

Sabine Schmidtke reconstructs the scholarly biography of Martin Schreiner (1863–1926), one of the prominent students of Ignaz Goldziher, and an important representative of the »Wissenschaft des Judentums«, from his student days in Budapest to his active period in Berlin. She focusses on Schreiner’s pioneering scholarship particularly in the field of Islamic intellectual history and inter-religious polemics. This volume includes a list of manuscripts consulted by Schreiner, a catalogue of his personal library, a selection of unpublished writings, and other materials that shed light on his scholarly life and work.
