"The Director reported that at present the chief use of the Director's Fund had been to continue the line of appointments started with Blackmur in literature and criticism: T. S. Eliot, Francis Ferguson, Kenneth Burke are General Members under this grant. The Director proposed to suggest to Mr. Eliot that he return to the Institute when he can. An invitation has been accepted by Professor Max Radin for two terms during the academic years 1948-1949 and 1949-1950. Professor Radin's plan is to complete several books on the history of the law during his stay."

Jacques Hadamard, a great French mathematician who left France in 1942, apparently under some duress. Rabbi Stephen Wise, Arnold Dresden, ~~FRANK RAPSKINE~~, and Louis Rapskine of the Rockefeller Foundation, and others busied themselves in Hadamard's interest. He was 75 years old, and therefore, not eligible for appointment in the Institute on a stipend basis. The Rockefeller Foundation found that under its rules, they could do nothing toward granting him funds, and, finally, the problem was resolved, apparently, by Jacob Billikopf approaching the Rosenwald Family Foundation, the Attleson Foundation, and the Paley Foundation. The files does not reveal what ultimately was done. Hadamard lectured at Columbia and at the Institute for small amounts of money, after some time was supported by French people and mathematicians out of their own pocketbooks. One of the embarrassing circumstances of the first attempts to bring him out of France in 1941 and early 1942, was the fact that he wanted to bring 13 dependents with him.

On the recommendation of Weyl and Siegel and with the cooperation of Lefschetz, Reidemeister was invited as a Visiting Professor of Mathematics, first term, ~~1947-48~~ 1948-49, Princeton University, to give a graduate course on parts of topology and consultation with advanced students and by the Institute for the same sum of money as a member for the year with a stipend of $3,000.

The material appears in a file in income tax for income tax data for David M. J. Levy of Maass, Davidson, Levy, and Friedman in connection with an appeal from the Internal Revenue Bureau ruling; the data were submitted to Levy about February January, 1952. File does not reveal the outcome.

A note from the Allen Shenstone Interview, May 23, 1956.

In 1953 Sir Owen W. Richardson wrote Chester Arthur Grove, a technician in the physics laboratory from 1903-1953 when he was given a testimonial for 50 years' service. He was the man who built the contraptions which the physicists needed for experiments. He was noted for his good human qualities, good humor, kindness, good cheer. Richardson recounts in this letter which is in a testimonial book to Grove how when he came to Princeton it was to install a research laboratory in the cellar of the old science building which had no ventilation but a big hole. The space was infested with hop toads which used the space and the swimming pool nearby. In the letter he recounts his students, the Comtons, Davidson, C. J., who married Richardson's sister, and others. He said the faculty was very much interested in what Richardson was doing. In this letter Richardson tells Grove he himself retired nine years ago and found it no occasion for rejoicing

"I appreciate your remarks about the part-time arrangement, and although my experience does not agree with that which you cite, I hope that you will find me accepting the decision in the same loyal spirit in which it is taken. Indeed, I did not suggest the meeting of the mathematical group at which your letter of December 11 was discussed, but merely circulated your letter for the information of my colleagues."
