Professor Homer A. Thompson
School of Historical Studies
Institute for Advanced Study

Dear Homer:

Thank you for yours of 30 March 1982. You are indeed entitled to your travel allowance, and we will pay the bill for $879.00 when it arrives from Kuller Travel.

If I do not see you before 8 April, let me wish you and Dorothy a happy trip and the usual productive and stimulating time you have in Athens. I don't know yet when Aaron leaves and when he is due to return, but Pat and I are thinking that sometime between those two boundaries we would like to visit Greece for a week or so, and I will try to let you know soon about that.

With all best wishes, to you both, I am,

Cordially yours,

Harry Woolf

Dear Mike:

When I discussed personal finances with you before leaving Princeton last September you assured me that I would be entitled to travelling allowance for the current year. I would be grateful, therefore, if I might draw against this credit for my onward journey to Athens and for the return from Athens to New York. On my way from London to Athens I wish to visit Berlin in order to study the Greek antiquities which have recently been sent back by the Russians.

My intention is to depart from Oxford on June 27th for Athens, and on the return to leave Athens July 5th, reaching Princeton July 6th.

My reservations are not quite all

Re : Travel Allowance

Dear Dr. Oppenheimer,

Since receiving the Travel Allowance of $558.90 for travel expenses (New York- Athens; Athens-London) I have learned that to meet some tax requirements in connection with the Eastman Professorship at Oxford, I must return to this country in September of this year before taking up the appointment in Oxford. My travel expenses in 1959 will therefore be as follows:

New York- Athens return (Economy Air)	$723.80
New York -Southampton (Cabin Class)	240.00
Incidentals	36.20

At a regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Institute for Advanced Study on April 3, 1953, it was voted:

(1) To make available to you, as to all members of the Faculty, $1,000 a year as a fund for your professional travel. This fund, if not required by you in any one year, may accumulate, but will not at any time exceed $3,000. It is to be available to you only for these purposes, and only as long as you are a member of the Faculty of the Institute;

(2) To alter the provisions for your retirement--as for all members of the Faculty--in that retirement, which has until now been mandatory as of the June 30th following your 65th Birthday, will now become optional with you from your 65th Birthday on, and will be mandatory only as of the June 30th following your 68th Birthday.
