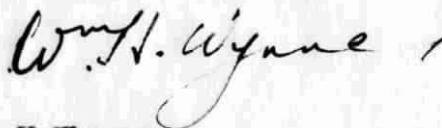

- (a) The League Loans: A Study in Financial Supervision by the League of Nations;
 - (b) An Examination of the Feasibility of Proposed International Controls over Foreign Investment;
- Other possible papers deal with older matters, for example, The Chile-Peruvian War and the Peruvian Foreign Bondholders.

Apart from such studies I am anxious to make progress with a comprehensive work on "International Economic Relations" for which I believe there is room and need. This projected work will, I hope, deal analytically and not merely descriptively with contemporary problems arising out of the restrictions on the international flow of capital, goods and labor and will also give some account of ^{certain} ~~the same~~ aspects of the work of the principal bodies which concern themselves with ~~the work~~ international economic questions. It is doubtful whether I could complete such a work within the year but I should hope to make

The Secretary,
Institute for Advanced Study,
Princeton, N.Y.

Dear Sir:

I am anxious to learn whether there is any possibility of any fellowships with a reasonable stipend being offered for this coming year in the new School of Economics and Politics at the Institute.

I am an experienced teacher, writer and researcher in the fields of international economics and finance, and money and banking. My Ph.D degree is from Cambridge University, England; I have also a law degree. Prior to coming to the University of California I held appointments in turn at Queen's University, Canada; Williams College, Mass.; Yale University. I have also taught for short periods at New York University and the University of Michigan.

This coming year I should like, if possible, to devote to research and writing at the Institute, but, as I am a married man, it will be impracticable for me to do so without a stipend as I shall not be receiving a salary from the university. Kindly let me know ~~whether~~ what opportunities, if any, the Institute may be able to offer for the coming year to one in my position. I shall, of course, be happy to send you full particulars as to my qualifications, appointments, publications, references, etc.

Very truly yours,

Wm. H. Wynne

Dear Miss Lawrence:

Miss Miller tells me that you inquired about women members of the Institute. We have had one or two women members practically every year since the beginning of the Institute. There have been fourteen women members thus far. Of these, ten have been mathematicians and four humanists. If you wish more detailed information about them I shall be glad to supply it.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mrs. Burrill:

I am sending you herewith a copy of the mimeographed list of our staff and members for the present academic year. I have checked what seem to me the only possible new members of the Women's College Club and should like to add a few words of comment.

Dr. Czeczowiczka and Dr. Shiffer have been assistants, to Professor Long, who is just about to go in the service, and there is some question as to whether these men and their wives will remain in Princeton.

Miss Dean is on leave from Mt. Holyoke and will be spending the greater part of the present academic year at the Institute. Since she has not yet arrived, we do not have a residence address for her.

Dr. Frankl's wife has come to Princeton within the past year.

Professor and Mrs. Renssalaer Lee have been in Princeton at various times during the past few years and you may already have been in touch with Mrs. Lee. They were here a good part of last year.

Yours sincerely,

STATEMENT OF AIMS

Women's International League for Peace and Freedom is starting on a Community Audit, primarily as a service to our children growing up in this community.

Living in a psychologically healthy community is fully as important as living in a physically healthy one. Since our children are growing up in a world of emerging black, brown and yellow cultures, we would like them to at least "start even" by being unburdened by a system of prejudiced nineteenth century attitudes. Transportation has made the world smaller. Our children will jet to strange countries where they will work and live with people of all races and colors in positions of leadership and responsibility. We will need to prepare them for the image of the black man as something other than the bus boy or elevator operator.

Whatever our own out-moded prejudices may be as adults, we want more intellectual freedom for our children.

This survey is to determine trouble spots (and healthy signs) for carefully considered future action.

Dear Mr. Oppenheimer:

The New Jersey Branch of the Women's League of the United Synagogue of America has appointed me chairman of College Student activities.

We wish to be of assistance to the students enrolled in your institution who profess the Jewish faith.

We have found that many of our young men and women greatly appreciate an invitation to home hospitality on the Sabbath and our holidays. We also know that many of our Jewish homes would gladly welcome students but do not always know how to contact them.

You can be of great assistance to us by furnishing me with a list of all Jewish students enrolled in your school.

We would so much appreciate your cooperation. May I hope to hear from you soon?

Very truly yours,

Mrs. Benjamin Pinkus

Dear Mr. Wong:

I have shown your letter of May 28 and the accompanying application to the members of our School of Mathematics who have considered it most sympathetically. We should be most happy to have you as a member of the Institute, but I regret to say that it is impossible for us to find you any financial help. Our funds for stipends were all allotted many months ago, and there is nothing more available for the academic year, 1941-1942.

With many regrets that we cannot find this assistance for you, I am

Princeton, New Jersey.

Dear Sir,

Enclosed you will find an application for admission to the Insitutue. I am holding a "Boxer Indemnity Funds Scholarship", which will end next September, and I desire to continue my study in Princeton for the following academic year. Will you be kind enough to consider whether it is possible or not to let me have some financial help from the Institute, thus enabling me to carry out this plan? I left Princeton at the beginning of this month, and I am now doing my research work at M. I. T. (as a "guest") under Prof. D. J. Struik.

Under separate cover I am sending you reprints of my papers so far published.

With many thanks,

Yours respectfully,

I have your letter requesting information about the Institute for Advanced Study and am sending you under separate cover a copy of our latest bulletin.

If you will let us know just what your plan of study is we can then determine whether you would find here such facilities as would justify your coming to the Institute.

Dear Mrs. Hobson:

Just a brief note to let you know that I have had a wire from Mr. Wood confirming that he will be in Princeton on Thursday and that the 2 p.m. appointment with Dr. Oppenheimer will suit him splendidly.

Should any crisis arise to delay his flight back from California I will call you up immediately. But it looks as if he has ample time in hand to allow for any conceivable delays and still be in Princeton on Thursday afternoon.

Sincerely yours,

John R. B. Brett-Smith

Gavrilovic Calls Schools' Scroll Climax of Visit

Says He Is Happy to Find Pupils Alive to Their Role In Building World Amity

To fourteen-year-old Dorothy J. Forman, Bronx schoolgirl daughter of a bank guard, was reserved the privilege of making one of the deepest impressions of his American trip on Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic of the United Nations Organization.

The chairman of the U. N. O. site selection committee, on the eve of his departure for London, declared yesterday that Miss Forman's presentation of a scroll from New York's school children was "one of the finest experiences I have had during my stay in this country."

The statement echoed Dr. Gavrilovic's words at the time the scroll was presented. "The best site of all for the United Nations," he said, "would be in the hearts and minds of the school children of the world."

Miss Forman, when she heard yesterday about the Yugoslav statesman's praise, became, she said, "as excited as when I presented the scroll."

Scroll Is on Way to London

The husky blonde, blue-eyed daughter of Scotch-born Mr. and Mrs. Robert Forman, of 375 East 184th Street, was graduated Wednesday from Grade 9-B at Public School 115, Ryer Avenue and East 183d Street. This week she will enter Theodore Roosevelt High School in the Bronx to begin a secretarial course. Her father is employed by the Chemical Bank and Trust Company, 165 Broadway.

She was chosen to make the scroll presentation by Miss Alice Danaher, school principal, after an informal competition among four pupils. The ceremony took place Jan. 25 in the office of Dr. John E. Wade, superintendent of schools, at 110 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, where, before members of the U. N. O. committee, school officials and five other pupils representing the city's school children, the Bronx girl first read the scroll to Dr. Gavrilovic, then presented it to him.

The embossed document now is on its way to London. Much of its wording was Miss Forman's, but the sum represented the combined work of a number of pupils at Public School 115.

"We saw our fathers and brothers go off to battle," the scroll said in part.

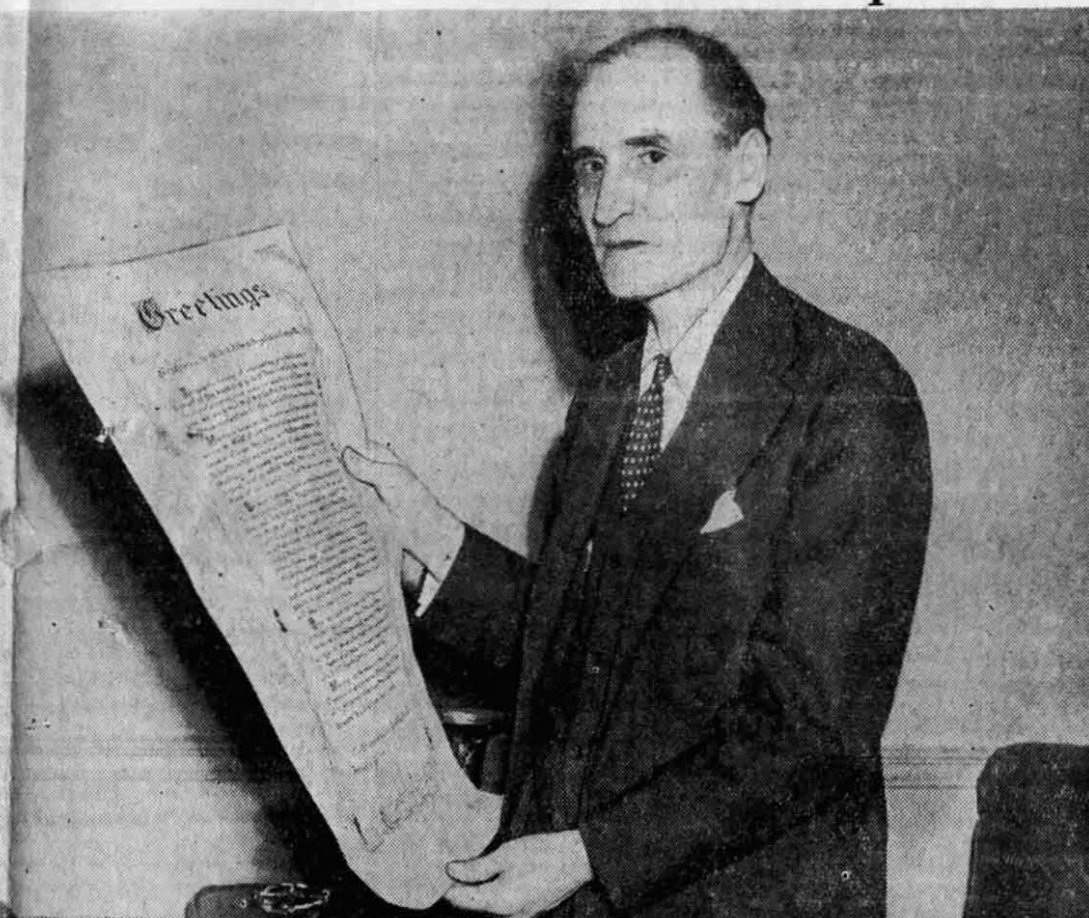

"We are conscious of the hardship, torture and sudden death that are war. Out of the chaos of our world, we feel the need of a lasting peace."

"The foundation has been laid, but it will be our continuing responsibility to build and strengthen the structure which

Gavrilovic Sees U.N.O.'s Home As World Mecca

Envisions Resplendent City of Peace and Light Over 40 to 50 Square Miles

By Robert J. Donovan

The permanent headquarters of the United Nations Organization was visualized yesterday by Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, chairman of the U. N. O. site-selecting committee, as a resplendent city studded with magnificent buildings, monuments and parks and standing for centuries to come as a mecca for people from all corners of the earth.

As Washington, in the nineteenth century, rose up out of the fields along the Potomac to become the capital of the United States, so, Dr. Gavrilovic said, the U. N. O. headquarters will rise to become the capital of the world—a city of perhaps forty-two square miles, with its own airport, railroad station, hotels, shops, utilities and radio and television station.

Dr. Gavrilovic's description would apply whether the U. N. O. finally accepts the committee's recommendation that the North Stamford-Greenwich area of Connecticut and Westchester County be chosen as site of the permanent headquarters or whether it selects one of the three other sites on which the committee will submit a report. These latter include areas in the Blue Hills and the North Shore sections of Massachusetts and at Hyde Park, N. Y.

No Definite Plans Yet

No definite plans have been prepared yet for the world capital, but a great deal of thought is being given to the project, Dr. Gavrilovic explained in an interview at the Waldorf-Astoria.

"It will be an enormous enterprise," he said. "Such a place will surely become a mecca where thousands of people—pilgrims—will flock from all over the globe to see, to learn, to draw inspiration."

"The idea which we have in mind is not the immediate future but to look far ahead—fifty, sixty, 500 years or more—and we expect it will grow into something very big. We are making our plans on that basis."

When construction of the new center would begin Dr. Gavrilovic was unable to say. Since the site-selecting committee has suggested that the interim headquarters in New York would be in existence for about five years, it was presumed that some permanent facilities might be completed by around 1951. Dr. Gavrilovic said that an official name for the new world capital has not yet been decided upon.

The world capital will have to be large, though not so large as Washington, as Dr. Gavrilovic visualizes it, because of the size of

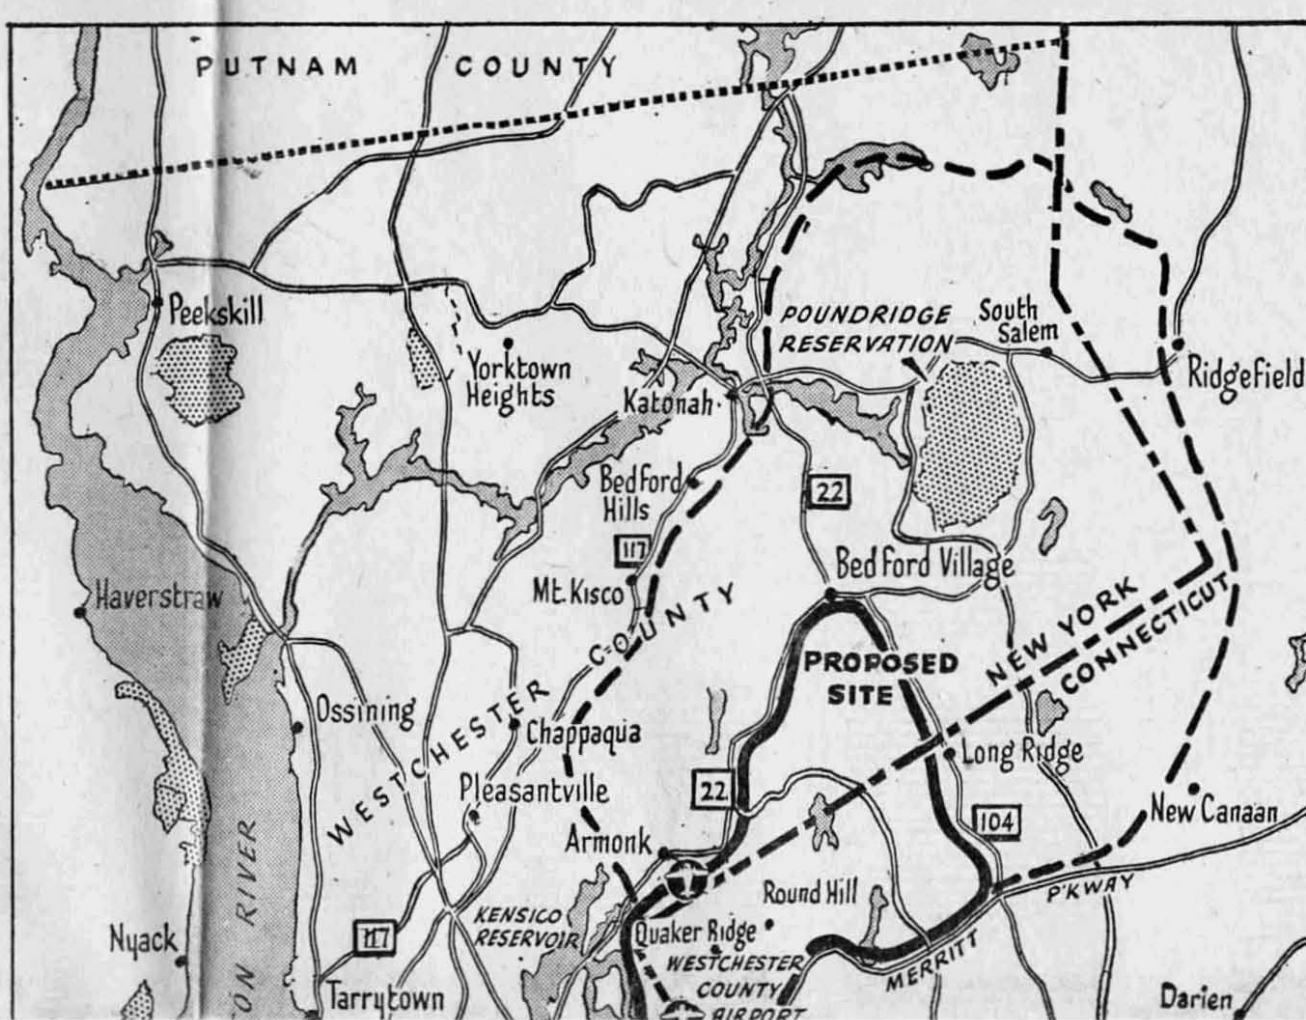

Greetings

Gentlemen of the United Nations Organization Committee

I have the honor of welcoming you here today in behalf of the boys and girls of New York City. We realize the importance of your mission and the significance of your goal. We are proud that the United States has been chosen as the permanent site for the United Nations Organization.

We have been made conscious of the confused world we live in. Most of our school days have been spent in the shadow of war. We saw our fathers and brothers go off to battle, while we remained at home to help in whatever small way we could. We are conscious of the hardship, torture, and sudden death that are war. Out of the chaos of our world, we feel the need for a lasting peace.

In our schoolwork we have learned of the purposes for which the United Nations Organization has been created. We have studied about the peoples of other countries so that we may understand them better. In our daily living we practice the principles of friendship, unselfishness, and cooperation. It is our hope that the United Nations Organization may succeed in maintaining international peace and security, in developing friendly relations among nations and in establishing a basis of cooperation for solving international problems. The foundation has been laid, but it will be our continuing responsibility to build and strengthen the structure which

Text of the Statement
 "We pray for the success of the United Nations Organization and pledge our efforts to the fulfillment of its purposes in the hope that we may all look forward to a bright and happy world."

Dr. Gavrilovic recalled the ceremony in a prepared statement discussing his reaction to his experiences in this country during the site-selection tour. The statement follows:

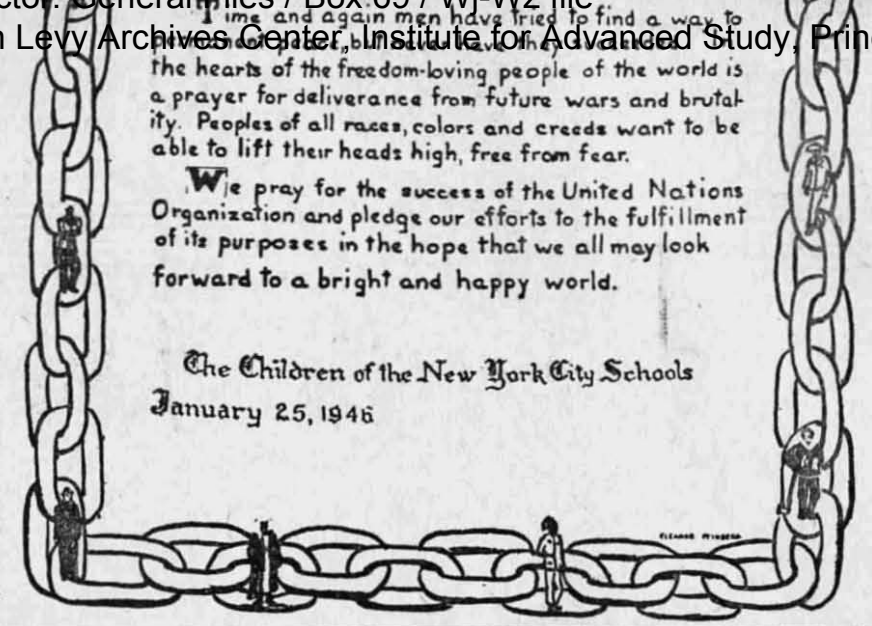

"One of the finest experiences I have had during my stay in this country as a chairman of the United Nations committee on the site, was my reception by the Board of Education of the City of New York on Friday, Jan. 25. At that meeting, which was presided over by Dr. John Wade, superintendent of the New York City schools, I was presented with a scroll on behalf of nearly 1,000,000 children in the school system of the City of New York, containing a pledge that these children will use their efforts to the fulfillment of the purposes of the United Nations Organization.

"The presentation was made beautifully by a young schoolgirl, Miss Dorothy Forman. I was deeply impressed, particularly as we are building the United Nations Organization not for one, but for many generations. The authors of the Charter of the United Nations did not only think of our generation, which has suffered so much from the ravages of war, but of the future generations, which we should save from new recurrences of such human tragedy. The co-operation of the coming generations is, therefore, vital in this task, and I was so happy to see that all these numerous children in the New York area are fully alive to the possibilities which youth has to build friendship and unity throughout the world.

Finds Support for U. N. O.
 "I feel sure that the same feeling exists in the hearts of all children everywhere. There is no doubt in my mind that millions of children living in areas which have been devastated by war will gladly pledge themselves to world friendship and work for the same ideals. I promised to present the pledge of the New York students to the knowledge of the appropriate body of the United Nations. "During all these four weeks in the United States I felt how strong is the determination of the American people to make the United Nations succeed.
 "I sensed everywhere a powerful current of public opinion working for this success. The idea of world friendship is growing everywhere. There is at present a perfect opportunity to make sure a general movement for world friendship.
 "At a luncheon of the Inter-Racial Press of America at the Metropolitan Club on Jan. 28, this opportunity was strongly manifested. I had the privilege of adthe hearts of the freedom-loving people of the world is a prayer for deliverance from future wars and brutality. Peoples of all races, colors and creeds want to be able to lift their heads high, free from fear.

 We pray for the success of the United Nations Organization and pledge our efforts to the fulfillment of its purposes in the hope that we all may look forward to a bright and happy world.

end of my present mission very satisfied, indeed. This was the first mission the United Nations Organization has sent out. It was almost a test case, and it was a success. We had the honor to be the vanguard of the great capitol of the world which we are creating on the friendly and hospitable American soil.
 "We must leave it to you, the American public, to judge how well we executed our mission, but I want to say to you that the part you played in our mission was just perfect. I admired your co-operation and friendliness, and I am convinced that its continuation will be a great contribution to the success of the United Nations.
 "All these demonstrations of the students, the schools, the press, the radio and the newsreel make me very hopeful, indeed. World friendship will make a success of the United Nations. World friendship, on which this success depends, is spreading, but this is not enough. Let us all pledge that we all will work very hard for it."

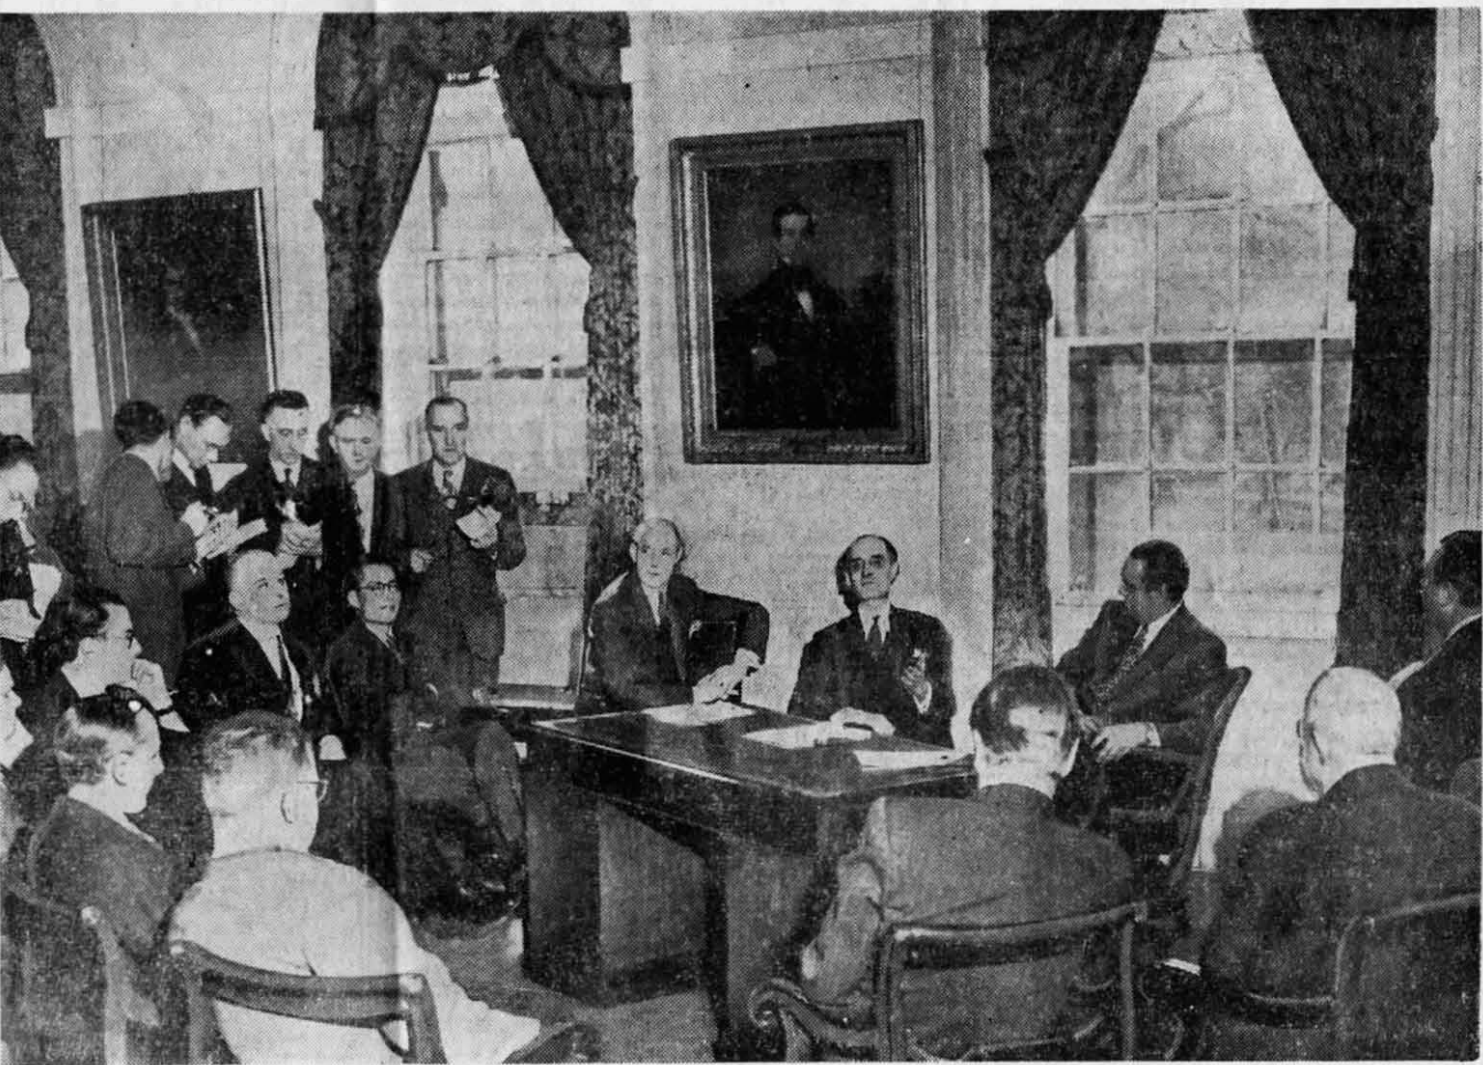

Gov. Tobin to Back Decision

Says Massachusetts Will Support Any Site U. N. O. Picks
 BOSTON, Feb. 2 (AP).—Governor Maurice J. Tobin, informed that the United Nations site-selection committee had recommended a Connecticut area for the permanent home and New York for the interim location, said today Massachusetts would support any site finally chosen.
 "I know," he said, "that the committee representing U. N. O. has worked arduously to arrive at the best possible decision. The most important consideration is the selection of a site that will best serve humanity and the peace of the world. I am pleased that two Massachusetts sites are still under consideration."

The U. N. O. is an organization of many parts, including the General Assembly, Security Council, Secretariat of 2,000 persons, International Court of Justice, Economic and Social Council, Atomic Energy Commission, Regional Security Arrangements and Agencies and Military Staff Committee.
 Not only must space be found for these agencies and their personnel, but many for kindred agencies, such, for example, as the United Nations Education, Scientific Cultural Organization, the International Trade Organization, United Nations Organization for Food and Agriculture, United Nations Health Organization, International Monetary Fund, International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the International Civil Aviation Organization.

Cites Many Services

"Here," Dr. Gavrilovic said, "is why we have to have a site as large as forty or fifty square miles:
 "1. There is the General Assembly for which we will have to have assembly rooms, committee rooms, offices, press facilities.
 "2. There is the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, Trusteeship Council, etc. They all have to have their offices and meeting places and everything else they need.
 "3. The Military Staff Committee has to have rooms and offices.
 "4. For the permanent secretariat, of at present 2,200, there will have to be offices, libraries and restaurants.
 "5. Special agencies must have offices and buildings.
 "6. Foreign embassies. Fifty-one nations now belong to U. N. O. The number may reach sixty. Very likely the nations will all want to have houses of their own there.
 "7. We will have to have an airport, radio station, possibly television, possibly a railroad station.
 "And all these people mentioned will have to be housed. A General Assembly meeting alone will bring in 5,000 people. There will have to be residences, hotels, shops. And the thousands of visitors! They will have to be accommodated."
 Concluding his description of the world capital, Dr. Gavrilovic said:
 "Our idea is that this development must maintain its identity and must not be engulfed by a growing city. Accordingly, we have to provide a buffer in the way of belts of landscaping against encroachment from outside communities."
Levant Looms as Issue
 LONDON, Feb. 2 (AP).—Another international political issue loomed tonight before the United Nations Security Council, as Faris al Khoury, chief Syrian delegate to the United Nations, said he intended to appeal to the Security Council Monday against the presence of French and British troops in the Levant.

Dear Sir,

Work is about to begin on the 1960/61 edition of THE WORLD OF LEARNING and it is my earnest hope that this year you will be able to revise the attached material and return it to me. Last year no reply was received from your university which means that your entry in the current edition is out-of-date. I know you would wish us to print the latest facts about your university and certainly it is my desire to do this, thereby helping to maintain THE WORLD OF LEARNING'S reputation for fullness and accuracy. So may I look forward to hearing from you?

One point about professors: we print the names of all FULL professors (and the names of the subjects they teach) but not of assistant or associate professors. I would therefore be most grateful if you would compile your list in this way.

It would also be a great help if you could let me have a copy of your latest calendar or catalogue.

Thank you very much in anticipation of your kind help and co-operation.

Yours sincerely,

J.A. Bunn,
Editor.

Some Press Reviews

"Within this volume there is to be found much information that can otherwise only be assembled by laborious research."—The Economist, London, England.

"This valuable reference book has been compiled upon an admirably efficient plan."—The Scotsman, Glasgow, Scotland.

". . . it is recommended for large public, university and society libraries which require such material in a separate volume."—Subscription Books Bulletin (American Library Association), Chicago, Ill.

"Altogether a very useful reference book for cultural and educational organisations." — The Cape Times, Cape Town, South Africa.

"The World of Learning should prove a useful addition to the reference libraries of universities and colleges." — South China Morning Post, Hong Kong.

Although there is NO OBLIGATION WHATEVER to purchase the volume, we are enclosing an order form for your convenience in case you would like us to reserve a copy for you.

"The importance of such a guide need not be stressed; it will satisfy a long-felt need in educational circles all over the world."—Egyptian Bulletin, London, England.

". . . excels its predecessor in size and comprehensiveness as a work of reference on the educational, scientific, and cultural institutions of the world." — Manchester Guardian, Manchester, England.

"The editors have solved the problem of giving orderly presentation to comprehensive information."—Birmingham Post, Birmingham, England.

"The volume runs to nearly 850 large pages and is a monumental example of collection of information and careful editing and arrangement. . . . This is certainly a work of reference which deserves a cordial welcome."—The Quarterly Review.

February 1949

DEAR SIR,

In June 1948 we published the second edition of The World of Learning—a guide to academic institutions throughout the world. The response to the first two editions encourages us to believe that this volume does meet a long-felt need for an international handbook of universities and other educational and cultural bodies.

We are planning to publish a THIRD EDITION, revised and augmented, in the autumn, and we invite your collaboration in helping us to ensure that the entry in respect to your university or college is accurate and complete.

The information which we require is indicated overleaf. You will observe that we publish the names of the principal officers, of the Deans of Faculties, and of Full Professors, but only the numbers of the remaining teaching staff. If possible, we would like to receive with the completed questionnaire a copy of your calendar or year book.

May we say, in conclusion, how much we appreciate the co-operation of the hundreds of university officials in all parts of the world who supplied us with information for inclusion in the first two editions. Without that co-operation the compilation of the volume could not have been attempted. May we also add that we welcome suggestions for improving the usefulness of The World of Learning.

Yours faithfully,

Dear Madam

Thank you for your letter of May 11th.

There is a little misapprehension as we sent a questionnaire with a paste up of the previous entry & this was returned to us with some added information & 2 booklets

a Bulletin No 1 dated 1930 to - - - 12 - - - 1946.

These did not add much to our information & we think the best thing now is for you to fill in details on the enclosed q. forms & then we can revise & extend our entry in accord with information you supply.

Dear Mr. Bacon:

The Institute for Advanced Study has received the order form for the 1949 edition of the World of Learning. We notice that the information appearing in the 1948 edition is not up to date, and since we have not received a data sheet to fill in for the new edition, I wonder if you could have this sent to us. We would like to have accurate information about the Institute appearing in the volume.

Yours sincerely,

The International Who's Who

TWELFTH EDITION

1948

THE INTERNATIONAL WHO'S WHO, now in its twelfth year, provides the facts about the men who lead the world in every sphere of human activity. In almost a thousand pages of text can be found the essential biographical information about some 15,000 men and women—political leaders and poets, atomic experts and artists, sociologists and soldiers, business men and bishops, and so on.

With the improvement in communications it has been possible to revise still more biographical notices during the past year, and several hundred new names will be added to the twelfth edition.

The International Who's Who meets the need for concise, accurate and up-to-date information about the world's most eminent living personalities. No learned society, scientific institute, library or individual with international contacts or interests can afford not to possess a copy.

DEAR SIR,

In January 1947 we published the first edition of The World of Learning—a guide to academic institutions throughout the world. The response to the first edition encourages us to believe that this volume does meet a long-felt need for an international handbook of universities and other educational and cultural bodies.

We are planning to publish, at the beginning of 1948, a revised and augmented edition which will be even more representative of the intellectual life of the several countries of the world. We should like to include in this edition details of your institution, and we should be grateful if you would complete the attached form and return it to us as soon as possible.

May we say, in conclusion, how greatly we appreciate the co-operation of the thousands of officials in all parts of the world who have so readily supplied us with information without which the compilation of the first edition could not have been attempted. The Editors welcome suggestions for improving the usefulness of The World of Learning, and wish to thank the many correspondents who have already sent in suggestions.

SECOND EDITION

The World of Learning

EUROPA PUBLICATIONS LIMITED, LONDON

Some Press Opinions

- Biologia, U.S.A.:* "One of the most important current contributions towards international intellectual co-operation."
- Birmingham Post:* "The editors have solved the problem of giving orderly presentation to comprehensive information."
- The Booklist, U.S.A.:* "A valuable compilation of information about cultural organisations throughout the world."
- The Cape Times:* "Altogether a very useful reference book for cultural and educational organisations."
- Chemical Products:* "This is a reference book which all scientists and librarians will be eager to acquire . . . an excellent job."
- The Economist:* "Within this volume there is to be found much information that can otherwise only be assembled by laborious research."
- Egyptian Bulletin:* "The importance of such a guide need not be stressed; it will satisfy a long-felt need in educational circles all over the world."
- Hermes:* "The work is surprisingly comprehensive and serves to emphasise the unity of academic life and the vigour of the search for truth among the learned men of the world."
- The Journal of Documentation:* "The World of Learning' . . . supplies a great want."
- International Affairs:* "A very useful reference book."
- Library World Review:* "A most necessary acquisition to all libraries and institutions."
- The Manchester Guardian:* ". . . excels its predecessor in size and comprehensiveness as a work of reference on the educational, scientific, and cultural institutions of the world."
- Plant Breeding Abstracts, Cambridge:* "Supplies a serious need in the task of practical international co-operation."
- Scotsman:* "After the dislocations of war-time, the value of such a reference book, ample in scope, detailed in its data, and admirably planned, needs no stressing."
- South China Morning Post:* "The World of Learning' should prove a useful addition to the reference libraries of universities and colleges."
- Subscription Books Bulletin, U.S.A.:* "The work is adequate and reliable . . . it is recommended for large public, university and society libraries which require such material in a separate volume."
- Sudan Herald:* "Fills a long-felt need for comprehensive information concerning cultural organisations throughout the world."

EUROPA PUBLICATIONS LIMITED
39 BEDFORD SQUARE, LONDON, W.C.1

EVERY STATESMAN stresses the importance of education, for he knows that on the excellence of the educational system to-day depend the achievements of to-morrow. No educational system, however, can exist apart from its universities, its training colleges, its cultural institutions, and, of course, the men and women who devote themselves to organising, teaching, and research.

In compiling THE WORLD OF LEARNING the editors have sought to provide, in a compact form, a guide to the academic life in every country. Each country, of course, has its own works of reference, some of which are devoted especially to a particular branch of knowledge, but THE WORLD OF LEARNING presents, in one volume, a wealth of detail concerning universities and colleges, learned societies, scientific institutions, literary associations, libraries, museums and art collections in every country in the world; the names of the professors are given for each university and for many other educational institutions; and the names of librarians, curators of museums, and distinguished members of the most prominent learned and artistic societies in each country are all to be found in this new work.

THE WORLD OF LEARNING, therefore, aims at being a live work of reference, compact yet comprehensive, exhaustive but concise.

It is felt that this publication will enable the academic workers of the world to maintain contact more easily with each other. The struggle against ignorance is unending, and the publishers feel that THE WORLD OF LEARNING will act as an important link between the forces of progress everywhere.

The addition of THE WORLD OF LEARNING to your library will make it possible for you to see at a glance the names and addresses of your distant colleagues in your own field of learning, and to have immediately available in your own library answers to questions which otherwise could only be obtained with much trouble and research.

For example: Who is the professor of Physics in the University of Minnesota? In what year was the University of Padua founded? How many members are there of the Royal Society? How many volumes are there in the library of the Smithsonian Institution? How many women students are there at the Conservatoire National, Paris? Is there a professor of Slavonic Languages at the University of Oslo? Who is the president of Roosevelt College of Chicago? What institute of Archæology was recently established in Ankara? Has Southern Rhodesia any scientific institutions? Who is the professor of Forensic Medicine in the University of Chile? Is there a department of Chemical Technology at the University of Bombay?

The four specimen pages from THE WORLD OF LEARNING 1948 which are inset show how extensively academic information has been collated and the general plan which has been followed throughout the volume.

The enclosed ORDER FORM will enable you to purchase this new work of reference.

Dear Mrs. Hamilton:

Thank you for your good note of March 26th. I very much regret that I shall have left Princeton before the 7th of April, to be in Cambridge for several weeks, and shall therefore be unable to meet the group that you plan to bring down. The Institute is not open on Sundays, but Mr. John Harris, our caretaker, will be heremost of the day, and will be glad to show you around.

Very sincerely,

Robert Oppenheimer

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer

On the thirteenth of last May, last year, I had the pleasure of bringing a bus load of Foreign students to Princeton for the day.

Dr. Eliezer from Ceylon was working at the Institute at that time and I be-believe that it was largely in kindness to him that you came and talked to the students and then took them to your office where you invited them to ask questions. When I thanked you for your kindly courtesy to them and told you that I might be bringing another group down this year, you were good enough to say that you hoped you could arrange to see them -

Now I am bringing some of this year's students to
Princeton on April seventh.
I'd be very grateful, and so would they, if they might meet you - and incidentally see something of the Institut. Could you? & would you let us know?
Sincerely and hopefully
Lawrence D. Hamilton

AN OPEN INVITATION

As advisor to the group for which these events are being planned, I am hoping to find new friends among those from overseas who will be in and near New York this academic year. You will note that on a number of Sundays events are scheduled which will give us an opportunity of getting acquainted. On all the other Sundays I am planning to stay at home during the afternoon, and hope that during the year many of you will come to see me anytime between three and seven. You may find other students from overseas, or perhaps some of my American friends, but you will surely find a warm welcome and a touch of home life. Best of all, you will give me a chance to learn to know you better.

Sincerely yours,
MRS. B. WALLACE HAMILTON

SOME EXPLANATIONS

Christian work among American university students, unlike that in many countries, is conducted by numerous denominations and organization. For nearly 100 years the student YMCA and YWCA have been vital forces in campus life, and denominational student work has been increasing for over 35 years. At some universities, especially outside of New York, there may be as many as a dozen different religious groups, each with its own building, offering opportunities for fellowship, counselling, devotional services, study and social action. Although there are certain advantages to having a variety of groups, for a number of years there have been prophets calling for a more unified student Christian movement, and progress has been made in this direction. In 1945 the United Student Christian Council (USCC) came into being, federating the work of fourteen of these agencies. Since then the National Council of Churches has been established and the USCC though independent is related to this great ecumenical expression.

With the presence in the United States of students, doctors, and trainees from around the globe, many churches have sought to augment their programs to better serve this new constituency. They wish first of all to help Christians from all confessions feel at home in their churches, so that through mutual sharing new insights into the meaning of Christ may be revealed. American church people are equally glad to welcome persons of other faiths, to get to know them personally, and to include them in whatever phases of church life may appeal to them.

In addition to the regular undergraduate programs sponsored by the Christian Associations on New York campuses, there are several groups with programs designed especially for those from overseas. For instance, the Lutheran Student Association sponsors a series of lectures both at International House and at New York University; Riverside Church is developing new facilities and activities for international groups, and Judson House, near N.Y.U. serves many overseas students. The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, a non-denominational group, also sponsors an extensive international student program.

Finally, in the Spring of 1949, following a USCC Conference, the World Student Christian Fellowship of New York was started. It is an informal organization bringing together graduate students from around the world for mutual fellowship and exchange of information about the work of the churches in their respective countries. It also provides opportunities to become better acquainted with various facets of Christian work in the United States.

President Robert Oppenheimer
Institute for Advanced Study
Princeton, N. J.

Dear Mr. Oppenheimer:

In the twentieth year of its work, World University Service in the United States for the first time exceeded the million dollar mark for a single year's operations.

If each University and College president to whom I now write my "annual report letter" will give this letter his personal and direct attention, WUS should come through the present year responsibly. The needs of university students throughout the world are greater than ever before. Our response must be gauged accordingly.

Will you, as you share my satisfaction of achievement for 1956-57, make sure that everything necessary is done to insure a successful effort on your campus in 1957-58? The story told in the enclosures is most enheartening. Let's do it again.

Sincerely,

Buell G. Gallagher
Chairman

Enclosures:
WUS Folder
Report to the Campuses

REPORT TO THE CAMPUSES

It is my pleasure to report to you that the past year has been one of unusual progress for World University Service and we want you to share our satisfaction in these accomplishments. Among the achievements are the following:

- In this 20th year of its services to the university community, for the first time in its history, WUS passed the million dollar mark for a single year, including contributions in cash, $497,432.40; scholarships for Hungarian students, $109,707.50; and distribution of United States surplus foods and other materials, $456,542.72. The world program of WUS for the past year, including the response to the needs of Hungarian refugee students, reaches toward three million dollars.
- Assistance to Hungarian refugee students has been the consuming special requirement of the year. At the beginning of the fall semester, 741 Hungarian students had been accepted on full scholarships by American colleges. For February and September 1958 an additional 37 students have been accepted and 58 more have been recommended to colleges. WUS continues to interview and register new arrivals and others applying who have not yet found study opportunities. This has been a most demanding program and WUS wishes to pay tribute to the Institute of International Education for their invaluable contribution in administering a program of English language study for 659 students, assisting with placement and in cooperating with WUS in the period of combined operation assisted by the President's Committee for Hungarian Refugee Relief. Under the encouragement of the Committee Chairman, Mr. Tracy Voorhees, funds amounting to $296,442.20 were gathered to be used for cash grants to piece out partial scholarship offers from the colleges. The cash value of scholarship assistance is estimated at $1,500,000.
- On the international front progress has also been made. The election of Sir Keith Murray, Head of Britain's University Grants Commission, places at the head of WUS world operation a distinguished and trusted educator. This is a distinct step forward in preparing WUS for the opportunities before it in the days ahead.
- The development of student health services in Asia continues to be a major objective. The Delhi student health center, a modern, adequately equipped building, opened a year ago, now offers medical service to 9,000 students enrolled in the University. A similar center has been opened during this year at the University of Patna, Bihar, India. A new sixteen-bed TB ward has been opened in Gauhati, Assam. Other student TB wards continue to operate in Tambaram, South India, the Reed Chest Hospital in Assam and Inada Noborito in Tokyo. A second WUS student TB ward is under construction at Murayama, Tokyo. Experiments are now going on in the ambulatory treatment of TB in the hope of extending to larger numbers of TB victims some help even though hospitalization is not available for those who should have it.

- Progress is being made in cooperative living projects to help meet housing shortages which are acute in many university centers in Asia.

These projects are symbols of acute problems with which students must struggle in their efforts to learn and prepare for responsible leadership in these new nations in Asia. These symbols suggest ways of solving these problems. They enlist students and teachers together in common efforts toward constructive solutions. Mutual assistance programs shared in by students of many nations build up ties of friendship so greatly needed amidst the tensions of the present world scene.

American students have much to gain from participation in this program of help for self-help. America's place of world leadership requires that students be trained in habits of global thinking. The concrete character of the world-wide program of WUS offers to American students the educational experience of personal participation in a constructive international enterprise.

Our deep appreciation goes to all students and teachers whose generous support and participation continue to make possible this program of mutual assistance and international education.

Dear Colonel Williams:

Thank you for your letter of the 6th of February. It seems to me doubtful that there are any applications of the generalized theory of gravitation to the generation of propulsive forces of interest to the Air Force; and I would not feel it proper for us to undertake work on this subject with so little notion of what, if anything, of value might eventuate from it.

To the more general enquiry of Lt. Col. Henry, dated February 12th, I need to make a similar answer. I, and I speak also for many of my colleagues, would be delighted to consult with you about any proposals which are of genuine interest to the Air Force; and if we are qualified, should be glad to assist you with them. But in the form in which your enquiries are addressed, they offer me no basis for an affirmative or promising answer.

With every good wish,

Robert Oppenheimer

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer:

The Air Force, in order to maintain air supremacy, is searching for new and unconventional devices and, consequently, is interested in supporting research exploring the possible applications of rather remote fields as, for example, the generalized theory of gravitation for generation of propulsion forces. Many theoretical developments in the fields of nuclear, molecular, and quantum physics have not been analyzed with this or similar applications in mind.

This office desires to know whether in your opinion the Unified Field Theory can be applied to problems of interest to the Air Force and, further, if you would be sufficiently interested to undertake a portion of this work on a contract basis. If it is agreeable to you, a conference between your personnel and ours can be arranged in order to formulate details of our objectives.

Your early attention to this matter will be appreciated.

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer:

In reference to our letter of 6 February 1953, this office would like to expand the request for opinion to include the possible applications of any new developments in modern physics to propulsion devices. The limitations of thermally powered propulsion systems call for the examination of other devices for practical sources of propulsive force under conditions not now encountered but which may be encountered in the future.

Dear Colonel McNickle:

Your letter of June 15th has been received in which you request that the Institute for Advanced Study execute the policy agreement for testing of non-contract items. I wonder if your office has not sent this request to us in error. Your letter was addressed to Professor John von Neumann, who is a member of the Faculty of the Institute, in care of Princeton University, which is not affiliated with the Institute. It may be that you wish to contact one of the departments at Princeton University. I have checked with Professor von Neumann and the reason for your request is not clear to him. We submit no material for test and have no contract with the Air Materiel Command.

Will you please advise us if there is anything we can do to help you clarify this request.

Gentlemen:

It is requested that the attached Policy Agreement for test of non-contract items, be formally executed by an officer of your organization and returned thereafter to be filed with the Air Materiel Command.

Although it is recognized that the signed Policy Agreement is specifically pertinent only to the examination and test by the Air Materiel Command of articles for which no formal contract exists, or is contemplated, between the Government and a requesting agency, it is urgent that, in the Government interest, all individuals and agencies submitting articles for test, be informed of and agree to conditions prevailing and implicit in the terms of the Policy Agreement.

In consideration of the above, your cooperation and compliance will be appreciated. Submission of the reply to the undersigned should be marked for the attention of the aforesaid symbol: MCREAX11.

Dear Professor Morgan:

This will confirm our telephone conversation as of this date, relative to the dedication ceremonies on September 16 of the new building of the Farm Bureau Insurance Companies (soon to become Nationwide Insurance), Columbus, Ohio. Farm Bureau Insurance Companies is our parent company, and the new building will house both the Insurance Companies' New Jersey Regional Office and this radio station.

As part of the dedication ceremonies, we are inserting a time capsule in the cornerstone of the building. We are asking various leaders in different fields of endeavor to tape record a three to five minute talk, projecting what they see in their respective fields during the next twenty-five years. To date, we have such people as Eddie Rickenbacker, President of Eastern Air Lines, on AIR POWER; Mr. Murray D. Lincoln, President of the Farm Bureau Insurance Companies, and also President of CARE, on AGRICULTURE AND THE COOPERATIVE MOVEMENT; Mr. Patrick Weaver, President of the National Broadcasting Company, on COMMUNICATIONS; the Hon. Robert B. Meyner, Governor of the State of New Jersey, and we are today contacting the United Nations to try and get a statement from Mr. Dag Hammarskjold, Secretary General of the United Nations.

My purpose in writing this letter is to ask for a three to five minute prediction, so to speak, on tape, from one of the scientists from the Institute for Advanced Study. His talk should deal primarily with what he foresees in the development in the field of science within the next twenty-five years. We would appreciate your very kind assistance in this project.

I shall anxiously await your reply.

Also, on this tape is Mr. Avram G. Mezerik, another one of WTTM's Special Correspondents, and also Editor of the International Review Service.
