Status of the proposed
bond issue:

Mr Rowe summarized the current status of the proposed bond issue, including the proposal for the refinancing of past construction debts. After a general discussion of various aspects of the question, the following resolution was approved for presentation to the Board:

The joint Budget and Finance Committee recommends to the Board of Trustees for its approval that, subject to prevailing legislation, the Director of the Institute be authorized to market up to $8.6 million in bonds on the understanding that up to $4.1 million of the funds borrowed to replace funds previously borrowed from the endowment to cover construction costs be invested in fixed income securities. The Committee recommends further that decisions relating to the amount to be borrowed and the interest rate be left to the discretion of the Director, it being understood that the Director will clear his decision with the Executive Committee just prior to the actual offer of the bonds.

Memorandum of Agreement with Rockefeller + Company:

Mr Hansmann stated that Rockefeller + Company had assumed management of the endowment portfolio and that the results to date had been quite satisfactory. After consideration of counsel's comments on the proposed agreement between the Institute and Rockefeller + Company, the Committee agreed to present the proposed agreement without modification to the Board for its approval. An examination of the fee schedule and its application to the equity portion of the endowment portfolio revealed that the fee for Rockefeller + Company would be in the $190,000 per annum range rather than the substantially larger figure shown in the proposed fiscal year 1981 budget. It was agreed therefore that the proposed budget should be altered accordingly.

The existing Investment Objectives and Portfolio Guidelines were then discussed, and certain changes were introduced by the Committee. These changes are incorporated in the attached revised version of the document.

It was agreed by the Committee that the portfolio would be divided into an equity account, a fixed income account and a third account for non-marketable securities.

General Portfolio Review:

Messrs. Fanning and Logan of Rockefeller + Company reviewed the equity portion of the portfolio, and Mr Lee Minton of The Fidelity Bank reviewed the fixed income portion. Observations by the Committee on guidelines for the management of the portfolio are contained in the revised version of the document entitled Investment Objectives and Portfolio Guidelines.

Reallocation of Existing Restricted
Fund Accounts:

The Director reported on the creation of the Oswald Veblen Professorship and indicated that this had been achieved in part by the reallocation of existing fund accounts. He pointed out that this procedure made possible the utilization of funds that were otherwise segregated from the operating budget and provided matching opportunities for outside donors willing to contribute to the establishment of endowed professorships. The Director announced that the Faculty of the School of Mathematics had concurred in the arrangement described above and that additional funding would now be sought to bring the endowment of the Oswald Veblen Professorship from its present $500,000 to $1 million. Additional arrangements involving the reallocation of existing restricted fund accounts will be brought to the Board for approval as they materialize.

Depreciation

Account:

Following a discussion of the advisability of creating a separate account for the depreciation fund, it was decided to table the matter for the time being.

Other business:

The Director described the proposed gift to the Institute of a remainder interest in their Princeton residence by Mr and Mrs David Du Vivier. A detailed analysis of a proposed provision of an annuity to the Du Viviers in exchange for the gift of this remainder interest was presented to the Committee in the form of a letter from Institute counsel Barbara Paul Robinson. After discussion, the following resolution was approved for presentation to the Board:

The joint Budget and Finance Committee recommends to the Board of Trustees for its approval that the Director of the Institute be authorized to acquire the property offered to the Institute by Mr and Mrs David Du Vivier. It is further recommended that the Director work out in detail the financial aspects of two alternative approaches--one based on a gift to the Institute and the other based on an annuity arrangement--and to clear his decision as regards these two options with the Chairman and the President of the Board.

Under the chairmanship of Mr Taplin, the joint Finance and Budget Committees then reviewed the proposed budget
