My dear Doctor:-

It has come to my attention that Dr. Albert Einstein, has been engaged to teach "Advanced Study" at Princeton University and you are taking great pains to insure his comfort and convenience. Therefore may I have the privilege of suggesting that possible Dr. Einstein would appreciate having a Secretary who is familiar with German customs and languages as well as those of this country? If you are considering giving Dr. Einstein such a convenience, I would like to apply for the above mentioned position.

I have worked as a Secretary in Germany for a number of years and I think I would be satisfactory in every manner to Dr. Einstein.

I was born in Germany, well educated -o 10 years schooling and about 3 years High School, speak high German, English and some Spanish. I am also an excellent Photographer and worked for newspapers abroad for 5 years.

I would appreciate having a personal interview with you.

Very respectfully yours,

Sehr geehrter Herr Dr. Flexner:

Durch einen illustrierten Artikel im Record Weekly, der mich sehr interessiert hat, bin ich darauf aufmerksam geworden, dass Dr. Albert Einstein im kommenden Herbst seine Taetigkeit auf der Princeton Universitaet aufnehmen wird. Hierdurch erlaube ich mir hoefl., folgende Anfrage an Sie, sehr geehrter Herr Doctor, zu richten.

Da Sie bemueht sind, Herrn Dr. Einstein jede nur moegliche Erleichterung in seiner Taetigkeit und jede Bequemlichkeit zu schaffen, waeren Sie evtl. geneigt eine Deutsche Sekretaerin fuer genannten Herrn anzustellen? Wenn ja, dann erlaube ich mir, Ihnen meine Dienste ganz ergebenst anzubieten.

Ich habe in Hamburg (Germany) als Correspondentin und Sekretärin gearbeitet und habe beste referenzen. Ich habe eine gute Allgemeinbildung, spreche tadelloses Hochdeutsch, Englisch und etwas Spanisch.

Ausserdem bin ich eine vorzuegliche Photographin, habe einen 10/15 Voigtlaender Apparat, kann jede gewuenschte Aufnahme machen.

Ich waere Ihnen sehr verbunden, wenn Sie mir eine persoenliche Unterredung gewaehren wuerden und zeichne in dieser Erwartung mit

Sehr geehrter Herr Dr. Flexner:

Dieser Brief ist unabhaengig von den beiden andern.
Wenn Sie mir auch eine absagende Antwort geben muessen, bitte ich trotzdem diesem Schreiben die groesste Aufmerksamkeit zu geben.

Ich moechte Sie bitten, wenn Dr. Einstein seinen Aufenthalt in Princeton genommen hat, mir die Moeglichkeit zu geben, die ersten Aufnahmen von seiner Taetigkeit und seinem Privatleben zu machen. Ich bin eine Hamburger Presse - Fotografin, kann hier aber in meinem Beruf nichts werden.

Da das Deutsche Publikum sehr interessiert sein wird ueber die Einstein Angelegenheit, moechte ich an saemtliche illustrierte Zeitungen Bilder von Herrn Dr. Einstein in seinem neuen Wirkungskreis und Heim senden.

Der Kern meiner Bitte ist, dass Sie mir als erste die Gelegenheit geben photographische Aufnahmen zu machen. Ich waere Ihnen sehr verbunden, wenn Sie mir das Datum, wann Herr Dr. Einstein und Gemahlin in Princeton ankommen, bekannt geben wuerden. Ich glaube kaum, dass Herr Dr. Einstein etwas dagegen haben wird; evtl. kann ich die Aufnahmen von dem Heim ja schon vorher machen.

Auch in dieser Angelegenheit waere eine persoenliche Ruecksprache wohl das beste. In Erwartung Ihrer geschaeetzten Antwort begruesse ich Sie mit

Gentlemen:

I am very much interested in your new school after having read about it in the newspapers. It seems to me that this school will be an important factor in American Education.

At your convenience, will you please send me a catalogue. There is no hurry about this as I have no particular need for it at the present time. My own school days are over and my Son, who I hope will attend your College, is at present five (5) years old. However, I should like to see your catalogue as I am interested in your new venture.

Miss Esther S. Bailey, Secretary,
The Institute For Advanced Study,
Princeton, New Jersey.

Dear Miss Bailey,

I duly received your kind acknowledgment of the receipt of my books of poems containing the four sonnets in honor of Professor Einstein on pages 140 and 141.

I also heard from the Library of the University and from Dean Russell of the Department of Astronomy.

On account of the large amount of mail which is sent to Professor Einstein it is doubtful whether my books were handed to him, or if they were, that he found the Sonnets.

I am not looking for an acknowledgment to secure his autograph, nor do I wish to take up his valuable time, but it would give me great pleasure if I knew he had read these sonnets which I wrote with great care and enthusiasm in his honor, not only on account of his scientific achievements but also because of his standing as a great personality.

Therefore, I am enclosing two pages cut from my book

ALEX B. UHRIG

Containing these sonnets and wonder whether it would be possible for you to have them brought to his attention. They have been admired by many.

It is difficult to express a scientific theory in a sonnet, especially one so recondite as the scope and physical proof of the relativity theory. I was pleased, therefore, at seeing the article by Dean Russell in a recent issue of The Scientific American, in which he started out with the threefold proofs just as I had mentioned them, viz: deflection of light rays as shown by the sun's eclipse, the matter of Mercury's orbit, and the movement of the solar spectrum to the "red". Of course, I have read of the other proofs but they are so technical that it would be hard to express them poetically and would probably not be understood if they could be expressed.

I am only an amateur poet and know nothing about relativity except what I have read in Dr. Einstein's book and the Jeans article in the Encyclopedia Britannica from which I have quoted in the Glossary of Book Two.

Possibly my sending Dr. Einstein these poems when they were published in December might be construed as bad taste because No. 2 quotes his remark about "the inevitable war with one's own wife", and Mrs. Einstein had just passed away a short time previously, which was a great shock to all his admirers.

"The Litany For A Dictator" on page 39 is a paraphrase of Swinburne's "Litany" which was based on old Hebrew prophecies. My paraphrase is a jeremiad against Adolph Hitler, as also is my "Hymn to Liberty" on page 135, which, too, is a paraphrase from Swinburne.

ALEX B. UHRIG
OCONOMOWOC
WISCONSIN

Possibly Dr. Einstein would appreciate these also if brought to his attention. The metre is unusual in both cases, the "Litaney" being especially fitted for a jeremiad, and the "Hymn" being written in the beautiful double-rhymed classical metre of Swinburne's "Hymn to Proserpine".

In case Dr. Einstein's copies were lost I should be pleased to send him additional copies if desired. Thanking you for whatever you can do in this matter I am,
Very sincerely
Alex B. Uhrig.

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer:

It would be a herculean feat to convey to you the deep impression made on the United Nations Delegates who met with you at the Institute on March 10th. I can only say, very simply, that our one morning hour there was by far the shortest of the entire visit.

The Delegates were especially interested in the scope of the Institute's program and in the freedom of approach accorded to its members. They have all mentioned how much they enjoyed talking over these and other questions with you more informally at coffee. A discussion of the Institute's unique characteristics compared to systems abroad followed at a lunch with students of the Graduate School. Needless to say, we had a late start back to New York.

On behalf of our Committee, the Delegates, and myself, I wish to thank you for taking the time from your crowded schedule to meet with us. It meant more than I can ever say to those foreign guests and to the success of their trip to Princeton.

Dear Mrs. Leary:

As you probably have been previously informed, plans have been going forward for sometime to split off from United Service for New Americans those local immigrant care functions which it has carried. On July 5, 1949 the New York Association for New Americans formally initiated operations.

The New York Association for New Americans is responsible for the provision of care and assistance to Jewish immigrants who take up residence in the City of New York and its immediate vicinity. The major functions it is conducting, and which have been transferred from USNA to NYANA are placed in the following departments: Family Service, Religious Functionary, Vocational Services, Physicians and Dentists, and Business and Loan.

USNA continues to assume responsibility for the same national services it provided prior to this reorganization. These include National Migration Services, Location and Search, Port and Dock, Port Shelter and Settlement. These services will be carried on cooperatively with the agencies and communities of the country in the same manner as in the past. However, all matters relating to Jewish immigrants who have settled in New York City or to other residents of New York City should be referred to NYANA, whose position and relationships are the same as any other local immigrant care agency.

Cordially,

Joseph E. Beck

Dear Mrs. Leary:

You have received an invitation to the Annual Meeting of United Service for New Americans to be held in New York on Saturday evening and Sunday, January 8 and 9 at the Biltmore Hotel.

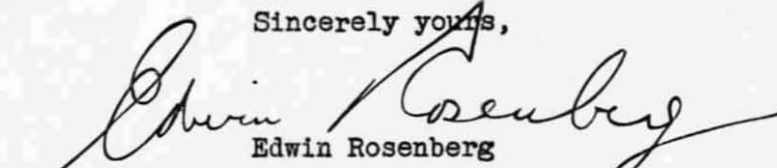

I am writing this personal note to give you the detailed program and to urge your attendance. The enclosed program speaks for itself. The Saturday evening session is designed to provide an intimate and overall discussion on the problems and needs of USNA and its cooperating agencies in the light of the latest developments. On Sunday, in addition to the regular business, there will be three leading representatives of Government who will utilize our meeting as a platform for broadcasting their views on what the country is doing and what it needs to do towards solving the world-wide problem created by the large numbers who are still living in the demoralizing atmosphere of displaced persons camps.

USNA's Annual Meeting will be a forerunner to those of the United Jewish Appeal in Atlantic City on the following Wednesday and of the General Assembly of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds in Philadelphia during the succeeding weekend.

Helping as many as possible of the Jewish displaced persons in Europe and elsewhere to find haven in this country and become an integral and productive part of American life is one of the greatest responsibilities facing communities today. I cannot stress too much, therefore, the importance of your attendance and that of other representative community leaders, to join in our deliberations.

I shall appreciate the prompt return of your reservation card and I am looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to greeting you in person on January 8 and 9.

Sincerely yours,

Edwin Rosenberg

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer:

On July 15, Mr. Homer Neville, senior partner of one of the best known architectural firms in the middle west, wishes to visit the Institute at Princeton.

We are about to engage in the construction of a building to house a newly established Center for Engineering Science in connection with the University of Kansas (but de jure separate). This Center is conceived as an area resource and will be concerned with advanced research and graduate study. It is envisaged that there will be a minimum of experimental laboratory work involved.

In any event, I hope that you or one of your staff might make it possible for Mr. Neville to view the physical plant in which the Institute operates, and I would express in advance my appreciation for whatever opportunities you can make available to Mr. Neville.

JUN 24 1957

Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer
Head, Physics Department
Harvard University

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer:

We are carrying on a project involving the measurement of the human energy required for performing household tasks. One of the objectives of the study is the procurement of information to be used in the development of design for home construction and facilities.

Architects have suggested that it would be worthwhile to know the relationship between stair tread depths and riser heights and the energies involved in climbing stairs without and with loads carried in various ways.

A stair treadmill would seem to be the answer to our search for a device to enable us to make the study in our laboratory. The architect in our Clothing and Housing Research Division told me that he thinks he remembers that, when he was working with a firm that did some construction (perhaps remodeling) work at Harvard, he saw a stair treadmill. He thought it was in the physics department.

We have not been able to locate in the recent literature any reference to such a construction and so we are "grasping at straws" in our effort to get information as to possible sources of construction advice and use information. I am sure that we can devise the necessary construction, even if we can't find anyone who has used or built one, but we might save ourselves considerable time and money if we could get in touch with someone who had had experience of any kind with one.

If your department does not have such a piece of equipment, we would appreciate your having one of your folks make at least a cursory inquiry as to whether or not there is one anywhere at Harvard.

We will appreciate any attention you can give to our inquiry.

Dear Miss Murray:

In response to your request, we are enclosing a copy of our booklet, which is about the only prepared material we have on the Institute for Advanced Study. We hope that this will be of help; and would be glad to try to answer any further questions.

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer:

We have had a request from our U. S. Information Service Library in New Delhi, India, for information and literature on American institutions for advanced research on behalf of the Jawaharlal Nehru Memorial Trust. The Trust has decided upon the establishment of an Academy of Advanced Studies to serve as the national memorial to Jawaharlal Nehru. It is intended that the proposed Academy should embrace Science and Humanities, with emphasis on advanced research. Our New Delhi post is of the opinion that the Academy could develop into one of the major institutes of advanced study in the country.

The New Delhi Committee of Experts, which has been examining various academic matters relating to the proposed Academy, would particularly like any available literature on the establishment and operation of similar American institutions, the courses of study or research conducted, and the mode of selecting participating scholars.

I shall appreciate receiving from you any available literature on the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton that might assist in this project. Your early attention to this request will also be greatly appreciated, since our post has indicated an urgent need for the materials.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Captain Hayward:

Dr. Oppenheimer has asked me to thank you for your letter of February 25th and to send you the enclosed pamphlet, which describes briefly the scope and aims of the Institute. As you will see, the Institute has no formal program leading to a degree, and it is therefore doubtful that we can be of help to you in enlisting possible officer candidates. The various branches of the Armed Services have sent officers here to participate in some of the programs being carried on at the Institute, particularly the electronic computer project and the work in meteorology being done there; but these have generally been men of seniority and experience in the particular field.

I hope this information is of help to you.

Dear Mr. Oppenheimer:

In my capacity as Officer Procurement Officer for this area, my job is the enlistment of interested eligible college students and graduates in programs leading to Marine Corps commissions upon receipt of their college degree. We have programs which could be of interest to both male and female students. In order for me to present these opportunities as fairly as possible to all interested persons, it would be greatly appreciated if you could furnish me with a copy of your current college catalog.

Thanking you in advance for the above request.

Dear Sir:

Enclosed with this letter you will find a statement by several outstanding South Africans protesting the intention of the Malan government to institute the segregation of races at the University of Capetown and the University of Witwatersrand. It is thought that this declaration might be of interest to you particularly in view of NSA's recent communication on this matter.

As this letter indicates, there is a well-organized movement in South Africa whose objective is to frustrate Dr. Malan's intentions. Particularly active in this matter is the National Union of South African Students, the representative student organization of the country. NSA's entire campaign is the direct result of NUSAS's request to all national unions of students to assist them on this issue. It was the National Union of South African Students who spearheaded the successful drive several years ago to prevent the implementation of discriminatory practices in South African universities.

I hope that this additional information will be of assistance to you and that you will communicate your feelings on this subject to Dr. Malan.

IOWA STATE COLLEGE, AMES, IOWA

STATEMENT ON THE THREAT TO THE UNIVERSITIES OF THE WITWATERSRAND AND CAPETOWN

A Commission of Enquiry has recently been appointed "to investigate and report on the practicability and financial implications of providing separate training facilities for non-Europeans at universities." We, the undersigned, wish to express our alarm at the exclusion from these terms of reference of what must surely be regarded as the fundamental underlying questions. These questions are: (1) Can it be shown that "separate training facilities" are in fact necessary, more especially at those universities which traditionally do not practice academic segregation? (2) Is there any need to interfere with the existing rights and freedoms of such universities? (3) And, finally, is there any advantage to be gained, either educationally or in the field of race relations, through imposing academic "apartheid" on all South African universities?

Four different systems operate in South Africa at present. There is, firstly, the University of Potchefstroom, whose Charter permits it to admit European students only. Secondly, the Universities of Stellenbosch, Pretoria and the Orange Free State, though not restricted by their Charter, in practice do not admit Non-European post-graduate students. The University College of Fort Hare, affiliated to Rhodes, gives preference to Non-European students. Thirdly, there is the University of Natal which conducts separate classes for Europeans and Non-Europeans. Fourthly, there are the open universities of the Witwatersrand and Cape Town which, with certain exceptions due to practical considerations, admit Non-Europeans on the same criteria as Europeans.

The practice followed by the open universities has not given rise to friction or internal tension. On the contrary, successive generations of students have enthusiastically affirmed the wisdom and correctness of opening the university to Non-European students, while similar resolutions have been passed by the University Council and staff. It is significant that the students of Rhodes and the Convocation of Natal voted by overwhelming majorities against academic segregation.

In a country like South Africa, where race attitudes and prejudices vary so greatly, it is understandable that the tradition and practice of different universities should reflect these variations. This is, in fact, the present position. Students are therefore able, within certain geographical limits, to make their own choice of the type of university environment which they prefer. The Prime Minister, however, considers the mixing of races in certain universities, "a crying anomaly", and the unmistakable implication of the Government's proposed action is that it intends, without the assistance of the Commission, to deny students the right to exercise their own choice and to interfere with the traditional right of universities to order their own affairs within the limits of their Charter in order to impose an artificial and stultifying uniformity.

It is because the true aims of a university can only be promoted in a free intellectual environment that the inviolability of this freedom is of such paramount importance. The functions of a university are not only to impart method and fact and to train students for a profession, but to create a body of men and women who share a sense of civilized values. It must encourage the fearless pursuit of truth and knowledge and teach students to think for themselves. To fulfill these aims it must be free to attract the most able students from every racial group, to welcome independence of outlook and to promote the fruitful interaction of mind upon mind. We consider that, within South Africa, the open universities of the Witwatersrand and of Cape Town approach nearest to this conception of a university. We record our deep conviction that it would be a tragedy for the future of this country if the Government compelled these now open universities to depart from their established practice.

One of the chief justifications advanced for abolishing the open system is that it leads to social mixing. Precisely what is meant by "social mixing" is not clear. The present position at the open universities is that all students attend the same classes (except in the clinical training of medical students), use the same facilities and can participate in student government and student cultural activities. Non-Europeans do not take part with Europeans in dances and sports activities. What the opponents of the open system apparently have in mind is that it leads to miscegenation. We believe that this fear is mistaken. Experience both in South Africa and the United States of America has shown that racial intermixture takes place predominantly at the lowest economic and educational levels. The problem has not, in fact, arisen at the open universities. To wreck a fruitful experiment for fear of such imaginary dangers is both arbitrary and fanatical.

The very fact of the existence of the two open universities has enhanced South Africa's reputation overseas. But it has meant more than that in South Africa itself. It has made possible contacts between students outside lecture halls and laboratory classes - an essential part of university education. It is these contacts which promote the transmission of Western standards and values to all students, European, African, Asiatic and Coloured. It has given concrete expression to the desire for goodwill between Europeans and Non-Europeans. It has led to greater tolerance and understanding, for it is only by meeting together that people of different groups can come to understand and respect each other.

The isolation of Non-Europeans from European students will inevitably increase group prejudice and engender a heightened nationalism in the segregated universities. This process is already manifest in South Africa.

To destroy the open system and replace it with complete segregation or even the fatal system of internal segregation would be to destroy one of the last bastions of tolerance and enlightenment in South Africa and to drive bitterness and despair deeper into the heart and mind of the Non-European.

Dear Mr. Nichols:

In answer to your letter regarding the compilation of scholarship information, I can give you only in brief outline the type fellowships available at the Institute for Advanced Study:

1. Amount of aid - The exact number and amount of the grants offered by the Institute is not fixed; each year grants-in-aid averaging about $3500. per member are offered to scholars in the United States and abroad; applications may be made for these grants, but actual membership is the invitation from the Faculty.
2. The main qualifications for members in the Institute are a doctorate degree or its equivalent, and a project of study along the lines followed by the Institute Schools.
3. The number of members vary each year, but at present the approximate number of post-doctoral students is about 100.

I trust this information will be helpful for your sub-commission. It may be added that many members come to the Institute on outside fellowships.

Yours sincerely,

Attn: Committee on Scholarships

Gentlemen:

The Subcommittee on Scholarship Opportunity is compiling information on all scholarships, fellowships and prizes available to students in the United States. Upon the completion of this research, a catalog will be published which will list each scholarship by condition and the school or organization offering the prize. We feel that such a catalog will assist in a more extensive and equitable use of these scholarships by aiding students in discovering the scholarship opportunities in America.

In order that we may make our catalog complete, it is important that we have a list of all scholarships offered by your institution. The information on each scholarship should contain the following facts:

1. Amount of aid
2. Qualifications or restrictions
3. Approximate number of students applying annually or the number of times the scholarship has lapsed

Our catalog will not be complete unless the information from your institution is included.

Your interest and cooperation in this important work is vital to the success of the scholarship opportunity plan and to the continuation of the American ideal of educational opportunity for all.

Very sincerely,

Lee Nichols

Dr. Fred Armstrong, Field Representative of U. S. Steel Foundation, called on M. C. Morgan today. The major purpose of his visit was to learn more about the Institute. He read the brochure, and talked for half an hour about what we are doing. The U. S. Steel Foundation is only four years old; it disburses perhaps ten million dollars a year, and perhaps of this two million or more to education. It is entirely possible that they would be interested in the support of a certain number of members in basic research, although Armstrong had no authority to make commitments.

The Executive Director of the Foundation is Dr. W. Homer Turner, 71 Broadway, New York City. I am sending them, at Armstrong's request, a modified financial report.

In this connection, I wonder if I may not presume on your kindness and request that you send me copies of your more important literature and forms. We shall undoubtedly benefit much from the conditions required of scholars and scientists working under your auspices, the privileges they enjoy and the sharing of the products of their efforts. Dear Dr. Oppenheimer:

I am writing at the suggestion of Professor David Goddard of the University of Pennsylvania in order to call your attention to the special Fellowship in Science and General Culture which, with the help of the Rockefeller Foundation, is being offered by our Department of American Civilization. The fellowship was announced almost a year ago and has produced some very likely candidates, but it was Dr. Goddard's feeling when I talked with him the other day that our committee had not done enough to bring the fellowship to the attention of those scientists who are most interested in problems of this kind and who would be most likely to know a young man able to take advantage of so unusual an opportunity.

We are looking for a young man who has recently taken his doctorate and is well grounded in one of the basic sciences but who has a concern for the broader social and cultural implications of science today and who looks to a career which might take him out of line with existing academic opportunities. We would hope, through this man, to develop a new point of view toward this problem. For that reason we wish only an absolutely first class mind and personality coupled with intellectual daring.

The competition for this fellowship officially closed this week, but we are holding it open for a few weeks longer to make sure that we have not missed the man that we are out to discover. Do you have anyone in mind whom you wish to nominate?

Yours sincerely,

The Director

Princeton, New Jersey

Dear Sir:

The University of Pennsylvania Chapter of the Society of the Sigma Xi traditionally extends invitations to speak at one of its quarterly meetings to scientists of outstanding accomplishment in all fields of study. In planning our program for the season 1955-56, we are seeking information concerning the availability of individuals for speaking engagements on or about 18 October 1955, 17 January 1956, 14 March 1956 and 16 May 1956.

The Institute is well known as a central point for European scientists. If it is convenient, we would be grateful for information concerning European visitors at the Institute with whom we might negotiate concerning an address to this chapter. An honorarium of two hundred dollars ($200.) and expenses is awarded by the chapter for a speaking engagement.

Thank you very much. With very best wishes.

Dear Mrs. Verna Hobson:

I am writing you to express my belated thanks for sending us a copy of your staff and membership list and, secondly, to return the favor. You will find enclosed a list of the Press Club correspondents and the news media for which they work.

In addition, I have enclosed a pamphlet explaining the nature of the Press Club. Though somewhat dated, it may be of interest to you in the event that you are unfamiliar with the operation of the organization.

If at any time you have a suggestion for a feature article on some aspect of the Institute, I would of course be interested to hear about it. There is a member of the Press Club in the office from 2 to 5 every afternoon should you ever have occasion to contact us by phone.

Yours truly,

James H. Rubin

DATELINE, Princeton, N. J.

The University Press Club is a group of undergraduates who serve as Princeton Area correspondents for major metropolitan newspapers and wire services on the eastern seaboard, such as The New York Times, Associated Press, Time Magazine and the Philadelphia Inquirer. Employed and paid by their respective papers, the eight members are responsible for collecting and reporting news of all types — academic news, crime, human interest, obituaries, politics, science and sports.

Press Club members have a broader training than most newspaper reporters. They are not specialists, as news may develop in any of several fields. The member must be able to describe a new sunspot theory one day and the next to summarize intelligently a voluminous report on industrial relations policies. He may cover a baseball game in the afternoon and a lecture on international relations in the evening. He must be equipped to obtain as thorough an interview with a distinguished visiting statesman of a foreign land as with a champion mile runner.

He is subjected to the whole gamut of news. He must be accurate, thorough, concise. He must be able to identify immediately what is important from what is not important whether it is buried in a new book by a faculty member or in a demonstration of experiments with a cyclotron. In preparing his stories, he must write to the point.

It would be impossible to discharge the responsibility of "covering" the Princeton area without cooperative effort, the key to the Press Club's success. For example, if there are several sports events in one afternoon, each member could not attend all of them. Therefore, a member is assigned to gather the necessary information on each event from which his colleagues can write their stories.

Two Press Club Members Interview Coach Caldwell

Since its founding in 1898, the Press Club has maintained a high standard of journalism. Stories must be of such quality that they can be printed without editorial revision. In order to maintain these standards, new members are selected on the basis of a thorough and intense competition. The semi-annual competition is a training program as well as a proving ground. Candidates are taught every phase of Press Club activity; thus previous journalistic experience is not a pre-requisite.

Press Club work offers experience which is valuable in any occupational field the member may choose to enter. Since news writing consists of saying what must be said in the least number of words, it provides training in organizing thoughts and expressing them clearly. For those interested in journalism, it is interesting to note that no press Club graduate has ever been unable to obtain a job with a newspaper. A former member has called it "The best school of journalism in the country."

In addition, members learn to meet people easily, since a large part of our work involves personal contacts with organization chairmen, faculty members and administrative leaders. There is also the thrill of meeting some of the world's foremost dignitaries — in recent years such Princeton residents as Drs. Harold W. Dodds, Albert Einstein, J. Robert Oppenheimer and Hugh Stott Taylor, and such visitors as Dwight D. Eisenhower, Haile Selassie and Adlai Stevenson.

A more tangible reward is the financial remuneration. It is possible to earn as much as $1,500 as a senior member of the club, while the earnings of each junior member total over $800. Remuneration received by the club as a whole during a single year generally average $8,000.

In short, Press Club work is varied and interesting, with the rewards well worth the effort. We think it is the most worth-while extra-curricular activity on the Princeton Campus.

April 18, 1955 — Albert Einstein's death, a story that is estimated to have received as much newspaper space throughout the world as any since V-J Day. Press Club members broke the story to the world, and in the following days handled press conferences and interviews.

October 11, 1954 — One of the most sensational news breaks in recent years in Princeton, the Cavanaugh murder concerned a borough resident who bludgeoned his wife to death with soda bottles. News of the early morning confession stopped presses and made front pages.

March 7, 1955 — Press Club members covered the dramatic basketball doubleheader in Dillon Gymnasium, in which Princeton beat Brown to tie with Pennsylvania and Columbia for the Ivy League Championship, the first three-way deadlock in league history. Columbia downed Penn in the second game and met the Tigers two nights later at New Brunswick. Several of the members wrote for their papers as Princeton won the title, 86-69.

March 21, 1954 — "If you had an orrery, what would you do with it?" This was a sample lead to an unusual story that drew a great deal of attention as one of the club's "Sunday features." It concerned a 17th century orrery, or planetarium, that was restored to working order by University technicians and exhibited in Firestone Library.

November 12, 1955 — As they do on each football Saturday in Palmer Stadium, club members operated the press box for the historic Princeton-Yale game. Some wrote stories on Nassau's 13-0 upset, and were on hand the following week when Princeton edged Dartmouth to take the last unofficial Ivy League crown.

My dear Dr. Flexner:

Thank you for your letter of October 12th with its most welcome news that a professor from the University of Rochester might be included in the plan under which the Institute for Advanced Study has shared with a given university the cost involved in attendance at the Institute for a year. I have no names to suggest at the moment, but shall with the greatest of pleasure bear this arrangement in mind, and hope that we may later raise the matter with you again.

The Director,

Dear Professor Earle,

We have a quite limited sum of money available for the Department for bringing distinguished historians for a few days' visit, and have in times past been able to arrange for visits from British or European scholars who may be visiting American universities. It frequently happens, however, that we miss a promising chance of so doing by not knowing of visits arranged for to the United States. Would it be convenient for you to let us know of any such men for whom you may have made visiting arrangements for the next academic year, always providing, of course, that any such possible visit to Canada would not in any way interfere with the programme arranged for Princeton.

Since I am leaving for England in a few days, would you send any reply to Professor F. H. Underhill.

Yours sincerely,
