Dear Mrs. Hobson:

On May 11, 1966 Mr. Asraf, Manager of the Oxford University Press in Kuala Lumpur (Malaysia), and Chief Malay Editor expects to be with us for a few hours. During his short visit he would like to see as much as possible of interest in Princeton. Do you think that Mr. Asraf could come to the Institute some time in the afternoon, for a general orientation? Also, could he have access to your new Library of which I have heard so much about?

May we call you some time in the first week of May to see what time will be most convenient? Thank you for your cooperation.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Sirs,

Cognizance of an important "International-scale vacuum" in legal affairs throughout the entire region of the Middle-East is an evident verity which has been approached by a group of convinced intellectuals who aggregated in a unit to form the "International Centre for Legal Consultations.

This Institute is devoted to cover up all forms of legal relations and is apt to assure any individual or collective work relative to local and international law.

Grounded on a basic philosophy to satisfy all legal potentials, the CENTRE is mainly directed by an élite of professionally-trained advocates, Deans and University professors whose legal efficiency is capable to assist in any issue of local, regional and international nature.

Specifically this Institute engages to offer the following services:-

1. Technical legal assistance before juridical and administrative authorities;
2. Supervise, represent and evaluate various legal problems and cases;
3. Draw contracts, agreements and treaties;
4. Safeguard foreign interests;
5. Prepare researches in constitutional, economic and administrative fields, in all languages according to the most recent developments;

My dear Sir:

The Xth International Congress of Genetics will be held in Montreal, Canada, August 20-27, 1958. It is hoped that, despite the difficulty overseas geneticists will have in finding money for travel, that this will be a truly international affair. The Genetics Society of America, which is the sponsoring organization, through the General Organizing Committee has appointed two committees to help finance this Congress. The Canadian Finance Committee is undertaking the task of raising some $58,000 in Canada which, in addition to registration fees, is expected to be enough to run the Congress itself. The U. S. Finance Committee has as its responsibility securing a minimum of $25,000, a sum which is expected to be used to defray partially the travel of overseas geneticists.

In cooperation with this venture the members of the Genetics Society of America have voted to assess themselves $2 a year for three years. The U. S. Finance Committee further expects to raise about $15,00 from various agencies of the national government. Thus, about $10,000 must be raised from other institutions, private and public, and from businesses and individuals. It has been our past experience that we can expect few large donations but we believe in the American philosophy of the backbone of American philanthropy. In 1932, 17 American Universities and Research Institutes donated sums varying from $100 to $1500 towards the VIth International Congress of Genetics which was held in Ithaca, New York.

If your institution cares to make a contribution, not only will we be most grateful, but some colleague overseas will certainly appreciate the tangible results of your efforts.

Checks should be made out to:

April 16, 1948

My dear Sir:

My Committee, which is organising the International Congress on Mental Health, has asked me to write to you to find out whether it is possible for you to facilitate the attendance of some of your staff members and associates. We feel that it is very important that we should have as full a representation as is possible of those in the various organisations who are especially concerned with the different aspects of the problem of mental health.

As you will see from the enclosed Programme, our plans for the Congress depart somewhat from the customary fashion of having a large number of papers devoted primarily to problems of the individual. We are attempting to focus interest more on the wider problems of a sick society, since at the moment this seems particularly appropriate.

We have in existence at the present time a great many preparatory commissions, which contain members of the various professional groups - psychiatrists, psychologists, sociologists, anthropologists, educators and others - who are busy discussing the various aspects of the topics which have been broadly outlined in the Programme for the Mental Hygiene Conference (i.e. the third and most important of the three Conferences mentioned in the Programme). We hope that in this way we may get a little nearer to finding points of agreement and so be able to present a group opinion which may, through the World Health Organisation and UNESCO, be the beginnings of a contribution from social scientists to the solution of the wider problems of the world.

We hope that it may be possible for some of your staff to attend this Congress. It would certainly strengthen our hands greatly if they were able to do so.

Yours sincerely,

J. R. Rees

Cable Address
MENTCOM

N O T I C E

Enclosed you will find official application blanks and other material from Congress headquarters in London. Because this same material is directed to people in many different countries, some points may need further explanation for people in this country in order to avoid misunderstanding. Time is short. Applications and reservations must be sent in promptly. Please read the following comments carefully.

Most questions appear to center around membership, fees, application blanks and travel.

Membership

Notice that on page 3 of the program, membership in the International Conference on Mental Hygiene is defined as being open to "trained workers in mental health and related subjects and to members of recognized organizations connected with such work." This includes all persons who are members of professional associations in mental hygiene or related fields. The following categories of applicants are eligible for membership in the Conference on Mental Hygiene: (1) members of professional associations in psychiatry, psychology, social work, sociology, anthropology; (2) members of the clergy, the medical profession, the teaching profession including nursery school teachers, and the nursing profession; (3) members of Preparatory Commissions working for the Conference; (4) individuals with special competence, special experience, or special interest in the field of mental hygiene.

Fees

Note reverse side of membership application for details about fees. Estimate the pound Sterling at $4.00. Fee for entire Congress is £6 or about $24. Decide the amount of fee you wish to pay, depending on which Conferences you plan to attend. Go to your bank and arrange to make your remittance by purchasing a draft in pound Sterling on a London bank, preferably Barclays Bank, Ltd. Make this payable to "International Congress on Mental Health." Send it, along with one copy of the application blank, to the Congress Organiser in London. Do not send any money to the New York City office.

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
From the Shelby White and Leon Levy Archives Center, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, NJ, USA.

Application Blanks

Some people have already received these application blanks direct from England. If since the middle of January you have filled out blanks identical with the ones enclosed, your application is official. If, however, you have sent in only the smaller preliminary blank which was issued some months ago, it is now necessary to send in the enclosed official blanks.

IMPORTANT: Send original blank with remittance for fees, by airmial (15¢ per ½ oz.) to the Congress Organizer, International Conference on Mental Health, 19 Manchester St., London W 1, England, Send duplicate application (no money) to Nina Ridenour, Executive Officer, International Committee for Mental Hygiene, 1790 Broadway, New York 19, N. Y.

Travel

The American Express Co. have been appointed official transportation agents for the United States. In the enclosed printed matter, substitute the name American Express for Thomas Cook throughout. The Congress offices here and in London are not handling details of travel for individuals. You are at liberty to book through any travel agent you wish, but American Express will have official information about the Congress. They will make complete arrangements for transportation, hotel accomodation, tours, etc. Please do not send questions about travel either to the N. Y. or the London offices. Make all travel arrangements directly with your travel agent. Hotel accommodation in London is difficult to obtain. Be sure your travel agent arranges accommodation for you for the full period of your stay.

It is doubtful whether there will be sufficient transportation for all who wish to attend the Congress. Steamship accomodation is particularly at a premium. First come, first served. Make your travel arrangements at once.

Address questions about the Congress (but not details about travel)to

The following message has been received from the Rt. Hon. Aneurin Bevan, M.P., Minister of Health—

In this country we are inaugurating a National Health Service in which the vital importance of mental health is fully recognised. I join in welcoming to the Congress in 1948 all who are concerned with the diverse aspects of mental health work. To many of the problems we need a fresh approach, and this Congress provides an invaluable opportunity for making new contacts and pooling ideas, which cannot fail to speed us along the road of progress.

Aneurin Bevan

The following message has been received from the Rt. Hon. R. A. Butler, M.P., President of the National Association for Mental Health—

Our Congress in 1948 must help forward the work of the World Health Organisation in mental hygiene and allied fields. London will welcome this great opportunity to encourage an interchange of views between scientifically trained men and women from many countries. Your personal contribution can help to make this a notable landmark in our struggle towards better mental health.

R A Butler.

The Congress consists of three separate International Conferences on Child Psychiatry, Medical Psychotherapy, and Mental Hygiene, each under the auspices of the appropriate international body. The Mental Hygiene Conference, which forms the major part of the programme, will be the third world gathering of its kind.

The Congress has the full approval of His Majesty's Government and the active support of UNESCO and of the World Health Organisation of the United Nations (Interim Commission).

The Congress Office is at 19 Manchester Street, London, W.1. Meetings will take place at

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON MENTAL HYGIENE

The third world meeting under the auspices of the International Committee for Mental Hygiene

	Fee
Membership of this Conference is open to trained workers in mental health and related subjects and to members of recognised organisations connected with such work	£4

THEME : Mental Health and World Citizenship

		MAIN TOPIC

TUESDAY,	17th AUGUST	The individual and society.
WEDNESDAY,	18th AUGUST	Family problems and psychological disturbance.
THURSDAY,	19th AUGUST	Planning for mental health ; organisation, training, propaganda.
FRIDAY,	20th AUGUST	Mental health in industry and industrial relations.
SATURDAY,	21st AUGUST	Concluding session and summaries.

Preparatory Commissions, or discussion groups, are at work in many countries preparing material for this Conference. Their reports will form the basis of much of the final programme and will influence the choice of speakers in the Plenary Sessions to whom individual invitations will be issued. Details of Preparatory Commissions and their work may be had from the Congress Office, or from Co-ordinators overseas ; a monthly Bulletin about this activity is issued.

The main topics have deliberately been widely drawn, leaving Preparatory Commissions and individuals freedom to select subsidiary topics (within the general framework) on which useful contributions can be made.

It is hoped that the work of these Preparatory Commissions, necessarily national in character, may be submitted to international consideration both before and after the Congress by a carefully chosen group representative of different countries and professions. In addition, there will be opportunity during the Conference for arranging Group Discussions between those from various countries, who have been working on similar or related topics.

Specialist Meetings for Psychiatrists, Psychologists, Social Workers, Social Scientists, Educationalists, Nurses, Administrators and others are also being arranged. At some of these meetings there will be opportunity for the presentation of papers of technical interest. Suggestions for such contributions should be sent without delay to the Programme Secretary.

This folder is accompanied by an Information Sheet, containing further details about the above draft programmes, and various administrative matters. Forms of Application for Membership should be completed at once and forwarded so as to reach the Congress Office not later than 29th February, 1948.

Corresponding Membership has been arranged for those who are unable to be present, as well as for interested organisations, libraries, and other public bodies ; the fees are printed on the back of the forms of Application for Membership.

Exhibitions of material connected with the subjects of all three conferences will be arranged and it is also hoped to show a number of relevant Cinematograph Films.

International Congress on Mental Health

LONDON 1948 11-21 AUGUST

INFORMATION SHEET

1st December, 1947 Number 1

This Information Sheet, which will be followed by other sheets numbered consecutively and dated, gives the detailed information that is at present available under a number of headings. All enquiries should be addressed to The Congress Organiser, International Congress on Mental Health, 19, Manchester Street, London, W.1.

Distributed with this Information Sheet are (i) a separate folder setting out the Congress programme and the names of the principal officials, and (ii) a form of application for membership.

The information given in these folders supersedes that given in the small introductory booklet, which was issued earlier this year.

1. Application for Membership

If you want to attend the Congress, it is essential to complete a form of Application for Membership and forward it to the Congress Organiser without delay ; all Applications for Membership (which should be accompanied by the appropriate Fees unless special circumstances make this impossible) will be acknowledged on receipt. You may already have sent in a Preliminary Application, which was required to estimate the numbers likely to attend, but, in order to become a Member, you must now complete the accompanying Application for Membership form.

All those living outside the United Kingdom should complete the form in duplicate, forwarding both parts to the Congress Organiser, except those living in North America, who should forward the second part to Dr. Nina Ridenour, International Committee for Mental Hygiene, 1790 Broadway, New York 19, New York.

It cannot be over emphasised that, because of the accommodation difficulties and the large numbers wanting to attend, you should send in your form at once. Applications for Membership should reach the Congress Office, 19 Manchester Street, London, W.1, not later than 29th February, 1948.

If you live in a country where travel and currency restrictions may prevent you from coming to the Congress, you should, even so, complete and forward an Application for Membership, but please first read the paragraph headed " Visitors from the War-damaged Countries."

2. Co-ordinators Overseas

" Co-ordinators " have been appointed in a number of overseas countries to distribute information and ultimately, it is hoped, to assist the co-ordination of delegations attending the Congress. You will be advised if there is a Co-ordinator in your country ; you should at once communicate with him (or her), notifying your intention of attending the Congress.

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
From the Shelby White and Leon Levy Archives Center, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, NJ, USA.

Co-ordinators are asked to inform the Congress Organiser immediately of any particular difficulties which might prevent the maximum delegation coming from their countries. Exact information about currency and travel restrictions, and any action necessary to overcome them, is essential ; otherwise we cannot initiate effective assistance.

3. Invitations to Overseas Governments

Every effort is being made to send invitations through the normal channels to overseas governments asking them to nominate observers to attend the Congress and to help other individuals, who wish to come.

4. Corresponding Membership

Corresponding Membership of each of the three separate Conferences (or all three together) is available to those who have the necessary qualifications but are unable to attend, and also to interested organisations, libraries and other public bodies. The subscription will cover future literature put out by the Congress Office, including the proceedings of the Congress. The combined fee for all three Conferences is £3 for Corresponding Membership.

5. Travel

Thomas Cook & Sons, who have offices or agents in every country, have full information about the Congress and are acting as agents for travel arrangements and the reservation of hotels (see also the paragraph on " Accommodation "). They will also make detailed arrangements for those wanting to make pre and post Congress visits or sightseeing tours, both in Great Britain and elsewhere in Europe. Because of the difficulty of arranging arrival and departure dates to fit the Congress exactly, you may have a few days, which could profitably be spent in such ways.

Certain European countries have granted reduced railway fares for those coming to the Congress and details will be supplied by Thomas Cook & Sons in due course.

You should make your travel and hotel reservations at the same time as you send in your Application for Membership. In all cases of difficulty the Congress Office should immediately be advised.

6. Accommodation

Every effort will be made to arrange hotel or hostel accommodation for all those from overseas, and in cases of difficulty the Congress Office will endeavour to advise all Members. There is an acute shortage of hotel accommodation in London and it is imperative for this reason alone that rooms should be reserved at once.

Members from overseas should make room reservations, at the same time as they arrange their travel, through Thomas Cook & Sons and at the same time they should complete the appropriate part of the form of Application for Membership, for the information of the Congress Office. Accommodation cannot be guaranteed, but rooms nearest to the type required will if possible be reserved.

Accommodation can only be reserved by those who have applied for Membership.

We hope to arrange a limited amount of free accommodation in private houses for Members from the war-damaged countries. The Congress Organiser will welcome offers of bed and breakfast in the London area for allocation in such cases.

7. Fees

The fees payable for Membership of the three Conferences are set out against the Membership regulations. Reduced combined fees for the three Conferences have been arranged and are listed on the back of the accompanying Application Form ; the maximum fee for the whole Congress is £6. You should take care to enter the correct figure in your application, according to the type of Membership you desire.

All remittances should be made payable to the " International Congress on Mental Health " and must accompany your application ; they will be acknowledged on receipt at the Congress Office, but such acknowledgment does not in itself constitute acceptance of the applicant as a Member.

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
From the Shelby White and Leon Levy Archives Center, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, NJ, USA.

8. Total Cost

To assist those from overseas, who need to know in advance the approximate total cost of attending the Congress, the following estimated figures are given for eleven days in London ; they are intended to cover the inevitable incidental expenses and tips, but if you know London, or have friends there, you will probably be able to manage more cheaply.

Single bedroom with breakfast (15s. to 35s.)—say, 20s. per day ..	11	0	0
Other meals—say, 15s. per day	8	5	0
Membership—combined fee for all three Conferences	6	0	0
Allocation for visits and sightseeing	2	5	0
Miscellaneous expenses	2	10	0
Estimated total cost in London	£30	0	0

9. Visitors from the War-damaged Countries

It is appreciated that some of those who wish to come to the Congress from the war-damaged countries may be prevented from doing so, through lack of funds or other restrictions. If you are in this position, you should write to the Congress Organiser immediately, stating the precise difficulty and any action required to overcome it. Send in a completed Application Form (even if you cannot forward any money) ; please also send a sponsoring letter from your own professional organisation. Every effort will then be made by us to arrange for you to participate in the Congress. Unless you write to us individually, we cannot actively help you ; international negotiations move slowly and time is short, so please write to us at once.

10. Local Authorities Delegates

The appropriate Government authorities for health and education in England and Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland have given permission for the payment of expenses of Local Authorities delegates attending the Congress. In the case of England and Wales the Ministry of Health have indicated that the expenses of not more than two delegates will be payable.

Attention is drawn to the fact that the Congress is equally concerned with medical, sociological and educational matters and it is hoped that representatives of various professions concerned with these subjects will be able to attend.

11. Congress Funds

As the expenses of a very large and comprehensive Congress like this cannot be met from membership fees, we need to raise a further considerable sum of money. Generous donations have already been received, but much remains to be collected. Sums both large and small will be gratefully received by our Honorary Treasurer, alike from all individuals or organisations interested in the success of the Congress.

12. Programme

The programme for each of the three separate Conferences on Child Psychiatry, Medical Psychotherapy and Mental Hygiene, is set out in detail in a separate folder distributed with this Information Sheet. The main themes and topics are indicated, but the final details will not be arranged until the programme preparatory work now in progress has reached a more advanced stage.

The content of this programme is medical, sociological and educational and emphasis is laid upon the value of contributions from representatives of all the various professions concerned with the subjects.

13. Languages

It is hoped to make adequate translation and interpreting arrangements. Delegations who do not understand English or French are advised to include among their number someone who can act as interpreter.

Each paper will, if possible, be printed in its original language and distributed to Members on their arrival. It is intended to furnish summaries in the other working languages.

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
From the Shelby White and Leon Levy Archives Center, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, NJ, USA.

14. Cinematograph Films

We intend to show a number of cinematograph films relevant to the topics of the Congress If you have, or know about, such films which can be loaned for exhibition, please write to the Congress Organiser giving full details such as the title and description, the names of the director and makers, the size in millimetres, the length in time, the language, whether talking or silent, and whether or not in colour. Such offers will be particularly welcome from overseas.

15. Exhibitions

It is hoped to arrange concurrently with the Congress, exhibitions of pictorial displays, apparatus, literature and other matter relevant to the discussions. Material for consideration, or the wish to exhibit, should be notified to the Congress Organiser without delay ; photographs and full details, which must include measurements, should be sent as soon as possible.

The cost of transporting exhibition material to and from London will not normally be borne by the Congress. Expenditure on stands and displays for commercial exhibits must be met by the exhibitors and a nominal charge will be made to them for exhibition space.

16. Pre and Post Congress Visits

Visits of varying lengths from five to eight days are being planned both before and after the Congress, to places of technical interest both in Great Britain and on the European continent ; the latter will probably be to Holland, Switzerland and Scandinavia. Details will be notified as soon as possible to those interested, but meanwhile the travel agents should be notified of your intention.

Visits to places of technical and specialised interest within the London area will, so far as possible, be arranged to take place during the period of the Congress.

17. Social Programme and Sightseeing

The Organisers do not expect that prevailing economic difficulties and regulations will prevent them offering an attractive range of social facilities in connection with the Congress.

For those who do not know London and its surroundings it may be said that, in spite of some absence of pre-war domestic facilities, the greater part of its traditional life and historic associations remain intact.

Sightseeing tours and visits are being planned.

18. Accompanying Relatives

The number of accompanying relatives eligible for Congress facilities will necessarily be limited, because a large attendance is anticipated and hotel accommodation is very scarce. Accompanying relatives (unless themselves Members or Associate Members of the Conferences) may not be able to attend the technical sessions though it is hoped to arrange meetings of a more general character at which they can be present. They will however be very welcome and it is hoped to provide sufficient facilities to make their visit enjoyable.

19. Meeting Place

The meetings of the Congress will be held at Central Hall, Westminster, London, S.W.1, and at other halls near by.

Speaking in New York

on May 19th, 1947, Dr. Brock Chisholm, the Executive Secretary of the World Health Organisation (Interim Commission) said:–

"THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANISATION, TO FULFIL THE OBLIGATIONS IN THE FIELD of mental and social health, which have been laid on it by the nations of the world, must develop plans which will reach far into the future and will be world-wide in scope. Where will these plans come from? Who will initiate them? From what body will their technical authority derive? Who will bring together the experience of all the nations in the field of mental health and advise the World Health Organisation? Surely the answer to these questions is obvious: from the International Congress on Mental Health should develop a permanent organisation largely for this purpose.

"Perhaps never before in history has there been a more important meeting of any kind than that Congress can be, if all the people qualified and obligated to attend, do so, and if they can at the same time ignore all sectional interest, all local or national loyalties, all matters of personal or individual prestige or advantage, and by a free pooling of their knowledge and experience, offer even a little, but concrete hope for a frightened world.

"Here, of course, is the crucial question we must most seriously ask ourselves— 'Are psychologists and psychiatrists themselves, individually and as a body, able to do what I have just suggested?' Can they in fact agree on anything? It would be a major disaster to the world, and highly damaging to perhaps the most important hope of the world, if the International Congress on Mental Health were to turn out to be a discussion of obscure psychological dogmata or a conflict between various 'schools'.

OVER

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
From the Shelby White and Leon Levy Archives Center, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, NJ, USA.

"During these next two years there is an opportunity for psychology and psychiatry to justify their existence in the eyes of the world—for the first time to contribute very importantly and recognisably to the future peace of the world by becoming real leaders in the planned development of a new kind of human being, one who can live at peace with himself and his fellow men. All this can be done if, at the International Congress on Mental Health, even a few principles of mental health, even a few signposts for the bringing up of children, even a little hope for a sorely beset and anxious world, can be agreed on by qualified people from all over the world.

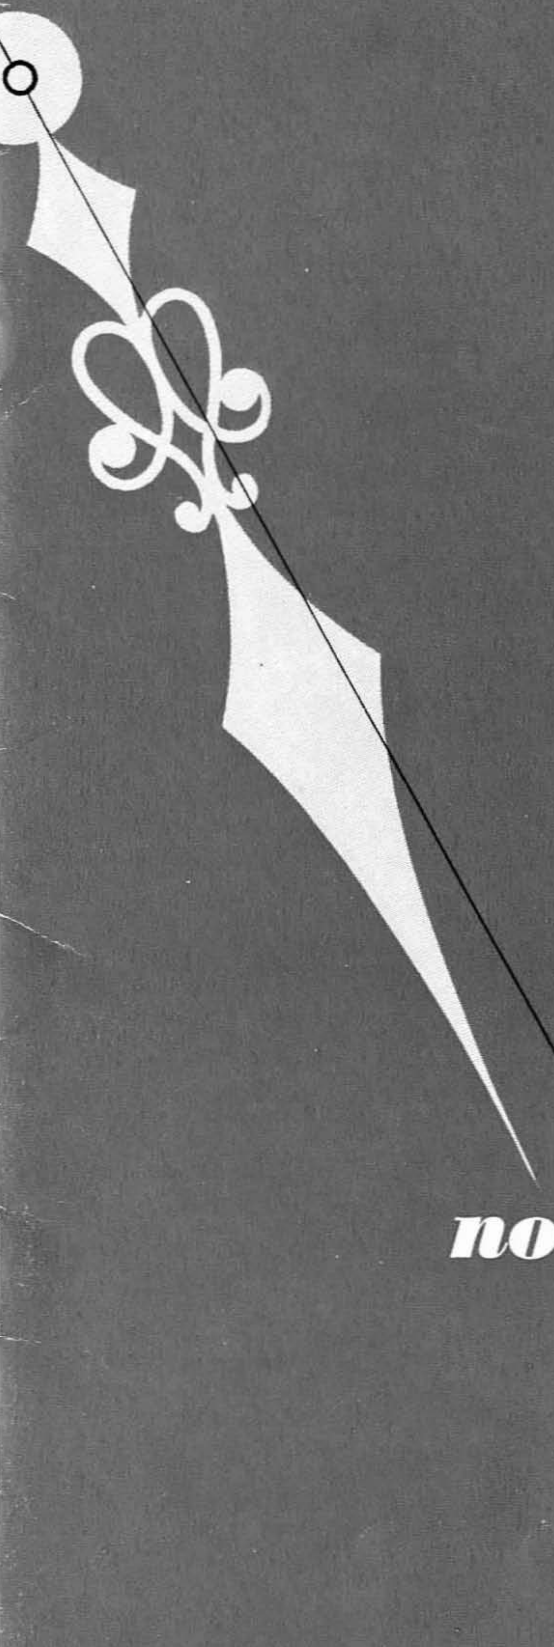

"To reach such agreement there must of course be extensive preparation, national and international committees, and consultation: serious, time-consuming, costly hard work, and above all, the willingness to make extensive compromises. In spite of all these difficulties, however, surely something concrete can be produced, something however limited, couched in simple language, and intelligible to the hundreds of millions of people whose lives will be affected by whatever comes out of—or fails to come out of—that Congress."

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer:

The Fourth Annual Philadelphia Area Foreign Student Advisers Conference, which this year will be held in cooperation with Area IX of the National Association of Foreign Student Advisers, will take place at International House, 3905 Spruce Street, on Monday, February 14.

Registration, introductions and coffee start at 9:30 a.m., and the morning session "Essentials of a Foreign Student Program - its Successes and its Problems" will run from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon. Lunch will be served at International House. Beginning at 1:15 p.m., the afternoon session will discuss "Resources in the Foreign Student Field" and will terminate at 4:00 p.m. Registration fee is $2.00 and includes luncheon.

Keynoters and resource persons will be Donald Cook, Educational Exchange Service of the Department of State, George Hall, Director of the Foreign Student Department, Institute of International Education, Forrest D. Brown, Foreign Student Adviser at Bucknell University and Area Representative for NAFSA, Anthony Chillum, representative of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and Mrs. Ruth Purkaple, representative from The Committee on Friendly Relations Among Foreign Students.

We are purposely avoiding a rigid agenda so as to enable advisers to address themselves to the questions that interest them most. At time of registration, you will be given an opportunity to submit the questions you would like discussed, and we urge you to think about this matter so that we may have your guidance for the enrichment of the Conference.

Donald Cook has asked us to especially invite those of you who are concerned with the development of the Fullbright program, as he has some very serious problems to discuss with you. If these problems are not satisfactorily solved, it may well develop into the drastic curtailment of the Fullbright movement, if not to its conclusion.

Please return the enclosed reply card at your earliest convenience so that we may make final plans for the luncheon. If there are other members of your faculty that should be invited to this Conference, please feel free to extend our invitation to them and so indicate on your reply card. If for any reason you find this time inconvenient, we urge you to send your delegate.

Sincerely yours,

F. A. VanDenbergh, Jr.

Dear Sir,

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Rome has asked me to recommend to your consideration an application for financial assistance that the International Museum of Ceramics in Faenza addressed to your Institute on May 17, 1953, in order to develop and enlarge its existing scientific laboratories.

The International Museum of Ceramics, a well known organization established in 1913, was seriously damaged during World War II and is at present struggling with financial difficulties which have so far prevented the equipment with modern instruments of its scientific and technological laboratories.

I should feel greatly obliged to you for any consideration you may give to the Museum's application, and I would very much appreciate it if you could kindly let me know your views on the matter.

Sir:

Our office deals with interchanging students and professionals, thus organizing travels, and subscriptions of European periodicals and other publications, as well as undertaking the supply of any sort of technical, scientific and artistic literature and material that might be required from European countries most especially from Spain.

For each group of 26 students or professionals coming over to this continent for study purposes or on professionals travel, we could offer one free travel and stay, for the leader of the expedition or group. These travels will be organised according to the special interest of the travellers considering art, industry or other items of interest to the travellers. If there is any information you want in relation to any special subject please let us know.

Awaiting your kind reply

INTERNATIONAL OFFICE FOR TECHNICAL AND PROFESSIONAL RELATIONS

Av. José Antonio, 57, 10E
M A D R I D
(SPAIN)

A) The International Office for Professional and Technical Relations is a private organisation, which has as its object the encouragement of helping foreign professional and technical people, and students, to obtain a better knowledge of Spain, of her art, her literature, her economy, etc.

B) To further this aim it offers the following services.

1) To organise journeys through Spanish territory, although on receiving a petition from the interested party (or parties) these trips can be arranged in other countries too.

2) It offers Spainsh books and publications.

3) It offers photographs and Documentary films (16 m/m) on such subjects as art, archeology, landscape, folklore and it accepts demands for specified themes.

4) It organises private exchange visits, between professional and technical people and students from other countries.

5) It facilitates lodging in chalets in the most temperate climatic regions (Balearic Islands, Canary Islands, and the Mediterranean) in season, for professionals, professors etc. who come to Spain wiht their families.

6) It encourages sports-trips for sportsmen, both Spanish and foreign in order to promote a widespread interest and practise of sports and physical culture.

7) It offers correspondence exchanges with Spanish students.

8) It offers special prices to the professors who come with their pupils, and professional people who come in groups.

9) The services of our Organisation are free, for those who come to Spain through it. The journey is organised and prepared by a group of professors and specialists, in agreement with the wishes of the travellers.

10) All its activities are aimed at furthering the foreigner's knowledge of Spain and the Spanish, putting itself at the service of all professionals of the world who wish to know Spain.

INTERNATIONAL OPERATIONS INSTITUTE

Dedicated to Improved Performance of
Americans Overseas

(first page)

"Waging the peace" in a dynamic revolutionary era confronts Americans with novel and complex tasks. Political scientists, psychologists, economists, sociologists and other members of the academic community, no less than their colleagues in U.S. diplomatic missions and business houses abroad, are "soldiers of peace." Behavioral scientists - those who seek to understand human beings as individuals and in social relations - in particular, possess valuable techniques which can reveal important insights and guidelines for U. S. operations, public and private, overseas. What has been lacking is the marriage of scientific endeavors with peace waging pursuits. To supply that bridge, instilling a wider appreciation within government and business of what the social sciences can do while bringing academic leaders into closer touch with the day-to-day reality of international relations, is the unique aim of the International Operations Institute - a school for advanced study of diplomacy and foreign operations.

"International operations" - a mid-twentieth century term for what used to be encompassed in the word diplomacy - include a wide array of activities, ranging from the banking and commercial realm through religion and education to the vast variety of U. S. Government actions and programs in foreign countries. More than a million Americans deal everyday with some aspect of America's external relations. To do their jobs, these Americans require novel insights and skills. The descriptive and historical knowledge supplied in most international relations and language-and-area studies, while valuable, do not provide the kinds of understanding and skills needed for effective performance in this sphere. The quick skill of judging affairs or the recognition that communication with foreigners involves acquaintance with their mental processes and predispositions in addition to the language, for example, are acquired generally from the experience of life. That experience can be simulated,

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
however. Simulation of real life experiences, through the study of specific cases, is the method of teaching adopted and taught by the International Operations Institute.

(third page)

I. O. I. teaches skills rather than abstract knowledge, although the latter has a vital part in the curriculum. Its students are drawn from two principal sources: teachers and teachers-to-be of international relations and foreign languages; and employees of government departments, business corporations or religious bodies. To the former are taught the "action skills" of practitioners in international relations, particularly those relating to negotiation and communication in foreign cultures. To the latter, I. O. I. offers instruction in the "action skills" of social scientists: informal ways of polling public opinion, making interviews-in-depth and content analyses of newspapers, using statistical data effectively, to name a few. In its seminars and workshops for teachers and men of affairs alike, I. O. I. will endeavor to stress the larger purposes of the United States abroad, as drawn from the leaders of U. S. national life. Special attention will be given also to inculcating the skills of group discussion leading using case materials and conducting more complex simulation exercises dealing with substantive international relations problems.

The Institute represents a new approach to a graduate curriculum for training in international relations and overseas operations. Through experimental sessions, directed to the needs of both teachers and practitioners, I. O. I. seeks to demonstrate applications of the behavioral sciences in the teaching and conduct of international relations. It supplements language training at member universities by offering a unique kind of "area studies" - problem-oriented discussions of concrete situations met in particular foreign environments. Emphasis throughout is on actual human behavior as it casts verifiable light on aspirations, sensitivities, local values, concepts and perspectives. The technique used, insofar as possible, is the "re-living" of other persons' experiences. Recognizing that its students are busy people, I. O. I. offers its training evenings and weekends primarily, with occasion-

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
From the Shelby White and Leon Levy Archives Center, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, NJ, USA

6) intensive short courses and vacation workshops added. Just as the cases used show how sound theory can be applied to resolve real life problems, I. O. I. instruction aims at practical knowledge, emerging from firm and factual ground, to improve the performance of Americans serving abroad.

The Institute's courses are offered in collaboration with universities participating in the program of I. O. I.'s parent organization, the Fund For Foreign Service Education, Inc. Teaching staff, both permanent and part-time, are drawn principally from the ranks of university personnel and retired American diplomats. I. O. I.'s location on a beautiful estate 10 minutes from the center of Washington, D. C. affords an ideal site for it to fulfill its mission as a "transmission belt," a "middleman" between the professional disciplines of the academic world and the practical knowledge and experience of men of affairs in government and industry. From their fruitful collaboration will come better understanding of the objective phenomena in foreign areas affecting the success of U. S. activities, public and private, there. To serve on the Institute's faculty, curriculum committee and advisory board, distinguished representatives of government, industry and the universities are being invited to lend their support and encouragement to this private educational institution.

Spring Semester - 1959-60

Course offerings:

Evening seminars - 12 sessions each

Social Science Applications In International Relations - Instructor: R. H. Stephens

Designed for government personnel, this course reveals to them the range of methods and data available from the social sciences to help them in dealwith every-day problems met in diplomacy, the conduct of assistance programs or other overseas operations. Topics treated include: the use of large scale data on population, literacy, budgets, political participation, etc.; principles of opinion sampling; community studies; study of elites; interview and survey methods; mass communication studies and content analysis; the study of "role groups;" survey of statistical methods; international relations as a "field of forces." The aim is not detailed treatment, but rather to give an impression of the range and variety of behavioral research methods. Applications of these techniques to concrete problems facing people in government are illustrated by selected discussion of case studies.

Functions of the Foreign Service Officer - Instructor: Henry Deimel, et. al.

A series of group discussions of actual problems encountered by Americans abroad, this course introduces younger FSO's as well as personnel from other agencies to the special skills and aptitudes which make for personal effectiveness overseas. The course teaches receptivity to the needs and views of foreign peoples, how to recognize typical behavior patterns in non-Western cultures, what kinds of knowledge can usefully be applied in concrete situations abroad. The cases deal with a wide range of activities from political reporting through furnishing technical assistance.

Techniques of Effective Communication for Students of Portuguese - Instructor: S. Walter Washington

Designed for teachers or students of Portuguese, this course views communication as a complex process involving far more than familiarity with a language. Behavioral research methods of studying attitudes, opinions, stereotypes, images, elite group values, symbols and communication habits are discussed. Course consists primarily of a series of case studies involving communication problems with Brazilian nationals or other Portuguese speaking persons. Students review samples of literature, anti-American propaganda, speeches and editorials for the light they throw on underlying attitudes, value judgments and mental predispositions where Portuguese is a mother tongue.

Weekend Workshops - 6 sessions each (2 or 3 days)

Practical Techniques for Commercial and Diplomatic Negotiators - Instructor: George G. Fuller, et. al.

History and theory of negotiation, illustrated by case studies and simulation exercises, is the theme of this intensive course.

Using Case Studies and Simulation Exercises in the Teaching of International Relations - Instructor: George D. LaMont, et. al.

The purpose of this intensive course is to explain the case study - group discussion techniques to university and service academy personnel as well as give practice in their use and that of the simulation exercises.

ENTR'AIDE UNIVERSITAIRE INTERNATIONALE

Comité de Patronage :

S. E. M. Thomas MASARYK, Président de la République tchécoslovaque; S. E. M. ADATCI, Ministre du Japon à Paris; Lord CECIL; M. le Professeur D. C. DUISBERG; M. le Professeur Albert EINSTEIN; S. E. M. le Président Paul PAINLEVÉ; Reichsgerichtspräsident i. R. Dr. Walter SIMONS; Rabindranath TAGORE.

L'Entr'aide Universitaire Internationale fut fondée en 1920 sous le nom d'European Student Relief, dans le but d'aider à la ré-édification de la vie universitaire européenne, fortement ébranlée par la guerre mondiale. Depuis, elle a poursuivi son activité et est devenue un mouvement universitaire groupant tous ceux qui œuvrent afin que l'Université réponde à sa triple destination et qu'elle devienne à la fois un centre de culture nationale, un moyen d'échanges internationaux sur le plan intellectuel et l'expression de l'universalité de la culture.

L'Entr'aide Universitaire Internationale cherche à contribuer à la réalisation de cet idéal universitaire. A cet effet, elle concentre ses efforts afin de susciter une coopération pratique, nationale et internationale, et à résoudre les problèmes qui, à l'heure actuelle, font obstacle à cette réalisation. En poursuivant cette tâche, l'Entr'aide Universitaire Internationale fait abstraction des distinctions de races, de nationalités ou de convictions religieuses et politiques.

Elle applique des méthodes diverses selon les différents domaines de son activité et qui sont adéquates à chacun d'eux. C'est ainsi que, faisant appel à la solidarité estudiantine, elle porte secours dans les cas où la vie universitaire a été ébranlée à la suite d'événements économiques ou autres, qu'elle encourage les entreprises coopératives d'étudiants afin de rendre l'Université accessible à tout homme réellement doué, quelle que soit la classe sociale à laquelle il appartient, qu'elle s'attache à établir des contacts plus étroits entre l'Université et les autres domaines de la vie nationale, concourant ainsi à faire sortir l'Université de l'isolement social où elle se trouve actuellement reléguée, que, par des conférences et des publications, elle contribue à l'avènement de l'Université Idéale et par l'aplanissement des difficultés et la destruction des hostilités qui divisent la vie universitaire en divers courants opposés pour des raisons politiques, religieuses ou raciales, qu'elle favorise l'établissement d'une compréhension et d'une entente mutuelles.

La Xme Conférence Annuelle de l'Entr'aide Universitaire Internationale qui aura lieu à Mount Holyoke sera la première Conférence Internationale organisée par l'Entr'aide Universitaire Internationale aux Etats-Unis. Elle maintiendra la tradition des rencontres internationales organisées précédemment par l'Entr'aide Universitaire Internationale et poursuivra la tâche qui fut celle de toutes ses asisses annuelles, tenues en Tchécoslovaquie, en Hongrie, Allemagne, France, Yougoslavie, Suisse, Autriche et Angleterre. Elle devra, en particulier, reserrer les liens entre la jeunesse universitaire d'Amérique et celle des autres continents, définir les principes de culture supérieure propres à chaque pays et concrétiser les méthodes qui, suivant l'expérience qu'en a faite l'Entr'aide Universitaire Internationale, déterminent une collaboration plus étroite des universités du monde, pour la solution des problèmes sociaux et internationaux que la jeunesse doit affronter.

Gentlemen:

The International Study Centre should like to put the following matter to your attention:

There is a possibility for our study-centre to dispose in Holland of a holiday-centre situated between Amsterdam and Hilversum. This centre can lodge abt. 90 persons and is opened for us from September 1 till June 15th of each year.

Furthermore we could dispose of a splendid Austrian holiday-centre in the neighbourhood of Kitzbühel, Tirol (1200 meter height). This house can lodge approx. 50 persons, is modern fitted, each room has central heating, ideal ski-run and all year opened.

However, before making a definite arrangement for these two houses, we should like to ask if your organization could be interested in these houses and which cooperation-possibilities could be effected:

a) Do you think you could regularly direct people to these houses?
b) How many?
c) In which period?
d) Which prices could be spent?

We hereto observe that in Holland we could also arrange trips e.g. to museums, concerts, theaters, technical visits, views of towns, introductions about Holland etc., whilst in Austria we could organize leads about Kitzbühel, Salzburg, Innsbrück a.o., and if desired: carriage.

We do hope you will excuse our questions, but you will understand that in view of the structure of our organization, we only can build up these holiday-centres in cooperation with international organizations.

We should be much obliged to you if you could let us have your opinion in this matter and should also appreciate if you could give us addresses of other international organizations to which we might contact for cooperation.

Thanking you in anticipation for any information you can give us, we remain, Gentlemen,

Yours sincerely

Dear Sir,

I would appreciate reference to or a reprint describing your organization and if possible the special kind of contributions your institute has been able to make. A similar organization is needed in the field of natural sciences particularly those dealing with renewable natural resources. A group of ecologists have informally discussed this need at the last three meetings of the International Union for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources, and I am writing various institutes to get a perspective of the means of encouraging advanced thinking in other fields, that we may make as sensible recommendations as possible to hasten the maturation of the infant "science" of ecology at our next meeting.

THE CENTER FOR AGRICULTURAL AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

IOWA STATE UNIVERSITY of Science and Technology
AMES, IOWA

August 31, 1966

Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, Director
The Institute of Advanced Study
Princeton, New Jersey 08540

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer:

Through the Center for Agricultural and Economic Development, Iowa State University is sponsoring a conference--Alternatives for Balancing Future World Food Production and Needs. The conference will be held in the Memorial Union on the campus, November 8-10, 1966.

Developments abroad in recent years have abruptly revitalized a question long left dormant and only partially answered: can the food-producing ability of the world keep pace with population growth? However the realities of the present suggest that an inverted form of the question deserves equal consideration: can population growth be voluntarily paced to parallel the expansion of food supplies? Beyond the elemental issue of survival, this question has attracted global attention because failure to balance food supplies with needs threatens to thwart the nearly universal aspirations for higher living standards so evident throughout the world. This conference will provide an organized forum where an interdisciplinary group can examine the nature and significance of the problem, and then proceed to a critical, comparative analysis of relevant alternative solutions. From this effort we hope to derive; (1) an accurate characterization of the future world food situation, (2) a determination of the responsibilities of the wealthy and the less wealthy nations for finding and executing solutions to future food problems, and (3) a thorough assessment of alternative action proposals with special emphasis on possible United States programs.

We extend an invitation to you and members of your staff to attend the conference. Enclosed are a copy of the conference program which provides additional details on the topics to be considered, and a form which may be returned to indicate the names of those wishing to attend. We will provide additional information on transportation and lodging to persons responding to the invitation.

We look forward to a productive conference and to receiving your response.

Sincerely,

ALTERNATIVES FOR BALANCING FUTURE WORLD FOOD PRODUCTION AND NEEDS

NOVEMBER 8, 9 and 10, 1966

Tuesday Morning

A. THE SITUATION AND ITS ISSUES

1. Summary of the World Food Situation: Population Growth, Food Supplies, Nutritional Developments and Emerging Problems.

Lester R. Brown; Staff Economists Group, U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trends in production and supply of foods; trends in population and demand interpretation of per capita food production trends in terms of diet adequacy; the dual inportance of population growth as a determinant food demand and as a determinant of the rate of economic development in developing countries; projections to the future with implications to emerging problems by regions; the degree of urgency and uniqueness of the problem for the future.

2. The Social and Ethical Setting of the World Food Situation.

Andrew Cordier; Columbia University

The responsibility of the U. S. and other wealthy nations for the alleviation of the world food deficit; the moral and ethical responsibilities of food deficit nations relative to present and prospective food supplies; the conflicts of national and world policies in respect to food supplies; the conflicts of national, regional and international policies in respect to food supplies and health improvements which increase populations versus birth control activities which slow or stabilize population growth; the political, religious and economic restraints which limit meshing of investments in food and population growth; a summary of the moral, ethical, political and economic facets of the problem.

Tuesday Afternoon

B. NUTRITIONAL ASPECTS OF THE WORLD FOOD PROBLEM

3. Ecological Patterns Related to Malnutrition and Food Acceptance.

Nevin S. Scrimshaw; Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Malnutrition as part of an environmental pattern including poverty, poor sanitation, unwise food customs, low education levels, etc.; cultural determinants and opportunities in food formulations and substitutions; existing cultural restraints in nutrition; means of lifting cultural restraints and meeting applied nutrition problems; solutions by countries and cultures; problems in formulating vegetable and other food mixtures.

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
From the Shelby White and Leon Levy Archives Center, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, NJ, USA.

C. POPULATION PROSPECTS AND CONTROLS

4. World Population: Underlying Causes of Growth Differentials.

Dudley Kirk; Population Council, New York.

Density and growth differentials according to system of social organization with special reference to industrialization and urbanization; cultural determinants of family size; improved health and nutrition as contributors to further and more rapid population growth.

5. Curbing Fertility in Developing Countries: An Evaluation of Opportunities and Programs.

Donald Bogue; University of Chicago.

Current and prospective birth control technology; cultural and economic restraints to use of this technology; restraints in respect to time for effective population control; means of easing restraints; projections to future under various conditions and assumption.

Wednesday Morning

D. INCREASING THE WORLD FOOD SUPPLY

6. World Food Production Prospects and Potentials: A short-run look.

Albert H. Moseman; Agency for International Development, U. S. Department of State.

Present trends and prospects in agricultural products for the world and its regions; potentials for the near future by world aggregates with special reference to the food deficit regions; expansion opportunities in the short run from more and better use of conventional inputs.

7. World Food Production Prospects and Potentials: A long-run look.

Charles E. Kellogg; Soil Conservation Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Long-term outlook for agricultural products for the world with special reference to the food deficit regions; potential production expansion from programs requiring larger investments and longer developmental periods.

8. Overcoming Institutional Obstacles to Agricultural Progress.

Rainer Schickele; Agricultural Development Council.

Needs for upgrading educational levels and facilities (both general and extension); cultural and institutional restraints to agricultural improvement; response of existing political power groups to major changes in the organization of agriculture; problems of meeting capital requirements for agricultural improvement; a summary of some of the major problems to be overcome in developing countries if their physical food-producing potentials are to be realized and the broad outlines of approaches needed to solve them; an assessment of the possible expansion of agricultural output and the time lags involved if all feasible steps were taken.

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
From the Shelby White and Leon Levy Archives Center, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, NJ, USA.

Wednesday Afternoon

9. The Role of Protein Formulation Processes in Meeting the Food Needs of Developing Countries.

Arthur Odell; James Ford Bell Research Center, General Mills, Inc.

Existing status of the technology and potentials for the future potential costs, economic feasibility and realistic possibilities for filling the food gap.

10. Prospects for Expanding Food Production From the Oceans.

Francis T. Christy, Jr.; Resources for the Future, Inc.

Potentials for the future; storage and distribution problems; economic feasibility and realistic possibilities for filling protein deficits.

E. STRUCTURING ACTION PROGRAMS TO OVERCOME FOOD DEFICITS.

11. Altering the Variables of the Food Supply-Demand Situation.

Erven J. Long; Agency for International Development; U. S. Department of State.

A discussion of the variables in food supply, population growth and food demand; existing economic, cultural and political restraints on agricultural improvement, synthetic food production and population control; which variables can and should be varied; what is the potential outlook and return from varying different variables of the set; what are the time lags and what potential contributions can each make in the short run and in the long run.

Wednesday Evening

F. THE NATIONAL OUTLOOK, INTERESTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE UNITED STATES

12. The National Interest and Responsibility of the United States in Relation to World Food Needs.

Kenneth W. Thompson, The Rockefeller Foundation.

Interrelationships and conflicts with domestic policies, moral, ethical and political responsibilities of the United States in meeting world food needs; realistic role of the U. S. relative to domestic goals and political feasibility; relationships with regional and international organizations.

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
From the Shelby White and Leon Levy Archives Center, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, NJ, USA.

Thursday Morning

13. Objectives, Scope, Achievements and Hazards of Existing U. S. Food Aid and Economic Development Programs.

Earl O. Heady; Iowa State University.

Appraisal of United States policies in respect to domestic food production and world food demand; should United States supply capacity be used only to meet emergency food crises; to what extent does food aid alone only postpone the "day of reckoning" in the sense of encouraging a larger world population to starve or subsist at low nutritional standards at a later time; what would be the domestic cost and economic and political feasibility of "all out" United States production to help fill the world food gap; to what extent can excess United States foods be used to actually catalyze development in backward countries; what would be the impact of greater world flows of United States food aid in international markets and the economies of other developed nations; an appraisal of present and projected policies in use of United States food supplies and capacities for meeting world food needs and attaining long-run development; optimal use of funds in domestic food production versus direct international development; summary of policy proposals for short-run and long-run in terms of domestic production policy, pricing levels and mechanisms.

14. Capacity of the United States to Supply Food for Export and Prospective Needs and Policy.

John A. Schnittker, Undersecretary, U. S. Department of Agriculture.
Melvin L. Upchurch, Economics Research Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The United States position in capacity, production potential and domestic policy; outlook and projections for food-producing capacity; supply of United States food relative to domestic demand, international market demand and world food needs; United States supply relative to total market demand and world food needs.

15. Alternative United States Investments in Food Production and Potential Population Control and Their Evaluation.

Theodore W. Schultz; University of Chicago.

Impact of food shipments in terms of agricultural prices and development restraints or catalysts in recipient countries; magnitudes of costs to the United States in turning loose domestic production and "feeding the world;" potentials and relative payoffs in aid through shipment of domestically produced food, in investments in improving agricultural knowledge and technology in underdeveloped countries in fertilizer and other input facilities and in dollar aid; potentials and relative payoff from investment in population control; competitiveness of investments in short-run programs with longer run programs; summary of prospects, problems and realistic approaches in using United States capacity.

Dear Foreign Student Advisor:

I am writing to you to request the names and the addresses of the Iranian students attending your University.

The purpose of ISAUS is to attempt to extend its membership to all Iranian students in the United States. By this we hope to attempt to present the Iranian culture and customs through cultural programs and exhibits to the American students and the public. Also through publications and panel discussions on the current events in Iran, we would like to produce a link between Iranian students in this country and the Iranian society; this we feel is very necessary and would diminish the problem of the students' re-orientation to the Iranian society on their return to Iran.

I am enclosing a form for the names and the addresses of the Iranian students at your University.

With many thanks,

Yours truly,

Ali Barzegar

Dear Mr. Devlin:

In reply to your inquiry of October 4th, I take pleasure in sending you in confidence the information you request regarding terms and conditions upon which the professors and members of the academic staff hold office at the Institute.

The salaries of our professors are not uniform. It is our practice when a man comes from another institution to fix his salary at about the same level as it had been at the institution from which he came, since we do not wish the financial inducement to be important in such a case. Increases are then made within the limits of the financial resources of the Institute and according to what seems to the Trustees and Faculty the value of the individual concerned and the importance of his productive work. The highest salaries are $15,000 and the greater number of the members of our faculty receive between $10,000 and $15,000.

Princeton is an expensive place in which to live. It may be that your Institute will be established in a locality where the cost of living is less than it is here. In that case I should not think it necessary, or perhaps even advisable, for you to undertake to match our salary scale.

Our professors are required to participate in the pension plan of the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association, to which each professor contributes five per cent of his salary each year, the Institute contributing a like amount, to build up a fund which will buy him an annuity at the time of his retirement. In the case of young men who begin participation in this plan at the age of thirty-five, the annuity at sixty-five is expected to be approximately one-half their salary.

For permanent appointments in the Institute we have only one rank, namely, that of professor, with the salary scale indicated above. In addition, assistants may be appointed to professors for short terms at moderate stipends of $1500 to $1800 per year. These stipends are not increased with length of service, the purpose being to avoid keeping young men too long in a position which would have no satisfactory future.

Records of the Office of the Director: General Files / Box 30a / Int - Iz file
From the Shelby White and Leon Levy Archives Center, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, NJ, USA.

In addition, the Institute has a certain amount of money which may be used in case of need for stipends for the assistance of scholars who may come here for periods of study lasting as a rule from one to two years.

Since you wrote to me first Dr. Abraham Flexner, the founder and first director of the Institute, has published his autobiography, the closing chapter of which tells in some detail the facts about the organization of the Institute for Advanced Study. He has kindly promised to send you a copy, which I believe you will find an interesting and valuable supplement to this factual information.

If there are any further questions which I can answer, please do not hesitate to write to me.

Yours sincerely,

Denis Devlin, Esq.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

Many thanks for your letter of October 21. I have re-written the letter to Devlin in the light of your suggestions, incorporating practically all of them verbatim. I did not, however, include your suggestion about secretarial help. The work which is done by our secretaries here would be done by quite different people in English institutions, and I know from long experience with the Rhodes Trust that it is quite out of the question to get them to change their system.

I told Devlin about your book, suggested that he would find it very valuable, and told him that you had kindly promised to send him a copy. I think that will be extremely useful to him. The address is Denis Devlin, Esq., Irish Legation, Washington, D. C.

We are delighted to have Anne with us. She and I had a pleasant evening at the meeting of the Archaeological Institute at the Present Day Club last evening. Marie was tired and we made her go to bed. Ben Meritt is now President, and Campbell, one of our members, gave a most interesting address at last night's meeting.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

Some months ago I had a letter of inquiry from the Irish Legation in Washington concerning the organization of the Institute for Advanced Study. It seems that President deValera wants to establish a similar organization in Ireland and I believe has Schroedinger there already as the first professor in the new research institute.

I wrote Mr. Devlin a full description of the Institute last spring, which apparently was quite satisfactory to him on general grounds, but I have now had the enclosed letter of inquiry as to salaries, retiring allowances, etc. I have drafted a frank reply, carbon copy of which I enclose, but before sending it I should like your advice as to whether you think it wise to give out so much information concerning our financial organization. I may say that my inclination is to do it, but I should be very glad to have your opinion on the question.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Frank:

I have your note of October 18th, enclosing the proposed answer to Mr. Devlin.

I think your inclination to help Mr. Devlin is sound. On the whole, your letter seems to me clear and satisfactory. I should, however, to protect both them and you amplify it at one or two points. You say, "we hope eventually that each professor will receive a salary of $15,000 per year." To this I should add a proviso, namely: "providing his productive work justifies increase to this amount." I should also add a sentence something like this: "Princeton is an expensive place in which to live. It may be that your Institute will be established in someplace where the cost of living is less. If so, it would, I think, not be necessary to indicate how much is the maximum salary scale provided the other conditions for work duplicate those at the Institute." I should also add at the end a sentence something like this: "We have found out through experience that in order to create for professors and workers, as well as for the directors, maximum conditions of efficiency the usual run of secretarial and stenographic help does not suffice. Just as we require unusual capacity and productivity in our professors, so in order that they may not waste themselves, we require unusual capacity and culture in the secretarial staff and this requires a higher standard of remuneration than is common in business or in law, etc."

The general conditions coincide with ours. These matters are really not kept secret and there is nothing to be gained by keeping them secret provided we can be helpful by imparting such information as your letter, with these additions, provides. Nevertheless, I should suggest that the details be kept as confidential as possible.
It might also help the Irish who, I imagine, are not too wealthy, to be told that an Institute of this kind can be carried on, and was carried on for a period of seven or eight years, without a building of its own, and that we procured our present building only after experience had made clear to us the sort of building which our work required. If you think it worth while, I will send Devlin a copy of my book, one of the final chapters of which covers the question. You might mention it to him as containing a somewhat detailed account of the principles upon which the Institute is based and the concrete steps we have taken in a leisurely way to build it up.

Yours very sincerely,

A. F.

Dear Doctor Aydelotte:

Following a recent communication received from my Government, I am taking advantage of your kind offer to answer further questions regarding the organization of the Institute for Advanced Study. Would you be so kind as to let me have particulars regarding and terms and conditions upon which the professors and other academic staff hold office in the institute, the salaries and emoluments they receive and the superannuation scheme under which they are entitled to benefit. If such particulars should be regarded as confidential, you may be sure that my Government would see to it that they remain so.

Dear Doctor Aydelotte:

Thank you very much indeed for the printed copy of the Certificate of Incorporation and By-Laws of the Institute for Advanced Study and for the copies of the various bulletins of the Institute, as mentioned in your letter of May 18th, which you were so good as to send me. I am sending them to Mr. de Valera who will doubtless find them of great value in connection with the foundation of the institute in Ireland. You will be interested to learn that the bill providing for its foundation has now been enacted and so far it is the intention to set up two schools, one for Celtic studies and one for theoretical physics. I am sending you enclosed a copy of the bill which you may find interesting.

I expect to receive further enquiries from my Government and in that case I shall be happy to avail of your very kind invitation to come to Princeton in order to get a better working knowledge of the functioning of the Institute. I shall be glad to arrange a date for my visit which will be suitable to you.

Dear Mr. Devlin:

I learned with great satisfaction from your letter of May 9 of the purpose of Mr. de Valera to sponsor a bill in the Irish Parliament for the foundation of an Institute of Advanced Studies similar in character to our institution in Princeton.

It gives me great pleasure to send you under separate cover a printed copy of the Certificate of Incorporation and By-Laws of the Institute for Advanced Study, together with a copy of the first bulletin of the Institute, telling of the organization and purpose, and the most recent bulletin, which is No. 8. No. 9 is now in the press and will be forwarded to you as soon as copies are available. In addition to this material I send you one or two popular descriptions of the Institute, which may be of value.

I believe, however, that it might be worth your while when you have read over this material to come to Princeton for a day to see something of the Institute for yourself. I think it extremely likely that questions would occur to you that could be answered most effectively in this way. We are now on vacation, but there will always be some members of the faculty about, and I shall be here myself off and on during the entire summer except for the month of July.

If meanwhile any questions occur to you that could be answered by mail, please feel free to write me again. I should be happy to serve you in any way in making plans for the new institution in Ireland.

Department of Philosophy

October 6, 1936.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

I am enclosing Mr. Reis' letter which you were good enough to send me some days ago. I have written to Mr. Reis that he has been misinformed and that it would be a waste of his time to come to Princeton at present. I have suggested that he write to the Institute of Mediaeval Studies at Toronto for information about their plans for research in mediaeval philosophy.

Since the death of Prof. H.C. Longwell in 1929 our department has done nothing in mediaeval philosophy: We have left the course in the catalogue but it has never been given. There is a vague feeling that something may be done about it at some future time, but no definite plans have been made.

Please forgive me for taking so long to answer your letter. I have been having my eyes tested during the last two weeks and I got behind with everything. I now have to wear glasses for reading, and this annoys me very much.

I shall look forward to seeing you and Mrs. Flexner soon.

Yours sincerely,

J. A. Irving

Dear Professor Irving:

I have just received the enclosed note, and I have written Mr. Reis that I am forwarding it to you with the request that you tell him whether or not he has been misinformed. Will you be good enough to do so?

Mrs. Flexner and I are expecting to be in Princeton by the 1st of October and we hope to see you very soon.

With all good wishes,

Ever sincerely,

Dear Professor Irving:

I am sending you a note from Dr. Finley with a letter from Professor Joshi and my reply thereto. Would you like to talk with Joshi when he comes down to Princeton? If so, what is the best time for you?

Always sincerely,

Istanbul Conference

XXII. INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF ORIENTALISTS

(Istanbul, September 15-22, 1951)

SECRETARIAL OFFICE of the
ORGANIZING COMMITTEE
ÜNİVERSİTE, BAYEZİT
ISTANBUL, TURKEY

SECOND CIRCULAR

April 23rd, 1951

COMMITTEES OF THE CONGRESS :

The XXIInd International Congress of Orientalists will be held under the patronage of the President of the Turkish Republic, H. E. Celâl Bayar, in the premises of the Faculties of Law and Economics of the University of Istanbul, from September 15th to 22nd [1].

A Committee of Patronage has been set up consisting of the following personalities: the Prime Minister of the Turkish Republic, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Minister of Public Instruction, the Rectors of the University and the Technical University of Istanbul, the Rector of the University of Ankara, the Governor and Mayor of Istanbul.

Further an Honorary Committee and, to assist the Organizing Committee, an Advisory Committee have been elected. The names of the members of these two committees, as well as those of the members of the subcommittees for accommodation, exhibitions, excursions and scientific questions, which have been attached to the Organizing Committee, will be published in the third circular.

ACTIVITIES OF THE CONGRESS :

The sections which the Congress will comprise [2] and the specialists who will direct these sections, have been determined through an inquiry among scholars of the respective sections in different countries. Particulars about the sections, subsections and about the heads and secretaries of these will be given in our next circular. According to information so far received, the Congress will have a large attendance. Besides the scholars who were present at the International Congress of Orientalists in Paris, we expect at our Congress members from Germany and from the new states of Israel, Pakistan, India and Indonesia.

Owing to the large number of contributions, the sections will be divided into subsections. For such separate fields as philology, ethnography, archaeology, prehistory, and

[1]) The Inter parliamentary Congress will also take place in the course of September. As the convening of two large Congresses at the same time raises complications with regard to the questions of accommodation and sightseeing, we were obliged to learn the definitive date of the Interparliamentary Congress before finally fixing the date of our Congress. The date of the Interparliamentary Congress (1 - 9 September) was communicated to our government only the Ist April. We were thus obliged to change the date of our Congress (which had been provisionally fixed for the 8 - 15 September) to the 15 - 22 September.

[2]) We give the names of the sections, which were already shown in the first circular: 1. Ancient Orient, 2. Ancient Anatolia, 3. Semitic Studies, 4. Islamic Studies, 5. East Asia (China, Japan, Indonesia) 6. Central Asia, 7. Turcology, 8. Indology, 9. Iranian Studies, 10. Christian Orient, 11. Old Testament, 12. African Studies, 13. Egyptology, 14. Byzantino-Islamic Studies, 15. Islamic Art.

İstanbul November 21st, 1950.

FIRST CIRCULAR

According to the decision of the XXIst International Congress of Orientalists in Paris 1948, the XXIInd Congress was to take place in Istanbul in 1951. Turkish delegates who were present at the Congress in Paris warmly approved of this decision. The Board of Public Education in Turkey charged the University of Istanbul (October 20, 1950) with the convocation of the Congress, proposing that it should receive the cooperation of the University of Ankara, Turkish Linguistic and Historical Societies. The Rector of the University of Istanbul has invited representatives from the University of Ankara and from those two societies, and has set up an Organizing Committee, under my chairmanship; furthermore he has undertaken to establish an Advisory Committee, composed of outstanding personalities in our country. The orientalists and scientific institutes interested in the Congress will be informed of the successive stages of the work of the committees.

At the Congress in Paris no instructions were issued and no desires expressed concerning the tasks of the XXIInd Congress. After several discussions with Turkish scholars and foreign orientalists, we have arrived at the conclusion that the Congress in Istanbul should take place on a rather larger scale than did the preceding ones, since Istanbul forms a most important point of contact between the Christian Occident and the Moslem Orient, Europe and Asia, and is the scientific centre of the Turkish State. Furthermore we have decided that the following sections should be represented at our Congress :

1. Ancient Orient, 2. Ancient Anatolia, 3. Semitic Studies, 4. Islamic Studies, 5. East Asia (China, Japan, Indonesia), 6. Central Asia, 7. Turcology, 8. Indology, 9. Iranian Studies, 10. Christian Orient, 11. Old Testament, 12. African Studies, 13. Egyptology, 14. Byzantino-Islamic Studies. As the Congress is going to take place in a centre which contains the most outstanding Turco-Islamic works of art, we consider it convenient to add: 15. Islamic art.

Though it took some time to establish the Organizing Committee, we, i. e. those at the University of Istanbul who are interested in these congress problems, had started previously to make personal contact with various orientalists, in order to staff the different sections.

We shall do every thing in our power to ensure the representation on a large scale of the scientific institutions of the different countries which have been working in the field of Oriental research, either directly or through their departments. In particular we shall contact the scientific institutes in the Orient.

The Congress will be held in September. The constitution of the Congress and of its different sections, the conditions of participation, the general outlines of the programme, the information about excursions, journeys, exhibitions, etc. will be published in the 2nd circular.

We beg the scholars to whom this first circular is sent and who wish to take part in the Congress, to inform us as quickly as possible of their wishes concerning the organization and to send us the subjects of their communications, together with brief summaries.

President of the Organizing Committee:
Prof. Dr. ZEKİ VELİDİ TOGAN

Secretary:
