December 16, 1949

Dear Professor Panofsky:

It is a pleasure for me to inform you that at its meeting of November 15, 1949, the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of the Institute for Advanced Study adopted the following resolution:

It was moved and carried that, operative as of July 1, 1950, the minimum total pension of present full Institute professors should be $6000; that the obligation of the Institute is to provide the difference between this amount and the pension provided through insurance; that the additional payments should be covered in the ordinary budget.

Thus, under the terms of this resolution, the funds available to you from the TIAA policy which you now hold will be supplemented by the Institute to bring the total to $6000 a year. The Trustees of the Institute understand that in some cases a professor may desire to make provision for the support of his wife in the event of his death. In general, the Institute will allow each professor to exercise this option with regard to its contribution to his retirement allowance, and in general accordance with the terms of options as established by the TIAA.

Yours sincerely,

Robert Oppenheimer
Director

Professor Erwin Panofsky
Dr. Oppenheimer:

In pursuance of our discussion at the last faculty lunch, I take the liberty of informing you that Dr. P. H. von Blanckenhagen of the University of Chicago will give an illustrated lecture under the joint auspices of the Institute and the Department of Art and Archaeology of Princeton University on Thursday, January 6th, 1949. The lecture will be given in McCormick Hall, Room 411, at 8:30 p.m. The subject will be: "The Odyssey Landscapes from the Equiline; observations on landscape painting in classical Antiquity."

Dear Professor Deknatel:

Dr. Oppenheimer will be very pleased to receive your good letter of June 19th about Professor Panofsky. Dr. Oppenheimer is away from Princeton and will not return until early in October. I send you this note so that you may know your letter has been received and that it will be brought to Dr. Oppenheimer's attention when he returns in the Fall.

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer:

I am writing to tell you on behalf of the members of the Committee for the Charles Eliot Norton Chair of Poetry and my colleagues in the Department of Fine Arts at Harvard how highly we all value the experience of having Professor Erwin Panofsky of your Institute with us this year as Charles Eliot Norton Professor.

Professor Panofsky not only gave us a brilliant series of lectures which will be an important and permanent contribution to knowledge in our field when they are published, but also his enthusiasm and skill as a teacher made a deep impression and stimulated not only our advanced graduate students but all of us as well. We all came to feel that Professor Panofsky is one of the most gifted and one of the most effective people in our profession. It was with great regret that we saw him return to Princeton. We are, therefore, grateful that your Institute permitted us to borrow one of your most distinguished members for this academic year.

Sincerely yours,

Frederick B. DeKnatecl, Chairman
Department of Fine Arts, and
Committee for the Charles Eliot Norton Chair of Poetry
Professor Erwin Panofsky has returned to the Institute and will occupy his old office (recently used by Professor Wade-Gery). He will probably remain in Princeton for five weeks. If he cannot be reached at the Institute, his home address is 97 Battle Road, Princeton 1679.

School of Humanistic Studies

P.S:

Professor Panofsky would like to see Dr. Oppenheimer for five minutes. If you can give him an appointment later on will you call me?
Dear Dr. Aydelotte:

October I, a sad day for all of us, shall not pass without a word of gratitude. Working, God knows, against odds, you have succeeded in making the small world of the Institute a "better place to live in"; and everyone of us knows that you leave us, not only as a just and unselfish Director but also as a friend. We, personally, owe perhaps more to you than most of my colleagues; but if I should ever forget you unfailing kindness and understanding as a superior I shall never forget how you and Marie got me out of my house for dinner when Dora had gone to the hospital in Boston.

Fortunately this is only "farewell" (in the literal sense) and not "good-bye." You will remain our trusted adviser; both of you will remain our neighbours; and all the three of you our friends. And you will be able to do much good—perhaps even more than ever before—when all your time is your own. So it is with confidence and in hope rather than in sorrow that we offer you our thanks and our wishes.

Yours as ever gratefully,

PAN
Cambridge, Sept. 29th 47

Dear Marie,

It is with deep gratitude that I think of the years that you have been our "boss" because from the beginning you were not a boss but a dear friend to everybody. And I especially have felt again and again your great kindness when I was so sick and you never got tired of coming to see me and help me with your warm and understanding friendship.

We intended to give you a photograph of Olden Manor, but it can’t be taken until the Fall, so that the trees may not hide too much the loveliness of the architecture. I hope you will accept it then in remembrance of these years and as a small token of our gratitude! With love from both of us to both of you,

As ever yours

Dora

Dear Pan:

Many thanks for the copy of your letter of May 9th. I certainly think Harvard ought to come forth with this small amount which Bostrom needs. I am troubled that you do not have a better prospect of accommodations, but if you once get a foothold in the Continental Hotel I imagine you will be able to stay there.

I am a little troubled also about the first sentence of the third paragraph in which you say something about "the whole thing seems to be now somewhat in jeopardy". I hope that is not meant to apply to your professorship. There are a great many expedients we could resort to so far as accommodations are concerned which have not yet been tried.

Yours sincerely,

Frank Aydelotte
Professor Erwin Panofsky
Institute for Advanced Study
9 May 1947

Dear Professor Deknatel:

Thank you very much for your letter of May 6. I cannot conceal my disappointment about the course the Bostrom affair seems to have taken in spite of the fact that you assured me orally that there would be no difficulties in this respect. Since Mr. Bostrom is going to participate in my seminars, probably, I do not see why this should not be considered as a fulfillment of the attendance requirements which you mention, and I think that he would not mind taking some other courses if a minimum number should be required by the Harvard regulations. If you insist, I shall take the matter up with my Director, but I should very much hate to do this; first, because the Institute, which generally is very liberal in its awards of stipends, has thus far always insisted on permanent residence as the one requirement for membership; second, because I had already mentioned the case at a faculty meeting and said, in view of your oral assurance, that Mr. Bostrom would probably go to Harvard on a fellowship so that the Institute would not be responsible for him during the next academic year. Please let me know at your early convenience how the matter stands; if Harvard University insists on refusing a fellowship to Mr. Bostrom, I should, however reluctantly, take up the matter with the Institute because it would be inhuman to disappoint him after having already postponed his trip once and having raised his hopes to such an extent that he has already booked his passage for the end of September. I am including a copy of his application of March 15, 1947, which he sent me upon being informed that the original had not yet been received in Cambridge. I trust that in the meantime the original is in the hands of the Harvard authorities so that this copy is in fact not necessary.

Thank you very much for your trouble on our behalf so far as accommodations are concerned. Meanwhile, the manager of the Continental Hotel wrote me that they would probably be able to guarantee us accommodation in a single room with the understanding that we would be moved into a suite as soon as possible. But this is still very indefinite. I noticed that you did not answer my question concerning the possibility of finding accommodations on the campus itself and wonder whether this amounts to an answer, in the negative. At any rate, I hope that the uncertainty will be dispelled before long so that we can make definite plans as to the future.

Since the whole thing seems now to be somewhat in jeopardy, I hesitate to submit a list of such pictures and books as might be included in the contemplated exhibition of Flemish paintings. Yet, in the hope that everything will ultimately turn out well, I might offer... some suggestions which I have noted on the enclosure. I have not mentioned anything in the National Gallery because I believe that they are prohibited by law from lending. I had thought, however, that Harvard University, by using its influence, might obtain the loan of the van Eycks, Rogers and Flemalles belonging to the Kaiser Friedrich Museum in Berlin. This would, of course, be quite an enormous attraction and a sheer blessing to all concerned, but I am afraid that the iron may be too hot even for Harvard to touch. On the other hand, if properly presented, the idea might even appeal to the authorities in Washington in that such a partial showing of the Berlin pictures would testify to their clear conscience.

With best regards,

Sincerely yours,

E. Panofsky

Dear Ed:

Many thanks for your kind letter of April 3 and your congratulations on my degree -- except that I do not subscribe to your theory that I have deserved it more than others. Of course, I was gratified, not too much by the thing itself as by the spirit behind it so far as my colleagues in the department of art and archaeology are concerned.

The news about the Directorship is very good. Dr. Aydelotte had already informed me confidentially and warned me to treat the matter as top secret because he feels that a leak on our part would be very unfortunate. So, I have not mentioned it to anybody yet and trust that you have done the same. On April 14th it will, however, be announced at a faculty luncheon. Alexander, of course, is entitled to know about it, but we felt that, since he does not want to be bothered during this term, we should not take special steps to break in on his self-chosen isolation.

With my renewed thanks and all good wishes for an undisturbed period of recreation,

Dear Dr. Aydelotte:

I am most grateful to you and the Trustees for having granted me a leave of absence that will enable me to accept the invitation to Harvard. It is not without reluctance that I shall leave the Institute for so long a period in so critical a year, and I have very grave doubts as to whether I shall be able to live up to the requirements of the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship of Poetry; but I do think that an opportunity like this is not one to be passed up.

So, I have now formally accepted the invitation (see enclosure) and wish to thank you most heartily for having supported my request to the Trustees.

It gives me great pleasure to inform you that the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees at their meeting on February 18, 1947 approved my recommendation that you should be granted leave of absence on half salary for the academic year 1947-1948 to enable you to accept the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship of Poetry at Harvard. Dear Dr. Aydelotte:

To my surprise I received the enclosed invitation to fill the Charles Eliot Norton Chair at Harvard University during the academic year 1947-1948. Since this is, as rightly stated in the letter of Provost Buck, about the greatest distinction that can be conferred upon a scholar in my field, I am, naturally, very much inclined to accept this invitation -- all the more so as this will give me the opportunity of printing my book on the Character and Origins of Early Flemish Painting without the usual worry about subsidies, etc.

I should, therefore, be very grateful to you if you would be so kind as to recommend to the Trustees that a leave of absence on half pay be granted me for the academic year 1947-1948. As I have never asked for such a leave since 1935 and, as I understand, a similar arrangement was approved by the Board when Professor Meritt was called to the Eastman Chair at Oxford University, I do hope that this request will not be considered excessive by the Trustees and yourself.

Looking forward to your reply, I am

Dear Provost Buck:

Please accept my warmest thanks for your letter of January 23. Needless to say, I am most appreciative of and deeply grateful for the honor of being invited to take the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship of Poetry for the academic year 1947-48 and can only say, in all sincerity: "Utinam dignus essem."

I wish I were able to accept the invitation at once, but I am not able to do so, first, because I naturally need the consent of my Director and Trustees; and, second, because previous obligations of different kinds will have to be straightened out. In the hope that Professor DeKnatel may help advise and assist me in these matters, and also with the selection of a suitable subject, I have communicated with him and he has kindly agreed to see me by the middle of next week.

In the meantime, however, and in the hope that the ultimate outcome will be according to my inclinations, I wish to express my sincerest gratitude to yourself as well as to the Committee on the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship which has done me the honor of selecting me.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Pan:

Many thanks for the revision of the war service item for the Bulletin. I will print it just as you have revised it only checking with de Tolnay.

I am delighted to get this echo from Elderkin. We have signed a contract for moving the houses, have made a most exhaustive study of other possible places to put them on Institute land and can find nothing better than the site already chosen, with the possible change that we may be able to put a few of them south of Goodman Road. I have had the levels run and find the land south of Goodman Road higher than I had at first thought. I think we shall have to make our final decision partly on the basis of economy in fixing roads and in making connections with outside utilities. The neighbors will, I hope, by this time have quieted down and I have had a few expressions of opinion which closely parallel Elderkin's. I am delighted that you have had such a good holiday. I have spent mine entirely on these houses except for weekends in Waterford but I am glad that the houses have come through.

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

Many thanks for the summary for the Bulletin. Unfortunately it needs more corrections than I can find room for on the slip, inasmuch as my, Weitzmann's, and Frankl's work was not connected with a book but with maps and lists, and as Mr. Lee, who did work on a book covering Italy is entirely omitted. About Dr. de Tolsnay's contribution I am not quite clear and should advise you to check with him directly. Thus I propose the following:

Professor Erwin Panofsky: Contributed to the preparation of maps and tables of information about the cultural monuments in Germany for the use of the American air force and artillery. Drs. Weitzmann and Frankl assisted in the same project. Dr. Lee edited a handbook of the art treasures in Italy, likewise intended for our armed forces, and Dr. de Tolsnay assisted in the preparation of a similar book covering the city of Paris."

We have spent four most agreeable weeks in this sleepy little town and hope to be home by September 7. Dora has picked up nicely, and I am curious about
The outcome of our difficulties with our aristocratic neighbors on Newlin Road. We spent a day with Prof. Elder-kin, who lives on Haslitt Street and has a charming place near Wiscasset, and he was perfectly outraged about the obstructionist tactics of Messrs. Bochner etc. He for one would go to any length to support our project.

With kindest regards from both of us,

Yours most sincerely,

Dear Mr. David,

Please accept my cordial thanks for your kind letter of June 26.

I deeply appreciate the honor of being invited to be the Rosenbach Fellow in Bibliography for the academic year 1946/47 and to deliver the Rosenbach Fellowship Lectures in this year. I should have been delighted to accept this invitation should I have found it possible to do so, and it is with sincere regret that I must beg to inform you to the contrary.

In the first place, I honestly think that whatever contribution I may be able to make would not live up to the requirements of the Rosenbach Fellowships. Like every art historian, I am very much interested in book illustrations, both miniatures and prints, but my knowledge and experience in this field is comparable only to the knowledge and experience of a General Practitioner in, let us say, the special field of neurology. I simply do not possess that highly specialized erudition and training which would qualify me to appear in so distinguished a series of lectures especially devoted to "bibliography," which, even if this term were to be extended to its widest possible limits, means a study of books and books.

In the second place, I have already accepted an invitation to give the Colyer Lectures at Brown University in the spring of 1947, and the preparation and elaboration of these lectures (which, like the Rosenbach Lectures, have to be published), together with a commitment toward the Princeton Press, will take up all my time for the foreseeable future.

You would greatly oblige me by kindly transmitting both the expression of my gratitude and my regrets to University of Pennsylvania as well as to Dr. Rosenbach.

Very sincerely yours,

Erwin Panofsky

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

I am thanking you in writing for your letter of yesterday, I can only respect what I already told you this morning when I saw you at the Institute, namely that I am thoroughly grateful. I will not pretend that a raise in salary is a matter of indifference to me (some English writers chose name escapes me for the moment, says very lightly that “a contempt for money is, if not the root, at least a very definite sign of all evil”). But I am really less gratified for the raise in itself than by the intention which it would seem to reveal, and by the spirit in which it was offered. I take it to mean that the Institute has some confidence in its humanists and their efforts—and I know that it resulted from your personal attitude toward myself. It is the third element which I—as you will be the first to understand—appreciate the most. Very gratefully yours,

Pan.

Dear Mr. Turner:

Professor Ervin Panofsky of the Institute for Advanced Study was formerly a professor at Hamburg. Professor Panofsky was surprised and pleased to receive a communication recently, a copy of which I enclose, inviting him to resume his professorship at Hamburg. This Professor Panofsky is unable to do for the reasons which he gave in his reply, a copy of which I also enclose.

Since letters are very slow in reaching Germany, Professor Panofsky would like to send a cablegram expressing his regrets so that the University of Hamburg would have the earliest possible notice and could consider other candidates for the professorship.

We find that Western Union is unable to transmit cablegrams to Hamburg and I am writing to you to ask whether you could possibly manage it. I enclose a copy of the cablegram which Professor Panofsky would like to send. He would, of course, be glad to pay the costs of transmission. If you have facilities for sending this cablegram, I should be grateful if you would do so at once, billing me for the cable toll. I suppose the thing could be managed through Army channels but I thought it would be more suitable to have it sent through the agency of the Division of Cultural Relations.

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

I am enclosing my answer to the "recall" to Hamburg University. Since this recall was worded in an unusually personal and cordial fashion I thought it proper to answer in the same spirit, all the more so because Hamburg seems to be one of the few really "denazified" universities in Germany. I still would like to know how it was possible for the scholars now in power to survive throughout the Nazi regime although their attitude was well known and never concealed. To my certain knowledge the present Rector and Dean managed to lecture for twelve years without once giving the Nazi salute!

Very gratefully and sincerely yours,

Warmest thanks for your letter. I am delighted with the news about Dora as Marie will be when I pass it on to her on Monday.

I think the case for an extension of Forsyth's stipend is an extremely good one. There will be time to get the School of Humanistic Studies together to act on the matter some time early in September.

I had a most delightful month in England and for once my passage to and fro were made without delay or adventure of any kind. Please give my warm regards to Mr. Tarrington and affectionate good wishes from us both for Dora for continued improvement in her health.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

Hoping that you are safely home from what we hope was an interesting and rewarding trip, we wish to greet you and to report that Dora has made very good progress in the cool air of Maine, under the loving care of our old Emma, and (as my little Abbot Suger would say) "sub comministratione omnium fidelium." She now exists entirely without drugs, learns to walk and has recently been to the barber's and to the local drugstore under her own power. We have indeed much to be thankful for, and I wish to repeat my special thanks to you for that raise of my salary which made it possible for us to manage without accepting that invitation to Chicago under such unfaorable conditions. I also wish to thank you very much for your kindness in notifying me of the favorable though short-termed decision in the matter of poor Walter Friedlaender even though you were certainly terribly rushed in those last days before your departure for England.

Mr. George Forsyth has notified me (as he has probably notified you) that he has been granted a stipend from the Rockefeller Foundation for next year in order to write a book on the problem of scale in architecture. This is, I think, very nice in every respect. The only drawback is that the Rockefeller stipend starts, so far as I know, on January 1, 1946, whereas our stipend ends on October 31 (or on October 31, I am not quite sure about this point). Thus, is a gap of either two or three months; and since Forsyth will use the remainder of the year to put the final touches to the monoograph on St.-Martin d'Angers, which he has good as finished while he was staying with us, I was thinking whether it might be financially possible for the Institute to extend his stipend for just those two or three months. I make this suggestion entirely on my own accord and, I must admit, not without egotistic motives. Forsyth has been of great help to me in the preparation of my books on Suger and on the Gothic style, and I should greatly benefit by his presence if he could be around for a few months until the end of the calendar year.

With all good wishes "von Haus zu Haus"
and my renewed thanks for everything,

Most sincerely yours,

Mr. Luxinillo, still grateful for your assist-in the matter of Condonation, with to be remembered to you, too!

Dear Prof. Panofsky:

I have received legal advice to the effect that it will be necessary for the Institute to obtain the approval of the National War Labor Board for increases of salary for members of our staff before these increases can be legally put into effect. I had assumed that this would not be the case since the regulations specifically exempt "organizations operated without profit and exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes." It appears, however, that the War Labor Board in making this exception in one paragraph has practically withdrawn it in the next and that specific permission will be necessary for any increase which we may desire to make.

I am taking urgent measures to get a ruling from the War Labor Board but if it proves impossible to get them to act before the middle of July, your check for that month will be kept at the old rate until such time as we receive permission to make the increase voted by the Board of Trustees. If and when permission is granted by the War Labor Board for this increase, I shall ask to be allowed to make it retroactive as from July 1, 1945.

Miss Miller will be glad to give you at any time such news as there is concerning the progress of our negotiations.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr. Nef:

The reprint of the Program of Studies laid down by the Committee on Social Thought reached me precisely at the time when the doctors have made up their minds about my future plans.

Although the recovery of Mrs. Panofsky has thus far proceeded without major complications, it has proceeded very slowly and the doctors fear that it would not be advisable for us to go to Chicago this fall. I cannot but submit to this expert judgment, much though I should have liked to accept your kind invitation. On the other hand, my conscience is somewhat set at rest by the fact that your program already provides for quite a number of courses and seminars in precisely that medieval field which I had proposed to make the subject of my own efforts had I been able to come. Thus I, rather than The University of Chicago, will be the loser.

In spite of this, I am truly sorry that circumstances have prevented me from seizing upon this fine opportunity and I wish to express to you, as well as to your colleagues, my sincere gratitude for the unfailing patience and consideration with which you have borne the long and tiresome uncertainty imposed upon our plans. Let me hope that you will forgive me for finally disappointing you with a negative answer.

With my best personal regards,

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

I have your kind letter of yesterday and wish to express my heartfelt gratitude. It would be hypocritical to deny that I am thankful for the financial relief, especially at this somewhat difficult time. But I think I am honest in saying that this consideration is secondary to two others. I do appreciate the academic recognition expressed in the action of the Executive Committee; and more deeply than that do I appreciate your personal attitude in this matter, and this not so much with respect to what you did for me (and I know it was not easy) as with respect to how you did it. My “official” gratitude belongs, of course, to the Executive Committee and the Board of Trustees; but you will figure me for reserving my private gratitude to yourself.

With best regards and wishes from both of us,

Sincerely yours,

Pan.

Dear Pan:

I think this proposal for a collection of documentary prints is admirable. I wish it could be realized in Princeton. I had great fun in choosing the illustrations for my Rogues and Vagabonds from material of this character and could have found a great deal more than I actually used. I was limited by the Oxford University Press to a given number: I think fifteen. After the prints were all made, I discovered in the manuscript collection of the British Museum the forged passport which you may have noticed in the book, and I managed to persuade the Press that this was so interesting that they ought to let me add it, which they very kindly did. The passport was actually a greasy old document which this vagabond carried around with him on his travels.

One convenient thing about these documentary prints is that since they are usually not works of art, reproductions are just about as good as the originals. I hope the project goes through.

Dear Dr. Eydelotte,

I thought you might be interested in the enclosed plan for a (or rather, the) collection of "documentary prints," the value of which you have already recognized by adding illustrations to your delightful book on Elizabethan card-sharps etc. The Institute is, of course, not directly involved; but if the project were to materialize, preferably though not necessarily in Princeton, it would be a great blessing. Perhaps Miss Richardson will be good enough to return the enclosures to Mrs. Lieberman for filing.

Dear Pan:

McDonough is not going to get a Guggenheim Fellowship. On the other hand, Morey is very much interested in him, primarily because the Index of Christian Art would be so useful to McDonough in the work he is planning.

Do you think it would be feasible to find anything for him at Princeton University? Since no Guggenheim aid is possible, he would of course need a stipend from some source.

I am holding the material about him on the chance that you might care to speak to anyone in the University about his case.

Dear Doctor Aydelotte:

Of the two cases you brought up recently that of E. A. Lowe seems clear-cut and so I will handle this one first. If present premiums are continued through July 1, 1945, the first annuity payment to be made August 1, 1945, the annuity under Option III of settlement would be at the rate of $2,517.84 a year, which would be continued in one-half benefit to his wife who, we understand, was born June 15, 1876.

As to the case of Professor Panofsky, our records show that current premiums on his contract are $153.11 a month, which is at the rate of $1,837.32 a year. This is less than the figure you stated to me orally and which is mentioned in your letter of January 10. If premiums of $153.11 monthly are paid through July 1, 1957, the single life annuity then available would amount to $376.17 a month, which is at the rate of $4,514.04 a year.

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

Please accept my sincere thanks for your letter of December 6, informing me that the Board of Trustees, on your recommendation, have agreed to give me a leave of absence on half pay for three months in the autumn of 1945 in order to enable me to accept the invitation extended to me by the University of Chicago.

I have informed the University of Chicago that, unfortunately, the condition of Mrs. Panofsky is such that it would be equally inadvisable to bring her with me to Chicago as to leave her alone for so long a period, and that my decision must therefore depend upon the result of a medical treatment which will begin this week. Since this result will not be apparent until the middle of Ja-
January, I have asked the University of Chicago to consider itself free to appoint another Visiting Professor in case they wish to complete their plans for their academic year without delay. But even if they should decide to keep their offer open until the middle of January or so my answer will of necessity depend upon the verdict of the doctor.

I shall not fail to keep you informed of further developments. In the mean time, I wish to express my appreciation for your very kind attitude in this as well as other matters.

It gives me pleasure to report to you that the Board of Trustees at their meeting on December fifth approved my recommendation that you should be given leave of absence on half salary to enable you to accept the lecturership for one quarter at the University of Chicago.

I understood and reported to the Trustees that this would necessitate your absence from Princeton for about three months. The Institute will continue its payments on your annuity contract at the usual rate during the period of your absence, and assumes that you will be prepared to do the same.

I am very glad to report that the Trustees share my feeling that an appointment of this kind is good for the Institute as well as for the individual concerned.

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

Upon returning from our Faculty luncheon today, I found a letter confronting me with a problem similar to that of young George Forsyth, only that it does not affect the Institute directly. Yet I should like to bring it to your attention.

The letter comes from Professor Henry Goddard Owen, Dean at Middlebury College and Director of the Bread Loaf School of English which you doubtless know better than I do (we were up there for a very delightful summer in 1942). Mr. Owen has been, and still is, a Lt. Sr.G. in the Navy and anticipates his discharge some time this winter. He can, of course, return to his twofold job in Middlebury and Bread Loaf, but he seems to think that a new President of the College, elected during Mr. Owen's absence, would make things more difficult for him than in the past. He would like, if possible, to obtain a post "with some educational foundation such as the Rockefeller or the Carnegie, in some kind of administrative work." And he has asked me whether I knew of such an opportunity.

This, of course, is not the case. The Rockefeller and Carnegie Foundations are not in the habit of consulting me in such matters, but I thought I might mention Mr. Owen to you. He is a man of great culture, and really amazing administrative ability. He has made Bread Loaf a kind of paradise for both students and faculty, has an admirable judgment of personalities (in the Navy, too, he was employed as a "Procurement Officer," selecting young men and women for the educational program), and it would be a blessing, I think, if a man of this type were to exert some influence in two organizations which, or so it would seem, have developed a somewhat chilly attitude toward the humanities of late. Knowing your genuine concern for the humanities, I thought you might perhaps like to know the name of a really first-rate man should he be needed somewhere.

Most sincerely yours,

Dear Panofsky:

Will it be satisfactory to Forsythe if he knows sometime in September what we can do for him next year? I find that the budget for Humanistic stipends is exhausted. I had already lifted the amount from $10,000 to $15,000 and I don't think I ought to go further without consulting the Treasurer. I expect to see him in New York September 6th and hope to get the members of the Humanistic faculty together in Princeton shortly after. I think this is a time to go all out in expenditures for research and I feel now that the financial condition of the Institute would justify the additional outlay, but I do not think it right to make definite commitments without such formal consultations as I have indicated. I hope Forsythe can keep his plans flexible until we can reach a decision.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Dr. Panofsky,

It is sad and disappointing that you will not be able to accept our invitation to come to Bryn Mawr next year as visiting professor. I had hoped that you would be able to convince Mr. Aydelotte. I quite understand of course that he would want you in Princeton, but I had somewhat persuaded myself that he would be willing to release you for one year.

We are going to reconsider plans as soon as possible and make some appointment of a visiting professor for the year. This plan must come first, but as we make it we shall keep in mind your very kind suggestion that you would be willing to give a series of lectures at Bryn Mawr. I need hardly say that we should like very much to have these lectures, not only for the Art Department, but for the College, and if we can arrange them we shall be delighted.

Dear Miss McBride,

Let me thank you very much for your kind letter of February 14th. I wish to repeat how much I appreciate the honor of this invitation and to express my thanks both to the Faculty and to yourself.

I have at once submitted the matter to Dr. Aydelotte who, like myself, is fully aware of the difficult and even dangerous situation of the humanities in general and of the exceptionally precarious situation at Bryn Mawr. He feels, however, that the Institute for Advanced Study, too, might lose coherence if its members, their number already reduced by military service or urgent war work, were to move their residences from Princeton. Such an event, he feels, would set a precedent not altogether desirable from the point of view of an institution which, as a matter of fact, asks almost nothing of its members except to do their work and be available in Princeton. And I, much though I like to teach, cannot help realizing that this objection is not unjustified. Dr. Aydelotte thus feels that my presence in Princeton is particularly useful at this moment when we are making plans for work after the war.

Would it be any use to Bryn Mawr to have me come over to give one course of ten or twelve lectures? This would be agreeable from my personal point of view because it would give me an opportunity to keep in touch with young people while not infringing on the interests of the Institute. Such an arrangement would, of course, have to be an extra, since obviously you will need another scholar in residence. I only submit this idea in case you feel that I might do some good even if I have to limit myself to one course of lectures and private consultation with the more advanced students. I could easily arrange to stay overnight and be available for personal interviews which, as I know from experience, are often more valuable to the more serious student than the lectures as such.

With my renewed thanks, I am,

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Eydelotte,

I am enclosing the draft of my answer to Miss Briscoe of Bryn Mawr, and shall ask you for another brief interview on Monday to discuss it. I have not yet included any recommendation of other candidates. After leaving you I recalled that they do not want anybody without teaching experience in this country, so that it would be difficult for me to recommend Mr. de Toledo. And under these circumstances it might be better if I should refrain from any recommendation, all the more so as Miss Briscoe has not asked me to make one. But perhaps you, having been apprised of the whole thing already me, could write to Miss LeRoi. But it would be from President to President as it were.
However, you will settle this point on Monday, and if you think it all right
I am quite prepared to add another paragraph to my letter if you are kind eough to help me to formulate it.

With many thanks,

Sincerely yours,

Erwin Panofsky.
February 14, 1944

Dear Mr. Panofsky,

After a period of uncertainty we have finally arranged for the work in History of Art to be divided this semester between Mr. Robb of the University of Pennsylvania and Mr. Held of Barnard College. In many ways I regret not having at least one of the professors in residence, but the arrangement on the whole seems a good one and we are at least to this point blessed by the continued presence of Mr. Bernheimer.

Now that the present semester is arranged I am free to write you to express our pleasure that you are willing to consider a year as visiting professor at Bryn Mawr and to send you our most cordial invitation to come for the year 1944-45.

I realize of course that it may be difficult for the Institute to release you, but our need is very great. It is in the humanities generally as well as in art, for we have had many losses; and yet we have more students than before and much interest and vigor. The contribution you would bring would be unique. We should feel it so in any year, but to look forward to your coming as visiting professor after these war years would be an even greater satisfaction.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Hydelotte,

Please accept my thanks for your continued interest in my friend Kopp. So far as I know, Jaeger and Harvard have taken steps with the Committee, emphasizing however the fact that Harvard could not commit itself for the future. Since they had 1200 fellowships at last year's committee meeting, I do hope that this reservation will not be held against Mr. Kopp and that he can go on—at least for a year. I wonder whether he should not apply for a Guggenheim Fellowship. He definitely has the caliber and perhaps he is too modest to say so himself.

Before receiving your letter, I wrote to Miss Eckee - not wishing to trouble you personally - that we should like to stay here another week longer in view of the fact that my son Hans and his newly acquired wife... are with us and have no other place to go.

I hope I am ashamed to prepare, no very definite idea as to whether the term of the Institute starts before September 22 and do have to apply for a leave of absence up to this date. If so, may I send herewith?

In a place like Kennebunkport an event like the review in Time cannot possibly escape the attention of the victim. I was rather amused, for not in my wildest dreams should I have imagined that anyone might ever call me "personable." But I am looking forward with some trepidation to the more professional reviews, when my book will be weighed, not by the pounds of paper but by the number of errors "ed will inulm reminihit."

With my renewed thanks and our very best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Erwin Panofsky.

Dear Miss Eichelser,

As it happened, my recently married son Hans and his wife received a leave of absence. They first arrived Sept 10th, and since they had no place to live, we have hired a house in Kennebunkport for about three days here for 10 or 12 days. This means that I shall not be back to Princeton until September 22. I have, frankly speaking, no idea when the official term starts and when the first faculty meeting is to be held. Thus I don't know whether I have officially to apply for an extension of my one leave of absence or whether I can simply notify you -- or I haven't done that -- I shall stay until the above date. If I do not hear from you to the contrary, I shall assume the latter. Otherwise kindly drop me a note and I shall take the necessary steps.

We had a very good time here, and I get some work done.

With best regards from both of us,

Sincerely yours,

Dear Panofsky:

I have this morning received the formal minutes of the last meeting of the sub-committee of the Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Scholars and note that the $1200 for Kapp was formally voted subject to an application from Werner Jaeger asking for Kapp's services there. My recollection is that I heard of this indirectly and let you know at the time, but I have only today seen the formal document. I hope very much that this will settle Kapp's difficulties.

Did you see the admirable review of your book in this week's number of Time?

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

I thank you very much for your kind reception of the long-delayed Dürer book. Your note came amusingly, before I had seen the book myself. Now I have a copy too, and must say that the Princeton Press did a really beautiful job, considering the scarcity of labor and materials and the great technical difficulties attendant upon the Second Volume. Their whole staff seemed to take a real interest in this publication, and I feel very much obliged to them. But in addition I am also most grateful to you for your invaluable and in fact indispensable help in securing the subsidy without which the publication would not have been possible. I thought it better not to mention this debt of gratitude in print, but wish to assure you of my very keen appreciation.

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

This is only to inform you of a letter just received from Dr. Saxl in London which contains the following passage:

"As regards our future the prospects do not seem unduly bad. We may be attached to London University. The President of the Board of Education is taking a strong interest in the [Warburg] Institute, and a number of people have made up their minds that we should not fade out. But it is very good to know that if these plans fail — and nobody can as yet say with 100% certainty that they will not — there is a chance of other developments. You will say it is about time we knew whether or not our funds will expire at the end of December, but strange as it is the war has made us worry much less about these things than in peacetime."

This passage would seem to confirm my impression that the Warburg Institute, in spite of occasional small panics, will always "muddle through" in London.

My friend Kapp wrote me that his application for a Rosenwald fellowship has been turned down, allegedly because it has to be en-endorsed by some institution (which surprised me because this objection was not made to another application which I had recommended about half a year ago). Since I cannot do or say anything more I have taken the liberty of suggesting to Prof. Kapp that he may seek an interview with you. Should he do so I should consider it a great personal favor if you would be kind enough to see him. Perhaps you remember that I introduced him to you, a very long time ago, while he visited us in Princeton.

Life here continues to be so cheap and agreeable that we have decided to extend our stay to the middle of September. Fortunately my work has reached a stage at which I can write without depending, for the moment, on a Library.

With all good wishes from both of us,

Sincerely and gratefully yours,

Erwin Panofsky

Dear Panofsky:

Many thanks for your letter of July 26th. I wrote to Duggan and understood from him that the Emergency Committee was going to act on Professor Kapp's application at a meeting to be held on July 28th. I have not yet heard the results of this meeting, but I shall not fail to let you know as soon as I have any news.

I do not think the postponement of the publication of your Dürer is a serious matter. It may be even better to have it come out in September than in August.

I am very much interested in the invitation you have received from the Morgan Library and heartily approve your acceptance if you find yourself free to give the lectures.

I thoroughly agree with all that you say about the common room and as soon as you return I am very much inclined to get my niece to come down for a conference, with a few of us here as to what could be done to improve it. I am strongly inclined to try to dispose of the rug, even at a sacrifice. My niece would like to have beams on the ceiling, but whether this can be arranged I do not know. I feel very strongly moved, however, to make such such changes and improvements as can be made in the room without too much expense.

I am just back from a week's holiday at Buck Hill, where I got a lot of golf and a very good rest.

Princeton, N.J.

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

I am again in your debt for you two kind letters, one referring to the application of my friend Kapp for a Rosenwald Fellowship, the other to my retirement problems. It is most kind of you to have written to Mr. Duggan, and I hope that the Committee will be favorably disposed toward an opportunity of doing "so much with so little," to paraphrase Mr. Churchill.

Concerning my annuity, I wish to repeat that I am very sorry to have caused trouble by my indecision, and that I am quite prepared to take the consequences if the Trustees should be unwilling to make the change from $4000 to $4500 now. If, on the other hand, the change can still be made I quite agree with you in feeling that it would be the simplest thing to start the greater deduction in August or September instead of now. By then the difference will have been figured out, and it will be easy for me to reimburse the Institute with the difference (probably something in the neighborhood of $20.- per month) in cash. In fact we live somewhat more cheaply here than in Princeton.

I am very much interested in your plans to improve the Common Room. The rug is of course the main obstacle, but unfortunately not the only one; the room has so many doors and windows that it resembles a "social hall" on a boat rather than a sedate academic common room, and it might be advisable to make a virtue out of this fault by an attempt to "lighten" everything in it (perhaps even slip covers for some of the chairs may do some good if suitable material can be had). At any rate I shall be delighted to look at your friend's designs and give my opinion for what it is worth.

With my renewed thanks for your patience and consideration,

Sincerely yours,

Erwin Panofsky.

P.S. A piece of bad news: the date of publication of my Dürer has been postponed once more to September 15 on account of difficulties with the bindery. A piece of good news: The Morgan Library has asked me to give some lectures in the second term this year. In view of the possibility (not probability, unfortunately) of a war job I have not committed myself, but hope to have your approval of acceptance if I should stay in Princeton any way.

Dear Panofsky:

I have your letter of July 17th and have immediately written to Duggan to find out what Kapp’s prospects are.

The house in which you are living must, according to your description, be a marvelous place. I should love to see it.

I may want soon to get your advice about the common room. I have always been unhappy about it, and a niece of mine, Vivia Barnard (daughter of George Grey Barnard, the sculptor), who is an interior decorator, was staying with us recently and she was rather horrified at the ugliness of the common room as compared with the beauty and charm of the library. She thinks the common room has great possibilities and would love to try her hand at doing it over. Her ideas so far are to do something about the rug – either have it dyed or dispose of it altogether; to have somebody draw a relief map – a kind of bird’s-eye view on a large scale – to put over the fireplace; to paint the wooden mats around the Chinese stone pictures in old Chinese red, leaving the frames black; and to add some other touches of color to the room.

I am, on principal, a little shy of interior decorators, but Vivia is a very gifted person and there is a certain stamina about the things she does, quite different from the fluffy effect which most interior decorators produce. I may get her to propose a design for your criticism.

With kindest regards to Mrs. Panofsky and yourself, I am

Yours sincerely,

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

I thank you very much for your kindness in forwarding the letter from the Principal of Brasenose College concerning my enigmatical busts. It reached me with the customary delay, for Kennebunkport is a pretty out-of-the-way place. But it is very beautiful, and we live most agreeably in a house of 1785 which has 69 windows, 6 major and 2 minor doors, and—depending on the method of counting—from 17 to 21 rooms on seven levels.

Unfortunately I must bother you once more with the predicament of my friend Ernst Kapp about whom I spoke to you shortly before I left. Following your very good advice, he has applied for one of the Rosenwald fellowships, and from my correspondence with the Emergency Committee—which apparently sent out the usual questionnaires without delay—I conclude that his chances are not bad. He is indeed one of the quite outstanding classical philologists, both his lectures at Columbia University and his book on the Foundations of Greek Logic were a definite success, and it is not his fault that, with the regrettable decline of classical studies, Columbia was unable to keep him on. The present trouble is that Miss Drury is on an apparently rather indefinite sick leave, and that no one seems to know when a decision about his application can be made. Since he has no money whatsoever he is naturally more than anxious to know how matters stand, at least when a decision is to be expected. Would it be possible for you to enquire about this and to let me know? I know that I continue to be a nuisance, but I cannot help profoundly sympathizing with one who lives in a permanent state of insecurity and still manages to produce such excellent work.

With our very best wishes for you and your family,

Most sincerely yours,

Erwin Panofsky.

Dear Sonners:

One of the members of our faculty, Professor Erwin Panofsky, who is one of the leading art historians of the world, has become very much interested in two stone heads which are mentioned by various early writers as having been over the hall door next to the old Quadrangle of ENC. Various legends concerning these heads are in existence. They have been supposed, without any foundation, to represent Alfred the Great and Robert the Bruce. They are mentioned in Good's History and Antiquities, and the inventory of 1939 alludes to two 17th Century carved heads which may be the same ones. An old life of Alfred the Great says that these heads were found when the excavations for the present college buildings were in progress.

Professor Panofsky thinks it possible that these may be early Gothic sculpture of the school of Chartres and has asked me whether I could find out if the heads are still in existence and if so whether it would be possible to have them photographed for him, of course at his expense.

I enclose an old engraving of these heads which is probably extremely inaccurate, together with a note which Professor Panofsky gave me about them. If you or someone at Brasenose could answer his four questions and could have the heads photographed, if they still exist, Panofsky would be most grateful, as indeed I should myself, since I am interested in everything pertaining to the history of ENC. If the heads are still there and it is possible to have someone make photographs of them, please tell them to send the photographs to me together with a bill and I shall send a check on my Oxford bank. Please tell the photographer to take pictures from two or three angles, since Panofsky thinks that if they are actually old sculptures found when the excavations for the present college buildings were in progress, they may have considerable importance.

The war news looks much better now, and we are all very excited about the conference which is going on between Churchill and Roosevelt in Washington. It looks as if we were going to see great events this summer.

With kindest regards, I am

Dear Dr. Gydelotte,

I really know how to thank you adequately for your note from Philadelphia. The honor of being elected a member of the oldest learned society in this country came as an absolute surprise to me, and I do not unjustly know how I have deserved it. I suspect that it is chiefly to you that I have to thank not only for the congratulations but also for the res ipse, and I should like to add, that I deeply appreciate your kindness in acting me so soon and in so friendly a spirit almost as much as the fact itself. What actually puts this on my mind is, of course, the feeling that I, as a newcomer, have been accepted by a society which not only embodies the best of eighteenth-century humanism (and humanity), but is also one of the most typically and admirably American institutions.

With my renewed thanks,

Most sincerely yours,

Erwin Panofsky
Dear Professor Panofsky,

I hesitate a little to write you and yet I am going to put that hesitation behind me and write directly to send you a request I have had very much on my mind.

On February fourth we expect to lose Mr. Bernheimer to the Army. He is the last of the full members of the Department of History of Art; Mr. Soper went to the Marines in 1941 and Mr. Sloane to the Navy last May. As you can imagine we are in a very difficult situation, and our losses unfortunately extend far beyond this Department. It is a sort of slough from which no ordinary measures could rescue us.

I am writing to inquire whether you would consider asking for leave from the Institute to come to Bryn Mawr for the semester or for the semester and the year 1944-45. The work I shall not describe to you. In any case it could be altered somewhat in accordance with your interests. I am also asking Mr. Bernheimer to go to Princeton to discuss the matter with you.

I simply want to tell you that we are in serious difficulty and that, while we should value your coming at any time, your coming now would bring to the Department and to the humanities more generally the new power and spirit we need. I hope you can consider our request.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Aydelotte,

Miss Eichler has just informed me that the Carnegie Corporation has granted the subsidies for Tolnay’s “Michelangelo” and my own “Dieu.” I could hardly believe my ears, but it actually seems to be true. Knowing that this enjoyable and unexpected grant — which now ensures the publication of our book by the Princeton Press — is entirely due to your kind intervention, I try to accept my thanks ex orde.

If only similar miracles could happen in a multitude of other cases.

When the Knibbels, the Messers and the Meritts had dinner with me the other night we all were very sorry to miss Mrs. Aydelotte and yourself. But we regale that both of you needed and deserved a little rest, and we hope that your stay in Florida lives up to your expectations and our wishes.

With my renewed thanks and respectful regards from both of us,

Very sincerely yours,

Erwin Panofsky
Dear Professor Panofsky:

It was very kind of you to write me as you did on April 7th. Such misunderstandings are bound to occur in view of the fact that the two institutions are so close to each other. The fact that you were listed as being a professor at Princeton is no embarrassment to me.

With all good wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. President,

A short while ago the "Loyalty" Committee — founded by immigrants from the Nazi and Fascist oppressed countries for the purpose of giving a fighter plane to the United States as a symbol of loyalty — asked me to give my name as a sponsor. Since the cause is a worthy one I did not hesitate to comply with this request, naturally presuming that the Committee knew who I am. In the Committee's advertisement in the New York Times (April 7, 1942), however, I find myself listed as "Professor, Princeton University" instead of "The Institute for Advanced Study." The only thing I could do was to request the Committee to correct this error should the advertisement be repeated. But I wish to express to you my regrets, and to assure you that I had no opportunity of correcting the mistake before it had happened.

Respectfully yours,

Erwin Panofsky.

As a result of a telephone conversation between Dr. Aydelotte and Professor Panofsky as to whether Professor Panofsky's office at the Institute could be made available to Dr. Mitrany on his arrival, it was today agreed:

That the office can be made available to Dr. Mitrany, provided:

1) that Professor Panofsky may reserve the right to occupy the office himself at any time, if and when heating and transportation facilities should make it necessary.

2) that other office space be provided for Professor Lee in the Humanistic pavilion.
Dear Pen:

I have been reading your Dürer by day and by night—dazzling!

The inner reconstruction, psychological, intellectual and aesthetic, is incredibly complete and convincing: summing up—to use a phrase you once kindly used—"several decades of work both infinitely patient and intelligent," and, I may add in your case readable, apt, and delightful.

The book calls to mind what you said once at Lemon Hill years ago, when we were canvassing what will now be the current problems of art history: "Biography restudied on a new basis, for one." This is it.

I hope to have a copy of my Rococo inscribed to you within a month.

Yours,

FISKE
