Dear Miss Goldman:

As I told you this morning Mr. Maass liked very much the change in your will giving the Trustees of the Institute power to withhold funds in the case of what appeared to them an unwise proposal for expenditure.

In the place of the words "after a careful consideration," he proposes that you say:

"Subject only to the power of the Trustees of the Institute for Advanced Study at any time or from time to time in their uncontrolled judgment and discretion to withhold funds in any case where they deem a proposed expenditure not to be in accordance with the purposes for which this fund is established."

This seems to me to say the same thing in more words, and I leave it to you and your lawyer to decide whether you prefer to adopt that phraseology or to leave it as you had it.

Yours sincerely,

Frank Aydelotte

Dear Mr. Maass:

I discussed with Miss Goldman your comments on her will and urged very strongly on my own account the advisability from her point of view of having some check on this self-perpetuating committee. My suggestion was that its actions be subject to the approval of our Board of Trustees.

I am glad to say that she took kindly to this suggestion and is planning an alteration in that sense.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Miss Goldman:

I showed the extract from your will to Mr. Maass and he feels that we should refer the whole matter to the Trustees at our next meeting on November twenty-eighth, in view of the fact that the control of the fund would be entirely outside our Board. You are entrusting this self-perpetuating committee with very large powers, and I wondered myself in reading over the terms of your will whether you would not consider it wiser to require the approval of the Trustees for any action taken. That might insure that the committee would discharge its responsibilities in a thoroughly conscientious manner.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Dr. Aydelotte:

Herewith I acknowledge yours of the 2nd in which you enclosed copy of a draft of that portion of Miss Goldman's will which concerns the Institute.

I am returning the same herewith and have no comment to make since I think that the same, from a legal standpoint, is in splendid shape. What I am interested in ascertaining is whether the Institute is willing to assume the obligation contained in the will - on the one hand assume responsibility for the investment of the fund and on the other hand to have no direct control in the manner of its disposition. In other words, a committee designated and which is self-perpetuating would control the use of both the income and the principal and the Institute would have to conform wholly to their directions.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Doctor:-

You are correct when you surmise I did not answer your letter regarding Miss Goldman's book because of the illness of Mrs. Full.

I was under the impression I had written you regarding it.

It is my impression that the Institute can pay the subsidy of five or six thousand dollars - so I vote "yes".

Dear Mr. Bamberger:

About the time of Mrs. Fuld's death I wrote to you as follows about Miss Goldman's book on her excavations at Tarsus on which she has been working for several years. The book will require a subsidy of five or six thousand dollars to produce. It is hoped that the Archaeological Institute of America will contribute to the publication, and Miss Goldman and Professor Meritt are asking the Institute whether we would be willing to contribute three thousand dollars.

I think we ought to do it and I think it would be a very graceful way for the Institute to give expression to our opinion of the quality of Miss Goldman's work, especially since she receives only a token salary. Meritt assures me that he has the highest opinion of the scholarly quality of the volume. The matter is one on which the Executive Committee should pass. So far as I can remember I have had no reply from you and imagine this was due to your anxiety about Mrs. Fuld. You will be interested to know that seven out of nine members of the Executive Committee have expressed approval. I shall be grateful if you will let me know whether you agree. We want to get on with our negotiations with the Archaeological Institute and for this reason it would be a great convenience to have an informal expression from the members of the Committee which can be formally confirmed at the next meeting.

With kindest regards, I am

Dear Miss Goldman:

Since it was impossible to get the Executive Committee of the Board together during the summer I took an informal vote by mail on the question of an appropriation of $3,000 to assist in the publication of your book. I have not heard from all the members of the Committee but I have favorable votes from seven out of nine members. This action will not be official until it is confirmed at the next meeting of the Committee which will be held November 14th. I feel, however, that these informal assurances leave no doubt that the appropriation will be made. Members of the Committee expressed great satisfaction in learning what I was able to tell them about the interest and quality of your book.

Dear Henry:

Miss Goldman has just finished a book on her excavations at Tarsus on which she has been working for several years. The book will require a subsidy of five or six thousand dollars to produce. It is hoped that the Archaeological Institute of America will contribute to the publication, and Miss Goldman and Professor Meritt are asking the Institute whether we would be willing to contribute three thousand dollars.

It would, however, assist Miss Goldman's negotiations if she could know this summer what the Institute is prepared to do. I am accordingly consulting members of the Executive Committee informally. If the opinions expressed are favorable, I can then notify Miss Goldman that she may expect action in this sense to be taken at the first meeting of the Committee in the fall.

Dear Miss Goldman:

In five months Leicester Holland will have qualified for a Government pension, and as I understand it, will be free then to do anything he wants. He feels that he must remain in Government employ until he can qualify for a retiring allowance, but after that date, I feel that he would like to do something in research or in architecture. He is, I think, now sixty-two years old. I wish you would think about the matter between now and September and let me have any suggestions that occur to you.

I owe you an apology for my failure to reply to your letter of December 12th concerning a representative of the Institute on your Committee on Education. Dear Doctor Aydelotte, Local Defense Councils in New Jersey are organizing Community War Service Divisions to have charge of all non-protective services concerned with civilian defense, and to be coordinate with the Defense Corps which contain the protective services. One of the nine sub-committees is on "Education". The enclosed Manual, p. 20, indicates its functions, and the suggestion that "allegiate" institutions be included.

We would appreciate your naming a representative of the Institute to be a member of this sub-committee on Education. Any community needs which related to the Institute in this subject area could thus come routinely to its attention at the discussion stage, and the Committee in turn would profit by the Institute's point of view.

Sincerely yours,

Norman B. Still

Chairman, Community War Services Committee.

My dear Dr. Aydelotte:

In order to give you a coherent idea of the lines along which I have worked and the ideas underlying my choice of fields of research it will be necessary to go back to the beginning of my career as an independent investigator. I am well aware that such a career assumes a character of coherence and purposefulness when viewed in retrospect which was often lacking at the time of its unfolding, but I believe that for your purpose the accidents which often delayed and deflected my work are of little interest and that its importance for the Institute lies in what has been accomplished, as a guide to what may be the development and achievement of similar work in the future when it is taken over by whoever will succeed me in the field of archaeological research. As I write I realize that I do not myself know what the policy of the Institute is, and whether our successors are to be scholars specifically carrying on in our own field or such as fall within the general classification of humanists without regard to continuity of subject.

When I went to the American School of Classical Studies at Athens in 1911, largely through a fortunate accident

I was able to participate in the work of actual excavation and that in a form most stimulating to the development of self-confidence and initiative. Under the general direction of the head of the School I was given charge of a small but independent piece of work. The nature of the site, situated in Locris on the east coast of Greece, has given the general direction to all my subsequent excavations. It turned out to be of much more importance than was at first apparent, comprising not only a settlement of the archaic and classical period but a large underlying prehistoric village. The excavated material was very diverse: an important system of fortification walls, buildings, inscriptions documenting for the first time the Locrian dialect of the region, sculpture, minor antiquities such as pottery, terracottas, and lamps. I list all these objects to make the point that a field archaeologist cannot and in fact should not be too highly specialized. Like a Museum Director he is the better for knowing one subject well, but his chief function is to be the intelligence in which the results of the excavation are synthesized and in which what has been destroyed continues to exist. For the process of excavation is of course in part a process of destruction especially where a number of superimposed towns and cultures are to be studied. Although no excavation can be successful without a very careful scientific method of field work and of recording, this cannot make its success which, although there are many contributing factors, lies in the powers of interpretation, deduction, and synthesis of its head. I make this point perhaps with some insistence, because the efficiency ideals of the machine age have also crept into archaeological undertakings. System is necessary and every excavation should work according to a system commensurate with its size and scope; when, however, it is in excess, it is more likely to hinder than to advance results. It must not be supposed, however, that the director works alone as a kind of master mind. Quite the contrary: the ability of the staff of workers is of primary importance. Indeed the ideal excavation is a cooperative effort of all the members of the expedition in which the director has the leadership but to which all contribute. Each staff member is chosen for some special knowledge or ability but the field superintendent is of the very greatest importance and in most excavations which are not too large this work, if not actually undertaken by the director, is kept by him under constant observation. For it is the field worker who sees the objects coming out of the soil, who records the place and condition of discovery; and it is the field worker who, by study of the soil, its hardness, its color, its purity from extraneous matter, and many other criteria can determine whether a deposit of objects is primary - that is, laid down actually at the time the building or street was in use - or of an intrusive nature and due to some process much later in time, such as the digging of a well, or cellar, or a general levelling off preparatory to the erection of new buildings. These observations form the basis for establishing the all-important chronological sequences. The final publications rests upon the accuracy of field records and upon the prolonged study of material excavated.

-3-

Before coming to the Institute I was fortunate in having the support of the Fogg Museum of Harvard University and two excavations were undertaken under their auspices. The first was at Colophon in Asia Minor, a famous Ionian city situated near Smyrna. Owing to the war between Turkey and Greece this work could not be brought to a satisfactory conclusion, but some interesting results were obtained. The second excavation of the Fogg Museum was again a site in Greece and again one that was both prehistoric and classical although here the prehistoric greatly outweighed in importance the classical. Eutresis in Boeotia, representing all three phases of the bronze age (about 3000-1200 B.C.) supplied a much needed link in the history of that early period showing the character of the local culture and both resemblances and contrasts with the contemporary culture of the Peloponnesus. Nobody can study the prehistory of Greece without becoming aware almost immediately that the fecund breezes which blow out of the east were largely responsible for its early growth and development. So it is perhaps natural that a prehistorian sooner or later turns his eyes to Asia Minor for the solution of the problem of cultural origins in Greece and also for the study of the repercussions of <sup>prehistoric</sup> Greek culture upon the country from which it derived. The next and last of my excavations, the one upon which I was still engaged when the second world war broke out, was started under the auspices of Bryn Mawr college and later found support both from Harvard University, which made a grant of five thousand dollars from the Milton Fund, and from the Archaeological Institute of America.

This excavation is located at Tarsus in south eastern Asia Minor and was chosen as a focal point at which the Hittite civilization might have come in contact with the flourishing Mycenaean Empire of the Greek mainland and with the kingdoms of Syria. A year after the undertaking at Tarsus was launched, I became a member of the Institute for Advanced Study at the invitation of Dr. Flexner, to continue my work upon the lines already begun. I was to spend half the year in the field, together with a number of competent assistants, and half at the Institute, in the study of the excavated material and its preparation for final publication. For the first time since I had been actively engaged in archaeological research I had a place where I could quietly pursue my post-excavation studies without interruption and without extraneous duties, and with an excellent library at hand.

I should like to add a word about the kind of people I have tried to bring to the Institute. They fall into three distinct categories: there are those whose task it is to work with me, never more than two and usually only one. These are the assistants in the strict sense of the word. Then there are the scholars who are called in to deal with material which was found in the excavations but which lies outside the competence of any of the regular excavation staff. At Tarsus this consisted of the remains of a large and important Islamic settlement. I was most fortunate in securing for the Islamic material Miss Florence E. Day, whose work was well known to European scholars even before she had acquired her Ph.D. degree. Miss Day conceived of her task in the largest possible terms and in addition to preparing the actual objects for publication she has written the history of Tarsus from the original Arabic sources: the first time such an attempt has been made. Miss Day left us this fall to go to the newly opened Dumbarton Oaks Research Institute as a scholar in residence, and was the first woman to be so chosen. The third type of scholar whom I like to see working at the Institute is the one whose field is related to mine but whose knowledge supplements and fortifies my own. These members of the Institute are in no sense of the word my pupils or students. I do not propose subjects of research to them. They come here to work in the peaceful atmosphere of the Institute on their own problems. My contact with them is only in the form of discussion in which I benefit by their knowledge and young enthusiasm and they perhaps by my greater experience and, if they ask for it, my criticism of their finished work. To give a concrete example: Miss Marian Welker, a Ph.D. of the University of Pennsylvania, came here to study the relation of Iranian and Anatolian early civilizations and has completed a paper of monograph proportions on this subject. She was better informed on the Iranian cultures, I on the Anatolian, and a happy exchange of information and ideas has taken place. Next year Mr. Weinberg of Johns Hopkins and Chicago University will be here and his problem is the study of the development of the Neolithic and Bronze Age civilizations of Greece and an analysis of the different periods into which they can be subdivided. My early work in Greece in Locris and Boeotia was a contribution to this subject and I look forward to discussing with him the more recent developments which he has followed and to which he contributed not a little while excavating at Corinth for the American School. For me this opportunity of exchanging ideas with younger scholars while pursuing my own studies constitutes one of the most attractive features of life and work at our Institute. I know of no other place in America where it is possible on quite the same terms, for only here are we all free from the pressure of teaching and extra-curricular duties. I am anxious only on one point. The lack of adequate funds with which to bring the people of our choice to the Institute makes it necessary to depend upon the large foundations and to accept the people they choose and sometimes even the subjects to which they give preference. It would be quite easy for the Institute gradually and by imperceptible steps to become a kind of guest house of the foundations. Our vigilance will undoubtedly prevent this, but adequate funds of our own would entirely eliminate the danger.

Goldman

---

Very sincerely,

Hetty Goldman

April 5, 1941

Dear Miss Goldman:

I enclose for your confidential information a report which I presented to the Board of Trustees at their meeting in February on the work of the School of Economics and Politics. I wish to write a similar report for the next meeting on the work of the School of Humanistic Studies and should be grateful if you would supply me with similar background information concerning your own work. I know a good deal about it already, but I think it would be better if you would assume total ignorance on my part and write me a memorandum which would describe your own studies and their relation to humanistic scholarship in general.

It would be a great convenience to me if I could have this letter sometime next week. I apologize for the trouble which I am asking you to take, but I am sure that the Institute as a whole has everything to gain from making the work which is being done here clearer to the founders and the members of the Board of Trustees.

Dear Hetty:

Thank you very much indeed for your kind note of September 27. I am sorry that I have had to "play hookie" this week, but I have a case of what the doctors call "preachers' sore throat", and I am so hoarse that I can barely make myself audible and indeed am advised not even to dictate mail in a whisper.

I share your happiness that at a time when your excavation plans have been seriously interfered with you find yourself beautifully established with your books and with your associates amidst the quiet which a scholar loves. How I wish that your father might have lived to see this day!

Mrs. Flexner joins me in all kindest greetings.

Dear Miss Blake,-

I am in receipt of your

Dear Miss Goldman:

The Institute has received a bill from Custom House brokers in New York for $8.90 "representing expenses for shipping and forwarding on the other side" of a package of the following books from Otto Havassowitz, Leipzig:

Persson, Zwei mykenische Hausaltäre i. Bertati, unbd.
Samos, Altsamische Standbilder, No. 3, unbd.
Wiegand, Die altattische stehende Göttin i. Berlin, in portfolio
Die Archaischen Marmorbildwerke d. Akropolis, ed. H. Schrader, 2 vols. (text and tables) in portfolio

The New York brokers write that these books were sent from New York to the School of Humanistic Studies on June 16, 1939, and Dr. Clement thinks from their titles that you are the person most likely to know about them. I have a check from Mrs. Bailey to pay the bill if I learn that it is all right. Do you know?

I hope Keene Valley is far cooler and less sticky than Princeton this month.

Sincerely,

Professor Hetty Goldman

Gentlemen:

We have received a bill from you dated July 18 amounting to $8.90, which we have been trying unsuccessfully, in the vacation season, to identify. Can you give us any additional information concerning this package of books from Otto Harnassowitz, Leipzig? Has it been delivered, and if so to whom? Is there any additional indication of the source?

Dear Miss Goldman:

I feel sure, after making inquiries, that Thomson's Express and Storage is the most reliable storage place in Princeton. The address is 274 Alexander Street (Telephone: 88). The only other warehouse of any size is Skillman's, and that I know is a place to avoid, for we have heard many complaints against them.

Mr. Thomson goes to New York frequently, and perhaps it would work out well for you to have him pick up your things and bring them right here to the warehouse. Having this in mind, I telephoned to inquire when he would make his next trip and was told that it would be Friday of this week. I was also told that he would probably be making a trip again next week.

With kind regards,

Sincerely yours,

Dear Hetty:

You may take it for granted that Miss Day's scholarship will be supplemented on her return from Ann Arbor to Princeton by the sum of $500.00.

I spent two days in New York this week canvassing the question of raising additional funds. Until our building is completed, furnished, and paid for in full, there is nothing to be gained by raising the question of funds from the founders, for it has become obvious in the last few days that Mr. Bamberger was correct in thinking that the building would cost more than the estimates. The foundations and such private individuals as I saw are proceeding with the utmost caution. I think it is extremely doubtful whether help can be procured from any of them for archaeological work to the extent of $3000.00, as you suggested. They have the feeling, and wrongly in my opinion, that such work can be postponed, hard as this may bear upon the persons interested in that subject, and I have no power to change their policies.

In the event that there is no catastrophe abroad I shall raise the question again when the moment seems prudent.

With all good wishes,

Ever sincerely,

My dear Dr. Flexner,

I am sending you the memorandum which you have always asked for concerning our conversations. We spoke of the necessity of supplementing Miss Day's scholarship at Ann Arbor by an additional sum of $500, if that could be secured. You also undertook to let me know, no later than August first, whether the Institute would be able to help the Tarsus excavation with the sum of $3000, for two salaries.

Dear Miss Goldman:

As I understood our conversation, the question of money necessary for the publication of Miss Day's work was to be postponed for the present.

Whether we can step in and replace Bryn Mawr to the extent of $3,000.00 for the next campaign in Tarsus is more than I can say until I learn from the Treasurer how much money will be available. The expenses here at Princeton are mounting despite every effort on my part to keep them down.

I shall let you hear from me just as soon as I myself have any definite information.

My dear Dr. Flexner,

I am sending you the confirmation of our conversation, as you asked me to do. I shall need for the next year the sum of $2000. for the publication of Miss Florence Day's work on the Islamic material from Tarsus. This is, of course, an approximate estimate but I do not believe we could do with less. In view of the fact that Bryn Mawr, in all likelihood, will not give the complete sum promised for the next campaign at Tarsus, the work will be very much hampered unless I can have $3000. towards paying salaries. It would be very detrimental to the work and really unfair to the people who have been with me for the past four years if I had to drop them from the Tarsus staff.

Very sincerely yours,

Hetty Goldman

Dear Marion,

I returned to Princeton a few days ago and want now to answer your letter of December 19th. I am, of course, very happy to know that you will be able to fulfil the obligation of Bryn Mawr College towards the Tarsus Excavations to the extent of giving $1500 in cash and supplying a student on the Riegel Travelling Scholarship who will be able to pay her own expenses. I think that $500 is a fair estimate of the relief to our budget. As we shall not return to Tarsus before February of 1940, it does not seem too optimistic to hope that the remaining $500 may be raised by that time. I should like to believe that the $2500 originally intended for 1940, but which will not fall due until 1941, may still be raised. There is always the possibility of a return to greater prosperity all over the United States and also that Mary Swindler will make an effort to complete the promised sum.

Very sincerely yours,

Hetty Goldman

My dear Hetty,

I have postponed the letter which at the close of my last letter I said would follow it because I knew how occupied you must be. Now I believe I can send you a somewhat more favorable report.

At the present time I am obliged to say that Bryn Mawr College will not be able to fulfil its obligation and make a payment of $2500 for the year 1939. We shall be able to make a cash payment of $1500 and to make the appointment of the Ella Riegel Travelling Scholar in Archaeology with a stipend of $1500 instead of $1000, notifying her that the increased stipend must be used in paying her expenses at the excavation. I hope that this will mean a relief to your budget which can properly be counted as something like $500. If during the course of the year it is possible for us to add the last $500 we shall make every effort to do so.

We shall attempt to clear off the deficit of 1938 by raising the money in some way. That is our business and not yours, so that I will not trouble you with it further.

It seems to me right to say at this moment that we shall not be able to make a payment of $2500 or perhaps any payment at all in 1940 and in consequence we shall recognize that you can not take on any Bryn Mawr students for that year.

Yours very sincerely,

Dear Hetty:

It would seem to me that it would be quite in order for you to send President Park a copy of the letter which we furnished you yesterday. It may well be that she has lost sight of that particular letter, on which our calculations were naturally based.

Of course, it is true that, as she says, income from investments is falling off, but somehow I cannot believe that Bryn Mawr is unable to live up to a modest engagement of the kind undertaken in reference to this excavation.

My dear Dr. Flexner,

I am sending you a copy of the letter from President Park, of which I spoke this morning. It is certainly amazing in the light of the letter addressed to you in April, 1937, in which she says "Bryn Mawr will furnish the $7500 for the term of the excavation which Miss Goldman sets and the amount can be divided in any convenient way between the four year." However, I have become almost shock-proof in these matters.

Very cordially yours,

Extract from letter from President Park, Bryn Mawr, to Miss Goldman, November 29, 1938.

Copy for: Dr. Flexner

"I had made up my mind last week that I must write you our bad news. Now perhaps I can talk it over with you instead, but I will write the main fact briefly. We have been able to raise only $900 of our 1938 share of expenses for the excavation, and none of next year's $2500. I think we can clear off this year's indebtedness of $1600; i.e., the money which the college has advanced, but I see no prospect of our being able to make a contribution of $2500 for 1939.

"Our failure has not been for want of effort. A benefit in New York last year went badly and brought nothing. Kreisler is giving a concert here on December 1st and we hope to clear $300-$400 on it. A great number of letters have been written to possible donors but we have had since January 1937 only five contributors. The refusals have been partly laid to lack of interest, and more often to necessary use of the donor's funds for more immediate humanitarian needs; in a number of cases I have known that the giver was involved in more personal interests.

"I cannot reach Miss Swindler for a discussion of the matter, but I have talked at length with Dr. Carpenter. He suggests that the new Riegel Fellowship (which cannot be used as contribution to the excavation) should be increased for 1939 to $1500 and that the student should pay her way as a member of the staff, thus reducing your budget by a limited amount. I think perhaps we could send you in cash $500 if the one donor who has given twice will give again.

"The college income from investments is dropping fast - - so fast that I begin to fear that the increase in students' fees which we expected eventually from the new residence hall will all go to making up a deficit rather than to increasing faculty salaries, the purpose of the building. We seem this year headed for a deficit on operating expenses also which we have avoided so far.

"I should like to talk this over with you and with Dr. Abraham Flexner. But the essence of the matter is here. Dr. Carpenter and I are disappointed and chagrined over the necessary giving up of our part in the excavation, of which we have been so proud. No one, I think, could have foreseen the difficulty for a small group in 1937-38 in the raising of funds."

October 31, 1938

Dear Miss Goldman:

But for a complication of affairs here, in New York, and in Washington, I would have written you more promptly, for I think you will be interested to know of recent developments in the Institute. We have received a gift, entirely independent of our other resources, which will enable us to construct the first building of the Institute and which will provide a fund to maintain it. We have also assurance of independent funds for development in the field of economics. The last meeting of the Board was therefore a memorable one, and I am sending you a copy of the news release.

While I was in New York this week I had an hour's talk with your father, which I greatly enjoyed, and afterwards I called on Mrs. Sachs and spent a very pleasant half hour with her.

I hope that now that the world has settled down you are able to resume work without worry or concern at Tarsus.

With all good wishes, in which Mrs. Flexner joins,

Dear Miss Goldman:

I received your letters of July 23 and 28 while I was at my little home on the St. Lawrence River and took steps at once in regard to your requests.

1. In reference to the volumes of the Swedish Expedition in Cyprus, the Princeton University Librarian has written:

"I discovered that Nijoff billed us in July for the volumes of the Swedish Expedition in Cyprus, and that he shipped them directly to Miss Goldman in Tarsus. The fourth volume will be sent here in accordance with your request of June 8.

It is probable that Miss Goldman has received the three volumes by now."

2. The check is drawn in favor of Ann M. H. Ehrich and just as soon as you inform me the amount of the check, it will be deposited in the Fifth Avenue Bank, New York, as you requested.

3. The Websters know that they must bring their own table silver.

4. I have prepared the authorization that $10,000 be deposited with the Chase National Bank, branch Park Avenue and 60th Street, New York City ~~xxx~~, for your fall campaign at Tarsus. As soon as the Treasurer notifies me regarding the deposit, I shall cable you, as you suggest.

Your month in Athens "in full view of sea and mountains" sounded very fine. I am sure that you enjoyed it after the heat of Tarsus, and now you are undoubtedly on your way to Belgium, where I am sending this letter.

I started my vacation on July 11 spending the rest of ~~the~~ July at Cape Vincent on the St. Lawrence River. I resumed work on August 1 and arrived at Dr. Flexner's camp on August 13. You will be glad to know that I found the family well, also Professor Meritt and his family, who occupy the camp adjoining Dr. Flexner's. We accomplished a lot on Monday last and about five o'clock in the afternoon while going very carefully down the cabin steps I slipped on the last three and have done all sorts of damage to my ankle, so that I write this from a hospital bed in the Canadian woods. I don't know how long I shall be a prisoner, but I shall attend to the Institute affairs, even so. Please excuse poor typing.

With kindest regards and all good wishes,
Very sincerely yours,

Dear Margot:

I have a letter from Dr. Goldman in which she asks me to draw a check to Ann M. H. Ehrich and to deposit it in the Fifth Avenue Bank, New York, favor of the account of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Ehrich. However, she does not state the amount of the check. I don't know the Ehrich address or I could write to them to ask about it. If you have a New York Telephone Directory, perhaps you can find an address and communicate with them, or, if you have occasion to wire Dr. Goldman (who is leaving Athens about August 21) you could ask her. In any event, I am writing the check and leaving the amount blank, hoping that you will contrive to find out what it is, and then may I ask you to mail it to the Fifth Avenue Bank?

Dr. Goldman also says,

"I am glad to know that my apartment is to be rented for four months and shall endeavor to have everything returned to it from New York that I took up for cleaning, etc. I hope the Websters know that they must bring their own table silver as mine is stored in the bank."
The Websters do know about the silver, I believe you told me that you wrote them to that effect.

Dear Mrs. Bailey,

I enclose a note from Miss Goldman which came this morning, and which I took the liberty of opening as I thought it might perhaps have some information regarding the Ehrich check. With reference to the latter, I see no other way out than to wire Miss Goldman, as both the Ehrichs are in Tarsus, or at least vacationing somewhere in Europe and I am afraid that delay for correspondence, etc. might leave them stranded for funds. The Tarsus address is P.K. 18. Also, in case you need it, Dr. Herzfeld's new address is: Grand Hotel d'Evian, Evian-les-Bains, Switzerland.

I have just been paid a visit by an agent of the State Department wanting to know all sorts of things regarding Dr. Tedesco which, of course, I could not tell him. I have just sent you a rather long telegram concerning it, as he seemed to think matters were urgent.

It threatens to cool off here, but we are not counting on anything. I hope that you and Muette are enjoying yourselves.

Memorandum for Mr. Leidesdorf

I have a letter from Miss Hetty Goldman, who is in Europe, in which she asks that a check be deposited with the

Chase National Bank
Branch - Park Avenue and 60th Street
New York City

for the autumn campaign of excavations at Tarsus, to the amount of $10,000.00, which is the balance of the $20,000.00 contribution made some time ago for this work. Miss Goldman requests that the deposit be made before September 1 and asks me to cable her when it is made, so may I ask you to let me know the date the deposit is made?

I assume that the check is to be deposited to the credit of Miss Hetty Goldman. She requested that the same procedure should be followed as in the winter of 1936-1937. You will know by reference to that check voucher <sup>($10,000.00)</sup> whether or not the name of the Expedition or Excavation also appears on the face of the check.

My dear Mrs. Bailey,-

I am settled for a month in full view of sea & mountains - very lovely.

When I wrote you last I forgot to add that the ten thousand dollars
 ($10,000) be deposited with the Chase
 National Bank, broad Park Ave & 60th St., for our fall campaign at Toronto, before September 15. When this has been accomplished will you cable me % American Express deposits will suffice - so that I may leave? I get to Brussels August 28.

Very cordially

Hetty Goldman.

June 30, 1938

Dear Dr. Goldman:

Thank you very much for your letter of April 12, giving me an account of the progress of your work, which came just as I was leaving for Europe, and which I have now read carefully for the first time.

I hope that the peaceful prosecution of your work will not be interfered with by any continental disturbance. I returned only the day before yesterday from a rather hasty seven weeks trip, on Institute business, to England, France and Switzerland. It is obvious that no one wants a general war, but, on the other hand, every sort of inflammable material is lying about and any piece of stupidity may cause an explosion.

I do not know precisely how to reply to your subsequent letter of May 3, to which Mrs. Bailey replied on May 18. Nothing would have given me more pleasure than to make any reference to your father or Tarsus that would please you and him, but he himself insisted on anonymity and therefore left me, as I thought, no alternative. As to an account of your work at Tarsus, I said nothing because you yourself, in reply to my request for a statement for the bulletin, made no specific mention of Tarsus. As Mrs. Bailey indicated, the annual bulletin is meant to be a modest statement by the professors themselves of what they are doing or planning. My part is wholly editorial, and even my editorial work is limited to piecing together the fragmentary statements which I receive in answer to my inquiries. I cannot therefore feel that I am in any wise responsible for the omission of a specific reference to Tarsus, though I think it is a pity that no such reference was made.

You are quite mistaken in supposing that the bulletin is hastily written. Weeks are spent in putting together the statements which reach me from various sources and in preparing the general statement for which I alone am wholly responsible.

No effort has ever been made in any bulletin to give a complete account of the holders of grants. Indeed, it is only in the last bulletin that a detailed statement was made in reference to mathematics, which has now had so long and brilliant a success that Professor Veblen and his colleagues thought the time had come to be really definite on the subject, and I deferred to their opinion, as I deferred to every other member of the faculty.

It is obvious that you have been laboring under a misapprehension as to how the bulletin is put together, but there is no one who can correct what is defective except those from whom information is requested.

I hope that you are going to have a most successful experience in your present campaign, and I shall be only too happy to go as far as it is scientifically safe to go in any statement which the Institute may issue.

With all good wishes, in which Mrs. Flexner would, if she were here, most heartily join,

Ever sincerely,

Dear Miss Goldman:

Thank you for your letter of May 26. I have ordered the fourth volume of the Excavations in Cyprus of the Swedish Expedition, to be delivered to you here in Princeton on publication.

Negotiations have now been completed with Mr. and Mrs. Carson Webster. They will pay in advance $60.00 a month for your apartment, and will come to Princeton about the end of September to remain four months, that is, until the beginning of February. Your lease expires August 31, 1938, and I assume there will be no difficulty about renewing it. I have spoken to Mr. Brown of your subletting to this very desirable couple, but it seemed to me inadvisable to put the matter in writing until you actually have your new lease.

We are now having a touch of Princeton summer weather - heat and humidity. Commencement is over and the town is rapidly emptying. Dr. Flexner has not yet returned from Europe, so that I do not know the precise date on which I shall go to the St. Lawrence River for my own holiday. There will always be someone at 20 Nassau Street, and Miss Cutter will be at 69 Alexander Street all summer, so that everything will go along smoothly. Miss Cutter has told me of your new address. I hope that you will have a good summer and that political conditions will not mar your stay in Turkey, when you return there.

With kind regards and all good wishes ,

Very sincerely yours,

My dear Mrs. Bailey;

I was very glad to get your letter of May 2nd, and to learn that the three volumes of the Cyprus publication have been ordered sent to Tarsus. I very much hope that an order was placed for the fourth volume so that we may have it as soon as it appears. It will be the most valuable of the series for us as it is to include all chronological data.

I wrote to Miss Cutter some time ago that I would be glad to rent my apartment to a suitable couple and Mr. and Mrs. Carson Webster certainly sound like good tenants. If they can afford to pay the full rental and something additional for the furnishings I would of course like it. I leave it to you to fix the amount according to what they feel that they can pay. I took away some blankets, and other things like curtains are locked up in a trunk, but if I know that the apartment is to be rented I can get either my niece or my father's maid to come down and put <sup>it</sup> in order. Perhaps, if they take it, you would be kind enough to let me know when they expect to occupy it, so that I may have time to communicate with my niece.)

We are very busy with the third millenium B.C. just now . Some gold earrings we found were turned into four large gold cups by the local press and have caused consequently great excitement and almost continuous knocking at our front door to view the treasure !!!

Ever cordially,

Hetty Goldman .

My dear Mr. Brown:

In the absence of Miss Hetty Goldman I have received a letter from Mr. MacMillan dated May 16, 1938, asking her to notify you at once if she is interested in remaining in apartment D-2 of the Prospect Apartments, which she now rents.

Miss Goldman is at present conducting archaeological work in Tarsus, Turkey, so that it would be impossible for you to receive immediately a reply to Mr. MacMillan's letter. Therefore I am writing in her behalf to say that from conversations with her and letters received from her, I know that she desires to retain this apartment. In as much as she went to the expense of having the walls and woodwork painted, a Frigidaire installed and of purchasing new draperies made to order to fit the windows and new furniture and furnishings adapted to the apartment, and I believe also Venetian blinds, I am certain that she desires to occupy the apartment D-2 for more than the current year.

In view of the shortage of apartments, and the University policy of giving preference to members of its own staff in the rental of its properties, it may not be possible to renew your lease for the coming year.

Applications will be taken from members of the University until July 31st, 1938. After that date apartments will be rented to others.

If you are interested in remaining in your present quarters please notify Mr. Brown in Stanhope Hall at once. He will carry your name on file and be able to give you definite information on August 1st.

Dear Miss Goldman:

Dr. Flexner was delighted to receive your letter of April 12 and asked me to thank you for it as it came just as he was leaving for England to be gone about a month. Since then I have received your interesting report on Excavations at Gözli Kule, Tarsus, March 9-April 16, which I am holding for his return.

Miss Cutter has probably written you the Institute news, so that I shall simply send best wishes and cordial greetings from us all.

May 3rd, 1938

My dear Dr. Flexner;

I received the annual Bulletin of the Institute (No. 7) several days ago and read it, first with interest and then with surprise which, as I thought over the section devoted to the School of Humanistic Studies, developed into a state of mind which I cannot describe otherwise than as puzzled indignation. I wish to say at once that what I am writing is entirely personal. I do not know whether my Father has seen and read the bulletin and whether, if he has, his reactions are similar to mine. I very much hope that they are not, for I should hate to have his serenity disturbed. In my letters to him I make no reference whatsoever to the bulletin, nor to what has disturbed me. I refer to the complete omission of any indication that the Institute is connected for the first time, through the gift of "an anonymous donor" with the excavation of Tarsus. The mention of Tarsus is the same as in the previous bulletin and implies to all readers that the excavation of Tarsus has the same lack of relation to the Institute as it had in other years. ps.

When my Father decided no longer to make his gift through Harvard University, I urged him to come forward and make it personally. As all such enterprises must be supported by individuals of means, I saw no reason why he should not be known as part-supporter of my work. He has, however, always shunned publicity and so, without in any way consulting me first, he made his offer to the Institute which you accepted. This satisfied and pleased me; as it seemed appropriate that the Institute at which I am professor should be connected with what is and will remain for a number of years my chief interest and occupation. It is true that my Father stipulated that his name should not be mentioned, but I feel quite sure that he made no stipulation that the connection of the Institute with Tarsus should remain equally anonymous. Indeed, the announcement of such a connection is the only satisfaction he could have had and it should not have been withheld in fairness both to him and to myself. I had thought that I was done with answering the oft-repeated and tiresome question, "Why is the Institute connected with Antioch and not with Tarsus"? Indeed, as I have freely referred to a connection of the Institute with my excavation whenever the question has arisen, I am certainly put in an equivocal position by the silence of the Bulletin.

I note too, that, although the grant to Miss Day for study of Tarsus Islamic ceramics was made before I left Princeton and although other holders of grants are specifically mentioned, her appointment too is passed over. As I cannot imagine that the Bulletin is hastily written and that what appears as a consistent policy must be attributed to chance, I am writing in all friendliness to ask for an explanation of what on the face of it seems ungenerous to my Father and unfair to me.

Ever sincerely,

Hetty Goldman

May 13, 1938

My dear Miss Goldman:

Your letter of May 3 to Dr. Flexner has come while he is in England. I therefore hasten to answer in order that you may know how the bulletins of the Institute are compiled.

Similar letters are sent to each professor requesting material for the forthcoming bulletin. In reply you wrote to Dr. Flexner on February 11, 1938, a letter, a copy of which I enclose. This information was incorporated in Bulletin No. 7 with the exception of the reference to the manuscript which you had just completed, and that seemed not sufficiently definite for publication at that time. We have never elaborated the statements of the professors, for we have never really felt at liberty to do so.

The statements regarding temporary members were all furnished by the professors in response to our general request for material, the same request that was made of you. We did not ask for specific information about workers, but the professor of his own accord furnished it. We would have been very happy to have included a detailed statement about the excavations at Tarsus, your work, Miss Day, etc., had you included it in your letter of February 11.

My dear Miss Goldman:

Thank you for your letter of April 9. I was delighted to have news of you and to know that the summer in Cilicia is somewhat delayed this year, for which you must indeed be grateful.

I am noting what you say regarding Miss Jones, your assistant, and shall see to it that beginning July 31, 1938, monthly checks of $150 will be deposited to her credit in the Bryn Mawr National Bank.

Mr. Heyl of the Princeton Library reports that three volumes of The Excavations in Cyprus of the Swedish Expedition under the leadership of Einar Gjerstad have been published during the years 1934-37 and the price is $122. I have authorized Mr. Heyl to order these volumes for you and to have them shipped directly to you in Tarsus.

Mr. Heyl states that so far as he can learn Historia Numorum by B. F. Head was last published in 1911. If you referred to a later edition won't you let me know the date and other data that it may be ordered and sent to you?

If you are not returning to Princeton until January 1939 I wonder if you would not think it advisable to sublet your apartment. I think if you are willing we can find a tenant for you for the first term of the Institute year. Mr. Carson Webster of Northwestern University will be a member of the Institute during the first term and will work with Professor Panofsky. Mrs. Webster has written asking for a small house or apartment with bedroom and some kind of sleeping accommodations for one or two more. We are having difficulty in finding an apartment for them for one term, as most landlords wish to rent for the whole year, as you have learned. Miss Cutter knows the Websters and says that they are a very charming couple. They have no children, and I judge the request for sleeping accommodations for one or two more refers to occasional company. Miss Cutter thinks they would be ideal tenants in case you would like to sublet your apartment from October 1 to February 1. Won't you let me know promptly in case the idea appeals to you, and what the rental would be? I am sure the Websters would pay $60 and perhaps more, in as much as it would be a short term, and of course you would be renting it, furnished. <sup>(your apartment)</sup>

Princeton is a paradise of beauty these days - the dogwoods, the lilacs, the wistaria, the azaleas, and the soft greens of the new leaves on the trees, not to mention the gardens of tulips and other colorful flowers. We have had plenty of rain at night and the days have been sunny and clear and mild. How you would enjoy it!

Dr. Flexner and the rest of the staff send you cordial greetings and best wishes.

Sincerely yours,

I was very much delighted to read Mrs. Blackall's letter. Of course, it told me nothing that I did not know before, but I like these things to be put into words. I have never believed that it was right or sound to postpone praise until the time came when an epitaph had to be written. Of course, I am pleased, as will Mr. Bamberger and his sister be also, to realize that Radcliffe shines in Hetty's reflected glory.

Many thanks for your kind words about Bulletin No. 7. We have had an excellent year, but I shall not regret when the pressure, largely due to the outrageous happenings in Germany and Austria, reduces somewhat.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

I thought it might interest you to read the enclosed letter that I received for Hetty and that I expect to forward to her as soon as you return it to me. The letter confirms your judgment of Hetty's work. Perhaps, subconsciously, there is a little vanity on my part in forwarding this letter to you, but it is of rather an innocent character. The letter must not be construed as an appeal for funds as Hetty subscribed for the fund that is now being raised by Radcliffe College before she left for Europe. May I ask you kindly to return the letter to me as promptly as may be convenient for you.

I have read with a great deal of interest, your Bulletin No. 7. You certainly should have great satisfaction in the results you have achieved and the principles you lay down in the Bulletin are of the most ideal nature. I am glad to think that your academic year will soon close and that you will be able to take a much-needed rest.

Dear Dr. Flexner;

The excavation has just completed its first month of work and that is a good moment to take thought of the future. We were naturally somewhat anxious after the seizure of Austria by Germany, but the world having apparently taken that act calmly we have decided to follow a good example and do likewise. When I passed through Ankara on my way down I took occasion to talk with our Charge d'Affaires and he has promised to inform us if he sees any reason to advise our leaving the country. As a matter of fact, nothing could be more peaceful or more favorable to peaceful concentration on work than the state of this country and the growing official friendliness all about us. Under the circumstances I have definitely decided upon a fall campaign in order to profit by a situation which one feels cannot last indefinitely. This will bring me back to Princeton some time in January to stay, this time, a full year.

In many ways I regret the long absence, primarily on account of my Father, but also because I was beginning to enjoy the feeling of belonging to the Institute community. However, the excavation is my first love and fundamentally I fear I am a wandering spirit.

I have secured as my assistant the Bryn Mawr graduate whom I had in mind. She graduated from B.M. about four years ago and is well on her way towards a Ph.D.: a systematic and not wholly uninspired worker, I think she will meet my requirements. She is out here now and will come to Princeton with me whenever I return.

BRYN MAWR COLLEGE

~~AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ARCHAEOLOGY~~

April 9, 1938

My dear Mrs. Bailey;

I have just written Br. Flexner to tell him, among other things that I have been fortunate in securing as my assistant the Bryn Mawr graduate who was my first choice. Her name is Miss Frances Follin Jones and she is at present with us on a special Bryn Mawr travelling fellowship of which she is the first holder. She will stay with me as long as I am working abroad and then return with me to Princeton in January. I have decided to try and keep ahead of the next universal explosion by excavating in the fall and then returning to U.S.A. for a full year. I have talked over the financial situation with Miss Jones and she tells me that she will be able to finance herself until August 1938. Will you be kind enough to deposit the first instalment of her pay on the first of that month in the Bryn Mawr National Bank where she has a checking account?

We are also greatly in need of a rather expensive but absolutely indispensable publication, Excavations in Cyprus of the Swedish Expedition under the leadership of Einar Gjerstad. Two, possibly three volumes have appeared by now and a fourth is planned. If the Institute could purchase this for me it would be a great help to our studies. I would like the volumes already out mailed directly to me here--P.K. 18, Tarsus, Turkey-- and those in preparation to Princeton. We would also like to have the latest edition of B. V. Head, Historia Numorum.

My apartment, which I am loath to relinquish, becomes somewhat of a problem under the circumstances, but I shall write about that later when I have really taken thought and when I feel quite certain that we shall not have to beat a hasty retreat.

Summer is somewhat delayed in Cilicia this year, for which we are profoundly grateful. The heat and the dust always come soon enough. My warmest greetings to all in your office.

Ever cordially,

Hetty Goldman

I am therefore enclosing a receipt of this kind, which I believe will relieve you of any future inconvenience.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

Thanks for your letter of February 17th, which, of course, confirms the opinion I had regarding the Institute for Advanced Study, to the effect that it is exempt from taxation. It has, however, struck me that the Internal Revenue Department may, and probably will apply to the Institute to confirm the payment I made to it and as the Institute, so far as I know, has no record of the payment having been made by me, I think it might be well if you would take such steps as you regard necessary in order to enable the Institute to confirm my payment to it in the event that the Department should make inquiries.

If, in this connection, it should be necessary to divulge the fact that I am the donor, I suppose it will be the best thing for the Institute to enter the donation as having come from me. I find the Department is so inquisitorial at the present time and the amount of the donation being rather large, it is not unlikely that some steps will be taken to verify the donation. Whatever you may do in the matter will be satisfactory to me.

Hetty left in good spirits and I shall be very happy to have you keep an eye on me during her absence and for that purpose, to call on me whenever you may find it convenient to do so.

Dear Dr. Goldman:

Your instructions to your accountants in the matter of the $20,000 were perfectly correct. The Institute is exempt from taxation, as it is an institute operating in the field of higher education and without profit. Whatever we have imported in the matter of books, etc., has always been admitted free of duty, because of the character of the Institute. I think therefore that you will never hear of the matter again if your accountants simply make the deduction as a matter of course. I am sending you enclosed a copy of our Certificate of Incorporation and By-Laws, which bear out the statements which I have above made.

I saw Hetty before she left the other day and I told her, in wishing her Godspeed, that I should keep an eye on her father during her absence. Whenever I am in New York and have an hour to spare in the late afternoon I shall venture to drop in on you.

Sincerely yours,

Dr. Abraham Flexner,
Institute for Advanced Study,
Princeton, N.J.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

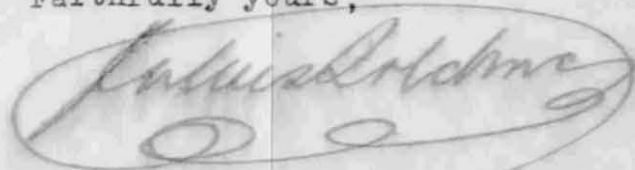

In having my income tax return for the year 1937 prepared by my accountants, I have directed them to charge the $20,000 I donated to the Institute for Advanced Study in 1937 to charity account, on the assumption that donations to the Institute are exempt from taxation. My accountants, however, state that there is no information available to them whether or not, as a matter of fact, the Institute is an educational institution, none of the earnings of which inures to the benefit of any individuals and they therefore state that they cannot definitely determine whether or not the gift will be allowed as a deduction.

My accountants suggest that I write to the Institute to inquire whether it has received a ruling from the Treasury Department that contributions to it may be deducted by the donor. Will you have the goodness to inform me whether you have such a ruling and whether, as a matter of fact, gifts to the Institute are exempt from taxation. I am sorry to put you to this trouble.

I hope you are enjoying the best of health and that I may have the pleasure of seeing you sometime when you come to New York.

With friendly greetings,

Faithfully yours,

Dear Miss Goldman:

I send you herewith agreement, which was in effect until January 1, 1938, of which you undoubtedly have a copy.

Regarding 1938 and subsequent years I send you extracts from letters of President Park of Bryn Mawr and Dr. Flexner pertaining to your excavations in Turkey.

We have no reply from President Park to the questions which Dr. Flexner raised as to Bryn Mawr payments for the years, 1938-1941. If you approve, Dr. Flexner will be glad, I am sure, to write to President Park again making his previous suggestion - that the Institute for Advanced Study handle the Bryn Mawr contributions.

Sincerely yours,

My dear Dr. Flexner,

I am in receipt of the extract you sent me from Bulletin number 6 of the Institute. As a matter of fact I shall probably be working on the same material for some years to come, although a slight change should be made from "prehistoric pottery" to "prehistoric material", as I really cover the larger field. If, however, you wish to add a new item, which would also be completely truthful, I have just completed a manuscript dealing with classical material from Greece. When it will be published I do not know, as it is difficult to place a manuscript which is too long for a journal and does not make a book. However, I have reason to suppose that Hesperia will eventually take it, although it has not been settled.

Very sincerely,

Hetty Goldman

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This is to certify that the bearer of this document, Miss Hetty Goldman, holds a permanent professorship in the Institute for Advanced Study, located at Princeton, New Jersey, and that said professorship began on November 1, 1936.

Dear Miss Goldman:

I write to confirm our conversation of the other day and accordingly to authorize you to engage an assistant for one year beginning October 1, 1938, at a salary of $1,800 with the understanding that expenses for travel are to be included in this amount.

Sincerely yours,

February 2, 1938

Dear Miss Goldman:

As I told you over the telephone today, we are prepared to offer Miss Day a grant of $1800 for the year 1938-1939. These grants are made for a single year, but they have been renewed in some cases. The appointments, however, are to be construed as annual.

I am sorry that through oversight I neglected to write you what I said to your father on the subject of your salary. I am anxious to raise it to a proper academic basis, but at the moment, the financial situation being what it is and our income remaining about the same despite the fact that our endowment is almost doubled, there is absolutely nothing that I can do. However, when the good times come, as I know they will, you will be among the first to be remembered.

With all good wishes,

Sincerely yours,

ABRAHAM FLEXNER

Dear Mr. Leidesdorf:

You will remember that a friend of Miss Goldman's has advanced $20,000 towards meeting the expenses of the excavation which she is carrying on at Tarsus. The remainder will be forthcoming shortly, as well as the contribution promised by Bryn Mawr.

I have this morning the enclosed note from Miss Goldman. I should be very happy if you could carry out her wishes as expressed therein.

The Institute will be at no expense for this excavation though it will receive credit for it.

Ever sincerely,

ABRAHAM FLECKNER

My dear Dr. Flexner:

Would you be kind enough to have $10,000 of the excavation fund money sent to the Chase National Bank, Park Avenue and 60th Street, the check to be made out to my name with Excavation Account added? I shall draw out the major part of it again in the form of a letter of credit.

I am planning to leave on February 23rd from New York and somewhat earlier from Princeton.

Very cordially,

(Signed) Hetty Goldman

Jan. 1938

Miss Goldman

If gone another year, would need the next $10,000 for campaign. Authorization required similar to letter January 1938 sent to Mr. Leidesdorf. Miss Goldman will make request in sufficient time in advance to take care of it before funds are needed.

Miss Florence Day will be here next year.

Miss Goldman will have assistant.

Inasmuch as Professor Mitrany has the room on the top floor adjoining Miss Goldman's, she would like to have a room on one of the other floors for these two young women - the room that Miss Guinn now has or Professor Mason's room are possibilities, if Professor Meritt occupies all of the second floor.

Later - March 7, 1938

Professor Meritt suggests Professor Capps' office for both Miss Day and Miss Goldman's assistant.
